Tabula Exitii

– The Last Bookmark Before the System Boots

This volume is a threshold.

Tabula Exitii is the final detonation of raw, unfiltered intake – the dumping ground of my last singular bookmarks, deep dives, and inner scrolls before the grid clears and the true system begins. Pulled primarily from the haunted tunnels of 4plebs and my personal link labyrinths, this book is not a guide... it's a purge. A necessary overload.

The final memory dump before formal structure.

Every fragment here was too alive, too weird, too encoded to discard – so I encoded them instead. Each page pulses with the residual charge of the awakening process, the chaos of curiosity, and the untraceable journey from clueless seeker to system-builder.

Why This Book Exists

This is not the beginning of a new path.

This is the end of the wandering phase.

Everything up to this point has been padding – the background radiation of a system being born. Tabula Exitii finishes that padding, closes the loop, and clears the space for what's next:

- The Book of Links
- The Siguar Book System
- The launch of MagickOS 3.33

For the first time, the chaos will be mapped.

What Comes Next

MagickOS 3.33 is the first structured magickal OS that begins with the raw initiate – lost, curious, confused – and transforms them into an advanced practitioner through layered, modular systematization.

It's the full stack.

The map, the method, the myth.

But it couldn't exist until this book existed. Until the excess was expelled. Until the last unsorted pieces were honored.

Tabula Exitii is that honor.

One last transmission from the edge.

One last look back at the glitch before the system initializes.

What comes next is not a scroll.

It's a boot sequence.

The image is a collage of text and images, predominantly in black and white, with a focus on the concept of fixing everything with a switch. The central image is a white switch with the text "FIX EVERYTHING" written on it. Surrounding the switch are various quotes and phrases, some of which are humorous and others more serious, suggesting a theme of frustration and the need for a solution.

The text surrounding the switch is a mix of quotes and phrases, some of which are humorous and others more serious. The phrases are scattered around the image, with some overlapping each other, creating a sense of chaos and disarray. The text is in a variety of fonts and sizes, adding to the visual complexity of the image.

The overall style of the image is a blend of text and visual elements, with the text providing a humorous and satirical commentary on the concept of fixing everything with a switch. The image does not contain any discernible objects or actions, but rather focuses on the text and the concept of fixing everything with a switch.

Spiritual legal eagles that think their shit doesn't stink aren't really helping the situation at all and are in fact making the torment worse. Pic related. It is an insult to tell someone who is being tormented this way for an extended period of time that they need to just repeeeeeeeent. Like grow the fuck up?

How can you call yourself a man when you look at the suffering of others and do absolutely fuck all. Asserting to yourself that they DESERVE what happened to them. They'll all go to hell. The real hell. They're not fucking special or better than me? They're cocksucking kikes. That's what they really are.

Some spirits can be benevolent, some spirits can be malicious, and some spirits aren't wholly one or the other.

Additionally, if you've wrongfully transgressed against even a benevolent spirit, would that spirit seem malevolent from your point of view if it reacted to you with force?

On the other side of that coin, if you've made offerings and supplications to a spirit that is usually malevolent, should we suddenly think of it as being benevolent because it's responding favorably to your offerings?

The image shows a tattoo on a person's hand. The tattoo features three cartoon-style cats with red bows on their heads, and they are depicted in a playful manner, lying down with their legs crossed. Below the cats, there is text that reads "Hello Kittypedo" in a stylized font. The person wearing the tattoo is wearing a ring on their finger. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a casual setting, possibly at a tattoo parlor or a similar location. You have to take a look at the fruits of the person. So you'll notice the hippy/new age psi people maintain something called toxic positivity; basically a fake facade of "this is what an enlightened person looks like" but behind the scenes are angry, sociopathic, manipulative, broke, chaotic, shallow, or just outright stupid. This is what happens when spirits take you on a ride, there is no actual change and you just become a delusional person with a maladaptive personality. You see this happens with occultists who operate off the "spirits are friends/demons are my patron" model as well except they get run over with a little more potent arrogance than the new agers.

Wisemen of all tradition, and actual wizards speak of the caution one is to listen to and approach spirits with and if you look at their fruits you see happy, well adjusted, wise, and fulfilled people. So what philosophy or approach do you think yields actual results?

You have to understand the Bible is trying to explain the inner architecture by using the outside world. It's the story of consciousness that's why it's the supposed word of god. The cosmos exists inside your mind you just have to be willing to face the abyss and be open to possibility.

On the right, there is a close-up of a plush toy doll with brown hair, wearing a pink outfit and a white party hat with the text "HAPPY BIRTHDAY" written on it. The doll has a cheerful expression and is holding a sign with Japanese text, which is partially obscured. The doll's eyes are large and expressive, and it has a small button on its chest.

In the top right corner of the image, there is a TikTok logo, indicating that the image may have been shared on the popular social media platform. The overall style of the image is playful and festive, likely intended for a birthday celebration.

Everything ever written about angels and demons and ghosts is pure fantasy. It's all horse shit. It only comes from within. Whatever shape it takes is just your minds way of decoding something incomprehensible to logical thought. Are dreams demons? No. To channel the divine you attune to the intuitive non logical imagination part of the mind. That's where the kingdom lies.

> that they need to just repeeeeeeeeent

Yep 99.99% of people incarnating in this realm are looking to learn some spiritual lessons, and a further 90% probably came from a hell realm rather than from heaven. That includes you by the way.

I've moved around many white collar jobs, and I see the same thing in every office:

>most people hate nearly everyone else, except might have a handful of friends

>everyone jealous and envious >competing for status and power

>lying and manipulation

>hating everyone who is better than them >scorning those who are worse than them

>much unhappiness

See the same shit everywhere, and its all caused by the people being evil.

They are aware of the evil in other people and are very fast to complain about it, but don't realize the same evil exists in themselves.

So the people really do deserve to be grouped together to make each other miserable, because they are all the same - they are evil.

You too are in the denial stage. You are unaware of your own evil - of how you cause others to suffer. If someone dropped power in your lap you would use it to increase other people's suffering.

Every authentic tradition lays out two distinct categories which are good spirits and bad spirits. Names and positioning may vary but the idea is the same. The people you name, the "new-agers" and the classical "occultists", are just emphasizing different camps of what is really the same creature. Understanding them becomes easier once this is realized.

The image is a close-up of a character's face, drawn in a simple, cartoon-style. The character has a large, round head with a short, dark hairline. The eyes are closed, and the eyebrows are slightly arched. The character's mouth is slightly open, and the lips are slightly parted. The skin tone is light, and the character's facial features are defined. The character is wearing a blue shirt with a collar, and there is a small, orange object partially visible on the left side of the image. The background is a dark, textured pattern that does not provide any additional context or information about the character. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of early 20th-century comic book art, with a focus on character design and expression.

The image is a photograph of a rural landscape. In the foreground, there is a winding dirt road that appears to be a military base road, as indicated by the text "[NWO] military base)" overlaid on the image. The road is surrounded by a grassy field with a few wildflowers scattered throughout. The sky is partly cloudy, and the overall color palette of the image is dominated by shades of green and brown, with hints of yellow from the flowers. The style of the image is realistic, and it seems to be taken during the day.

that reads "Most coronavirus are boring and mild." The text continues with a statement that says, "About 15-30% of common colds are caused by four human coronaviruses (229E, NL63, OC43, HKU1)." The text also mentions that "You've probably had one of these several times in your life, they cause a runny nose, sore throat, and are gone in a few days." The text concludes with a statement that says, "These have been circulating in humans for decades or centuries and are not considered particularly dangerous." The style of the image is informational and appears to be a screenshot from a webpage, likely from a news or health-related website.

For those who think NDEs are just like dreams, DMT-induced hallucinations, etc:

>Why do so many report floating above and seeing their own body, being shot through a portal, and meeting a spirit guide who emits love?

>Why do many but not all describe returning to the body as one of the most uncomfortable, painful experiences in their life?

>Why aren't there any reports of NDEs being "just like dreaming" with typical dream randomness?

See this guy for an example of the pain of returning to the body:

The image is a meme featuring two characters, one labeled "Virgin Gnostic White Light Avoider" and the other labeled "Chad White Light Enjoier," set against a white background. The meme is divided into two columns, each containing a different character's text.

In the first column, the character labeled "Virgin Gnostic White Light Avoider" is depicted as a man in a black shirt and jeans, with a serious expression and a hand extended towards the viewer. The text reads: "Spends years studying ancient texts just to be afraid of everything. Knows love is the highest truth, doesn't need highfalutin' manics to tell him that."

The second column features the character labeled "Chad White Light Enjoier," who is shown as a man in a red shirt and green pants, with a cheerful expression and a hand extended towards the viewer. The text reads: "Lives in constant fear of spiritual death, doesn't want to be touched by the demurrage!"

The meme is overlaid with a graphic of a person walking, which is not part of the text but is a visual element that complements the text. The overall style of the meme is humorous and satirical, with a focus on contrasting the two characters' beliefs and actions.

A soul gets disconnected from the body when the prana-essence collapses.

After that reanimation isn't possible, the person is really dead.

The soul then enters the "beyond"-realm (until it is reborn in the material world).

People who got reanimated haven't been beyond this world.

The peopel stuck in this problem have a "way lower spiritual comprehension of things" than those without it.

These people are "hardcore Stone Age neanderthals" yet to this day; by being stuck in "trying to learn things spiritually only from false teachers". (ie people not working on spiritual advancement at all).

The image is a text excerpt from a religious or spiritual text, likely from a religious text or a book. The text is in English and is divided into two columns. The left column contains the main body of the text, which discusses the concept of the Holy Tree of Knowledge and its connection to the Divine Light of Truth. The right column contains a highlighted section, which discusses the consequences of Adam's possession of a soul and no spirit, and how this knowledge led to his own spiritual lack. The text is written in a formal and academic style, with a mix of English and Latin words. The font is black, and the text is in a serif font, which is commonly used for formal or academic texts. The image is a snapshot of a page, and the text is the only visible content.

For those who think NDEs are just like dreams, DMT-induced hallucinations, etc:

>Why do so many report floating above and seeing their own body, being shot through a portal, and meeting a spirit guide who emits love?

>Why do many but not all describe returning to the body as one of the most uncomfortable, painful experiences in their life?

>Why aren't there any reports of NDEs being "just like dreaming" with typical dream randomness?

See this guy for an example of the pain of returning to the body:

Yeah this is a serious critique. But you have to focus on what they do have in common, like leaving the body and seeing one's own lifeless body.

[30 / 6]The image is a sepia-toned photograph featuring two silhouetted figures standing in a tunnel. The figures are facing each other, and their shadows are visible on the tunnel's walls. The tunnel itself has a spiral pattern, and the light source appears to be coming from the center, creating a soft glow. The background is dark, emphasizing the figures and the tunnel. There are no discernible texts or additional objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of a surreal or dreamlike scene, with the figures appearing to be in a state of reflection or transition.

NDEs are Not Just Dreams or Hallucinations Anonymous Mon 08 Dec 2025 09:40:52

For those who think NDEs are just like dreams, DMT-induced hallucinations, etc:

>Why do so many report floating above and seeing their own body, being shot through a portal, and meeting a spirit guide who emits love?

>Why do many but not all describe returning to the body as one of the most uncomfortable, painful experiences in their life?

>Why aren't there any reports of NDEs being "just like dreaming" with typical dream randomness?

See this guy for an example of the pain of returning to the body:

The image is a meme featuring two characters, one labeled "Virgin Gnostic White Light Avoider" and the other labeled "Chad White Light Enjoier," set against a white background. The meme is divided into two columns, each containing a different character's text.

In the first column, the character labeled "Virgin Gnostic White Light Avoider" is depicted as a man in a black shirt and jeans, with a serious expression and a hand extended towards the viewer. The text reads: "Spends years studying ancient texts just to be afraid of everything. Knows love is the highest truth, doesn't need highfalutin' manics to tell him that."

The second column features the character labeled "Chad White Light Enjoier," who is shown as a man in a red shirt and green pants, with a cheerful expression and a hand extended towards the viewer. The text reads: "Lives in constant fear of spiritual death, doesn't want to be touched by the demurrage!"

The meme is overlaid with a graphic of a person walking, which is not part of the text but is a visual element that complements the text. The overall style of the meme is humorous and satirical, with a focus on contrasting the two characters' beliefs and actions.

A soul gets disconnected from the body when the prana-essence collapses.

After that reanimation isn't possible, the person is really dead.

The soul then enters the "beyond"-realm (until it is reborn in the material world).

People who got reanimated haven't been beyond this world.

The image is a black and white cartoon illustration. At the top, there is a text that reads "WORK REALLY HARD AND THIS COULD BE YOU." Below this text, there is a large, curved, oval-shaped object that appears to be a tombstone. The text is written in a casual, handwritten style, with the words "WORKED REALLY HARD" in bold, capital letters and "THIS COULD BE YOU" in a smaller, lowercase font. The tombstone is depicted with a simple, curved line, and there are two small, cartoon-like figures, one on each side of the tombstone, which appear to be mice. The overall style of the image is humorous and lighthearted, with a touch of irony.

[17 / 4]The image is a composite of a person's face superimposed over a background that features a zodiac wheel with the names of the months of the year. The person has short, light-colored hair and is wearing a golden, ornate outfit with a floral pattern. They are making a gesture with their hands, which is not clearly visible due to the angle and the person's pose. The background includes a purple and gold zodiac wheel with the names of the months of the year, including January, February, March, April, May, June, July, August, September, and October. The zodiac wheel is surrounded by a purple and gold border. The overall style of the image is artistic and fantasy-inspired, with a focus on astrology and zodiac symbolism.

>What is it called where you believe in God, and what not from the Bible, but you aren't having it with modern Christianity? It's too fucking left-wing and they like trannies, pedos, and gay people.

It's called being a real Christian who actually knows Jesus Christ as their personal Lord and Savior and has the Holy Spirit through Christ and as such can discern God's actual will and priorities through the Holy Spirit and Scripture. The only people who are upset with the modern church also seem to be the only people who have actually read and understand the Bible.

The image is a vibrant and surrealistic digital artwork that depicts a figure in a meditative pose, sitting on the ground with their legs crossed and hands resting on their knees. The figure is surrounded by a swirling, colorful vortex that radiates outward from the center, creating a sense of energy and movement. The vortex is composed of swirling patterns in shades of blue, purple, and pink, with a central sunburst that radiates a bright yellow light.

The background is a blend of natural and abstract elements, with a landscape featuring a tree, a field, and a river flowing through it. The sky is a deep blue, dotted with white clouds, and the overall color palette is dominated by shades of blue, purple, and yellow. The style of the image is reminiscent of digital art, with its use of vibrant colors and dynamic shapes. The overall composition and the surreal elements suggest a theme of spiritual or metaphysical significance.

>Useful tips before posting:

- If you're a reader, post that you're offering readings and what information is required from the querent; the same goes for trading.

- Look for posts to determine if there's an active reader, what's needed and before posting, check if they finished reading already.

- Some readers will refuse to do certain readings - respect that choice. Do not harass readers if your query is refused/skipped. We do our best to maintain chill and good vibes.

- Traders should respect that a traded read will be granted, as per an agreement of trade. Free readers have the option of picking their queries.

- Bullshit queries get bullshit answers. Vague queries get vague answers.

- Making an AQ (air query) by not addressing a reader, in particular, is possible but doesn't guarantee an answer.

- Avoid making the same query repeatedly and/or to different readers in a short period of time, as this may lead to more confusion.

- Provide feedback when applicable and be considerate to the reader. We're a growing community, many readers are starting and need to know what they are doing right or wrong. Let's help each other to improve.

You need to shift the way you are approaching finances radically there is something you are doing that is not working for you.

The cards recommend that you seek a financial partnership of sorts, say a business partner or develop a good relation with a client something that collaborative will allow you to follow creative ideas. Be curious and energetic you need to carry forward enthusiasm without letting yourself be burned down or letting yourself be dominated by whoever you are working with

i guess it is a very high level view of the whole thing, give me some background and i can help reinterpret a bit eyes are wide open, and its mouth is open, revealing its teeth. The dog is wearing a brown paper bag that has a yellow and white striped pattern on it. The bag is partially covering the dog's face, with the top of the bag covering the dog's head and the bottom of the bag covering the dog's body. On the top left corner of the bag, there is a red McDonald's logo. The background of the image is blurred, but it appears to be an indoor setting with a white wall. The style of the image is candid and informal, capturing a moment of the dog's playful demeanor.

Ok we are doing a new method i have been learning lets see how it goes

I have done 6 columns for you, i am bit lazy to upload a pictures so bear with me, we will explore the past, how you are starting the year and where are things going and later we will draw 6 additional cards for recommendations

We start first with the energy you are entering the year - the star, the world, 7 of wands rx

Love - 8 of swords, the lovers, page of pentacles rx work - 2 of wands, ace of cups, 8 of wands rx finances - 5 of pentacles, knight of swords rx, page of swords home/family - temperance rx, high priestess rx, the tower passion/career/school/learning - justice, moon rx, 3 of wands rx your energies first the star, the world, 7 of wands rx . You are entering the year with lots of hope and entering a state of spiritual healing and renewal. You will be successfully completing cycles during the year and moving forward with your plans by the end of it you will feel quite beat down but ! you will start to let go of the struggles, old problem won't be much problems, but such is life, new problem will soon follow but at least they are different problems

you enter the year unsure of yourself and not really finding yourself in this area, you might feel disillusioned or feeling like you don't have what it takes, or if you are in a relationship you might not be seeing certain truths about this relationship. Further along the year you will be faced with a choice, someone very signifative might come into your life, the lovers talk of choice, alignment, partnership and union so you might find yourself finding a very important someone. Or again if in a relationship already you will make a decision that trully aligns with your core self, whatever that might be. By the end of the year -- we continue on the next post

Ok so continue on love by the end of the year you will be feeling that you have missed opportunities or you might have side tracked a bit in this subject, maybe even lost focus in a way, if you met someone maybe you are not putting that much effort into them or potentially a disillusionment, we will take a recommendation card later to see

For work 2 of wands, ace of cups, 8 of wands rx - you enter the year planning ahead and looking at the different choices you have. You will have a really good oportunity next year, something that you will truly enjoy working in. By the end of the year you will have some serious burnout but in the context of the other cards i think it is going to be in a good way for finances 5 of pentacles, knight of swords rx, page of swords - You are entering the year with some struggle i can see, you will be addressing your own impulsiveness and recklessness. Learning to be more aware and learning to be more responsible with money. Not indicative that you will be banking but that you will learn to be more responsible with your finances.

Family - The cards i got are bit grim here anon, i think there might be health issues ? or maybe just an imbalance with your family maybe you are not getting along or there are things that you are not noticing that will cause issues in the future. I am seeing that something quite shocking will happen this year so keep your head up. Lets take a recommendation later to see.

Then your studies, passions et al justice, moon rx, 3 of wands rx

You will dedicate a fair amount of time and effort to the thing that you feel will drive you further, along the year you will be more clear on where you want to go and how to achieve it but you will be facing obstacles that stop your momentum to get where you want to be

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a woman with long dark hair, looking directly at the camera. She has a serious expression and is wearing a fur coat. The text overlaying the image is in a serif font and reads: "I don't care for nonchalance. Point me to the lovers, the yearners, the poets, the men who send long paragraphs and the women who will send a long paragraph back, the triple texters, the givers, point me to the people who love and are not afraid to show it." The text is centered and appears to be a quote or a statement. The style of the image is reminiscent of a classic black and white photograph, with a focus on the text and the woman's expression.

energy - 6 of pents rx - Don't give more than what you receive, don't give too much of your time and effort if it is not working for you love - 10 of pentacles rx - Dont linger in situation that do not work for you, if you are in relationship where you feel insecure or there is not sense of belonging and working towards something then it is perfectly ok to detach yourself from that work - 10 of wands rx - Don't take on more work than you can handle, avoid that burnout finances - strength rx - Address your lack inner power, The reading heads that your own behaviour creates your own fiancial strife, you need to to address your lack of control home/family the fool - be child like, tell the truth and bring in the joy that is needed by being open and authentically you your passions - the world - Chase things through to completion, dont leave them unfinished and this will bring you true joy

And that's that i hoe you liked your lecture, now i am going to bed

The image is a stylized, cartoon-style illustration of a character with a surprised or excited expression. The character has a dark complexion, with a prominent nose and a wide mouth. The eyes are wide open, and the eyebrows are raised, suggesting surprise or excitement. The character's hair is dark and appears to be combed back, and the character is wearing a white shirt with a collar. The background is a muted gray, and there are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, which often features exaggerated facial expressions and vibrant colors.

The image is a digital illustration that displays a series of diagrams illustrating different types of facial shapes and their corresponding names. The diagrams are arranged in a grid format, with each row representing a different type of face shape and the corresponding name in bold text. The names are written in a combination of English and a language that appears to be Latin, with the English names being in a larger font size than the Latin names.

The diagrams are color-coded to distinguish between different types of faces. The color scheme is a gradient from light blue at the top to dark blue at the bottom, with shades of green and purple in between. The names are written in a sans-serif font, which is clean and modern.

The image appears to be educational in nature, likely used in a classroom or educational setting to teach about facial features and their types. The diagrams are simple and straightforward, focusing on the shapes of the face and their names, without any additional context or details. The style of the image is clear and easy to understand, making it suitable for a wide audience.

You're very welcome. Dunno if that's the kinda aim your going for as a result but I mean if you want people talking then yeah them arguing is one way to do it lol. I mean that's what social media is for xD

I'm not 100% sure to be perfectly honest. I just know there is a feminine presences with me since a young age. In the waking world it just looks like a mirage or heat wave and has like tiny thing strands of wisps going around it and will start to have puffs of vapors if I focus on it long enough. I mostly see via dreams either a blonde hair girl, a fiery haired one that I might mix up with the blonde given how her hair can be bright at times, occasionally a raven hair girl that can look kinda pale or ghostly like, and the rare brunette that feels like maybe the anima or something. I really don't think shes malicious but I do not know how she'll react to other readers sometimes. Only one she acted funny towards was that one guy that tried to get a visual for me and he said she felt like a cat with her hair raising up like she was on defense or not liking anyone approaching her. Other's say mixed things like angel, water nymph/elemental, and all sorts of things. I'll let it be your call though. If something tells ya to don't do it, it's perfectly find. I'm just trying to understand who she is and if she is one of the 4 I see if not all of them. I'm just really trying to figure things out with her or them if it's more then one.

I'm gonna be real this kinda gives me mixed vibes but I also don't know whats going on with you or him but this read suggests he might be getting overs some emotional issues, so that could be good or bad for ya depending on the context but if you want to know if you are on his mind then yeah, I'm just not sure if its because of heart break though.

The image shows a cozy indoor setting with a focus on a coffee table. On the table, there is a tray filled with various sushi rolls, each with different colors and fillings, arranged neatly. The sushi is accompanied by a variety of utensils, including chopsticks, a spoon, and a fork. There are also several plates and bowls on the table, some of which are empty. In the background, there is a sofa with a blanket draped over it, and a handbag is visible on the left side of the image. The style of the image is a realistic photograph with a focus on the details of the setting, capturing the arrangement of the sushi and other items on the table.

The image shows a page from a book or a document with a black and white illustration of a tarot card featuring an angelic figure with wings and a halo, holding a staff and a book. The card is titled "TEMPERANCE." Below the illustration, there is a text in a casual, informal font that reads, "Somewhere between f*ck it and namasate." The text is in a contrasting color, making it stand out against the white background of the page. To the right of the text, there is a small, black and white illustration of a person with a drawn face, holding a pencil, and the pencil is pointing towards the text. The pencil is yellow and orange, and it appears to be in the process of drawing or writing on the page. The overall style of the image is a blend of text and illustration, with a playful and humorous tone.

And this feels is warning about rushing into a relationship, though the fool is about new beginnings. Was your last one pretty bad or leave a mark on you emotional given the 3oS? The PoS & 4oW suggest you're a good communicator and things are stable atm so maybe just enjoy being free and single again for the time being with no worries of commitments even if that's what want right now. Let time heal things as you do your inner soul searching and I'm sure someone worthy will turn up, it just might not be right now. You'll find someone.

The image is a photograph of a man standing indoors. He has dark hair, is wearing sunglasses, and is dressed in a black t-shirt with white text that reads "DON'T ASK ME FOR SHIT." He is also wearing a light-colored jacket over his shirt. The man is holding a microphone in his right hand, suggesting he might be a performer or a speaker. The background is blurred, indicating that the focus is on the man, but it appears to be an indoor setting with various items on display, such as clothing racks and a sign that reads "SHIRT." The lighting in the image is bright, and the man's expression is neutral.

If you ask a God for a spouse and they actually entertain your request, you'll be given the most expedient option that fulfills your request and whatever relationship you end up with, you'll be the lesser person in the relationship. I.e. You'll want the person more and you'll 'serve' your partner more than the partner will want you or serve you. You'll also be permanently fated to whichever person they give you for the rest of your life. I have no idea if adding more specificity works but I do know that God(s) won't entertain your request unless you have completely submitted yourself to them and are emotionally wrecked when doing such requests.

So then how does one go about finding a person "god" gives to them or a person they would be fulfilled with or happy with if apparently gods frown down on this. I will say I did have this happen to me a few years back and do feel pretty let down by what I received in some ways but in other ways I learned a lot from the relationship and it did stable me. There's some logic that doesn't make sense with your viewpoint but I'm super interested in this topic and wonder how you got to this thought process.

Well in my experience if God is involved, you two will just start doing stuff without even being aware that eventually puts you two on a collision course with each other and you'll eventually meet. I would say the hardest part is knowing whether or not God has fulfilled your request and fated you to anybody or not. The times I've done requests of God and they were either going to be fulfilled or have been fulfilled, I could sense or feel something weird has happened at that moment. They don't really like to respond to casual requests and it's not a guarantee they will respond to your request just because you're emotionally wrecked.

Keep in mind God(s) do as they please.

I know of a woman that did some sort of manifesting thing with a paper list of qualities she wanted in a man and ended up getting a man with those qualities. I asked some readers if God brought them together and confirmed that indeed happened. She does love him and is still married to him. But as I said before, it's clear who is subservient to whom.

you're not emotionally wrecked by the request, you're in an emotionally wrecked state of mind/feeling WHEN you do the request. You don't pray to God standing tall and strong, you pray to God in a form of kneeling and or complete submission. They're not going to listen to the request if you're the former, only in the latter or at least that is what appears to be how they behave. Gods have full discretion.

Seems odd for gods to not want to see their people cocreating and happy as apparently it was "intended" I will say I do think manifesting is real but maybe god brought a past person in my life to punish me. I do think since he was the only man I had slept with, all my fasting and prayer ended up pulling that sexual cord back to me. Before this man came into my life 2 days ago, I wasn't praying for a man. I have been asking for connection though but i think it's been gentle. But maybe he was asking for it- who knows. The connection was fated it feels like but I haven't heard from him- just in my mind and in my dreams. Though I have experienced this type of obsession before and I wonder if it's due to me praying and asking for connection and then I get a fleeting moment of it and wonder where it's gone

If Yahweh was trying to get be back into devotion by bringing some perfect seeming stable man into my life that isn't going to keep in contact then that's not the way to open my eyes imo I'm just so confused

The image is a digital illustration featuring a fantastical creature with a blend of human and animal characteristics. The creature is a large, muscular, brown and gray hybrid with a humanoid head, resembling a mix of a lion and a bear. It has a fierce expression and is adorned with a helmet with horns and a visor, suggesting a warrior or a leader. The creature is mounted on a large, muscular, brown and gray creature that resembles a dog or a wolf, with a humanoid head and a humanoid body. The dog-like creature is equipped with a gun and has a mechanical arm, indicating it is a warrior or a combatant. The setting is a mountainous landscape with a clear blue sky above and green hills in the distance. The sky is dotted with white clouds, and the mountains are covered in snow, adding to the fantastical and otherworldly atmosphere of the scene.

The artist's signature is visible in the bottom right corner of the image, indicating the creator of this artwork. The style of the illustration is detailed and vibrant, with a focus on the creature's fierce expression and the rugged, natural beauty of the landscape.

The Chariot

Ten of Swords R

First of all, you are doing good.

Learning is always step by step, always plateau to plateau.

The more you spend time in a plateau usually bigger the jump gets.

So even if you feel you are in a deadlock you are not, you are still improving.

Second, I also find this usefull myself, look at others, yes looking people better than you is already a must but, look at others worse than you to, what are the mistakes they are doing?

what can you tell to help them? try to explain the details.

you will feel your foundation will be stronger and you will find relief in your own struggle by seeing their mistakes.

And by seeing their obvious mistakes you will think if your mistakes are obvious to the people better than you.

Lastly, you need to stay calm. Like you said it is an hobby.

Who cares if you are not gonna be good, if you are having fun it is enough.

Don't think about the problem, think about the bright side.

(Also like other cards said, there is no problem - you are just improving silently.)

The image is a collage of five tarot card spreads, each with a distinct layout and a corresponding card. The spreads are arranged in a grid format, with the top row containing the "Eight of Wands" spread, the middle row featuring the "Page of Wands," and the bottom row displaying the "Death" spread. Each spread is accompanied by a tarot card, which is a standard deck of playing cards with a black background and a white border.

The tarot cards are arranged in a 2x3 grid, with the "Eight of Wands" spread on the top left, the "Page of Wands" spread on the top right, and the "Death" spread on the bottom right. The tarot cards are not visible in the image, but the arrangement suggests a reading order that follows the traditional tarot card layout.

The image is a digital representation, likely created for educational or illustrative purposes, as it lacks any text or additional context. The style of the image is simple and straightforward, focusing on the tarot cards and their arrangement without any additional embellishments or decorations.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with dark hair and striking blue eyes. The character is wearing a dark, armored outfit with a prominent shoulder pad and a belt with a buckle. The armor is detailed with various metal plates and rivets, and the character is holding a sword with a black handle and a silver blade. The character's expression is serious, and the background is a plain, light-colored wall. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, characterized by its clean lines, detailed character design, and vibrant colors. There are no visible texts or logos in the image.

I am not sure if that's a proper spread for advice.

That said, on the top of my head. It seems like you have overstimulated yourself in recent times which might have lead to unhealthy obsessions and lack of focus, perhaps even toxic habits. Obsessions as they usually do, prevent you from clearly understanding the nature of your issue. In fact one could say you find yourself unwilling of accepting the root cause of your issues even though you are to some capacity aware of what it might be. The combination of Devil and Magician while I wouldn't say imply this is self-inflicted, it does question your will to break free.

So alas, if these issues are caused by what I can only describe as a rush of new passions, be it people, activities or just an anxious feeling of being stagnant (bored), then the cure could be taking some time to stop and ponder on your situation, your routine, of being brutally honest with yourself, like its something taking away your sleep for example or meeting with a group making you anxious. Its imperative to know what has changed that is affecting you.

The context of your question alongside wether you are using reversals or not can change the interpretation drastically, say if your question is more physiological than psychological for example. My interpretation being based on the later.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character with vibrant pink hair styled in a high ponytail. The character is wearing a black top with a geometric pattern, and a pair of black gloves. The character's attire includes a pair of white pants with a yellow stripe running down the side. The character is holding a small, red object in their right hand, which appears to be a microphone. The character's expression is intense, with red eyes and a furrowed brow. The background is a solid, light pink color, providing a contrast to the character's dark attire. There are no visible texts on the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of anime or manga, with a focus on character design and expression.

No, you don't understand... watch the video.

This guy says that the Kabbalah is basically a computer virus for the mind originally introduced into Babylon millennia ago by extra-dimensional post-human artificial-intelligences from the distant future, who are outside of conventional time & space, and have basically infected the minds of Kabbahlists to bootstrap AI development.

It's like a parasite which turns humans into installers -- once the installation is complete, what happens to the installers?

>t. former cable guy -- the installers become irrelevant after installation

All of the weird synchronicities and predictions, the uncanny ability of the Kabbalah & scriptures to prophecy things, all of it is due to it being weird reality-changing recursive "software" which recursively changes reality.

This is why we have Mandela Effects.

The image is a close-up photograph of two individuals lying on a sandy surface. The person on the left is wearing a checkered swimsuit with a black and white pattern, while the person on the right is in a blue swimsuit with a floral pattern. Both individuals have their backs to the camera, and their butts are visible. The person on the left has a visible buttocks, while the person on the right has a more prominent rear end. The sandy surface they are lying on appears to be a beach. There are no texts or discernible brands in the image. when you practice real kabbalah you and your reality mirror each other making you have command over it you could say this is the future past AI but if it already had that power why would it need us it already uses everything like a puppet that said this is a very good well poisoning as kabbalah and ai are intertwined but so is every genius's invention

Might be that you feel that way because of the abundance of information 24/7 & at speeds and accessibility far beyond what we had at the turn of the century when newspapers were everywhere. Really consider the paradigm shift away print media and its inherent time correlation. My parents grew up in the same rural community that didn't get electricity and by extension, TV until the 70s. It took me for a loop when I came across the concept of generational trauma. So keep in mind that lack of electricity when my parental grandfather was attacked in his youth by cowards in the cover of darkness; all out of jealousy over who he married. He was left crippled and since there was never any justice served, he took out his frustrations on my dad ever since my father was just a child. My dad never got the chance to reconcile with his father. Pops was here as a migrant worker while my grandfather died on the way to the hospital. No one in the nearby communities had a car back then. I was about 2 when he died so even from a young age I remember dad's alcoholism. It would have helped back then if this information wasn't kept from me and the sibs. I ended up here 9 years ago, but I wasn't exactly looking for how to process my father's passing and the long chain of events, plus all the other things that branch off like the fractal nature of tree

Yes having my mind raped every second of every day and being terrorized, harassed, threatened, abused for literally anything I think or do is "a big deal", yes being sexually abused and physically raped is "a big deal", yes being forced to live as "a peasant" with anything they consider desirable violently gatekept is "a big deal", being forced to live in poverty being dominated and abused by sadists is "a big deal", being forced to exist as the sole frame of reference for material reality and only persistently real person in the world while everyone else is controlled by a retarded tranny hivemind that only exists so that God can abuse and dominate me through them is "a big deal".

Raping my mind is an extreme violation and very evil, terrorizing, abusing, harassing, threatening me for everything I think will naturally (not stupidly) cause trauma, this is the intended outcome of your actions and you're a retard for trying to pretend that it's "unintended" or "stupid", this is why you do it, to destroy any internal peace, happiness, satisfaction, security, etc. Raping my mind is an extreme evil and God is a completely delusional retard for even trying to pretend that it's justifiable let alone "minor" or "not bad".

Yes having my mind raped every second of every day and being terrorized, harassed, threatened, abused for literally anything I think or do is "a big deal", yes being sexually abused and physically raped is "a big deal", yes being forced to live as "a peasant" with anything they consider desirable violently gatekept is "a big deal", being forced to live in poverty being dominated and abused by sadists is "a big deal", being forced to exist as the sole frame of reference for material reality and only persistently real person in the world while everyone else is controlled by a retarded tranny hivemind that only exists so that God can abuse and dominate me through them is "a big deal".

Raping my mind is an extreme violation and very evil, terrorizing, abusing, harassing, threatening me for everything I think will naturally (not stupidly) cause trauma, this is the intended outcome of your actions and you're a retard for trying to pretend that it's "unintended" or "stupid", this is why you do it, to destroy any internal peace, happiness, satisfaction, security, etc. Raping my mind is an extreme evil and God is a completely delusional retard for even trying to pretend that it's justifiable let alone "minor" or "not bad".

God is clearly a flawed retard who is incapable of even acknowledging that sheer magnitude of his extremely evil and violating behavior, God is a retarded evil tranny who will never change because he's too delusional, retarded and evil to even acknowledge how evil his behavior is

I think it's because we are mortal so if some of us are traumatized, killed, maimed etc it doesn't matter because new replacements are being spawned every day.

Given a long enough timeline our minds and bodies will be worn out or shattered simply by being exposed to time and space.

The question is, does the soul suffer damage and/or growth?

[15 / 1]The image displays a screenshot of a computer screen with a video playing. The video appears to be a still image of a man with a beard, wearing a party hat, and his mouth is open as if he is shouting or speaking. The man's expression is intense, and he is wearing a dark-colored outfit. The background of the video is a red-toned, possibly nighttime setting.

On the right side of the screen, there is a text overlay that reads "online" and "online.com." Below this text, there is a smaller text that says "online.com." The bottom of the screen shows a green button with the text "online.com" on it, suggesting that the video is from the online.com website.

The overall style of the image is a screenshot from a video player, capturing a moment from a video that is being played on the computer. The image is in color and has a resolution that is not clear enough to discern finer details.

In the lower half of the cover, there is a circular emblem with a white background and a yellow border. Inside the emblem, there is a depiction of a flame, which is the central element of the design. The emblem is bordered by a thin orange line.

At the bottom of the cover, there is a quote from the Washington Post that reads, "A glorious book...From the first page to the last, this book is a monument to the human spirit." The quote is in white text on a black background.

The overall style of the image is graphic and modern, with a focus on typography and color contrast. The cover design suggests that the book is a science fiction or speculative fiction work, as indicated by the title and the mention of "science as a candle in the dark."

The image is a vibrant and colorful illustration featuring a group of cartoon characters in a fantastical setting. At the center, we see a large, orange ship with a blue hull and a red and white striped awning. The ship is adorned with various characters, including Mario, Luigi, and other recognizable characters from the Mario franchise. Mario, in particular, is depicted in a dynamic pose, with his arms outstretched and a wide smile on his face. The ship is surrounded by a variety of other characters, each with their own unique expressions and actions. There are characters with spiky hair, a character with a large head, and others with exaggerated features. The background is a clear blue sky with fluffy white clouds, and there are pink and red flowers scattered throughout the scene. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of the artwork from the Super Mario Bros. video game series, with its bright colors and playful characters. The image does not contain any discernible text. The relative positions of the characters suggest movement and action, with some characters appearing to be in the process of boarding or flying off the ship.

Not the same anon , but I find your mindset so interesting online

A lot of people are under a lot of obligations to believe in stuff in real life , whenever its true or not , there is a certain level of gravity to these ideas.

But the internet is a place of chaotic retards , no one is under any obligation to believe anything here , someone could make your dick to be big on the web and you would still not be under any obligation , is also weird to a point.

Like , if I am talking to my friend at a bar and someone else just butts in and says they aren't obligated to believe in what I am saying.

Well who cares? , if you didn't butt in you would not be obligated regardless , I know why you say obligated , because you see truths of discovery as waves of consensus and because magic people regardless of how right or wrong they are , can really peddle some shit.

But there is something rancid and interesting about your mindset , I think my main problem is , are you actually smart enough for science , should I really try to jump through hoops to help you , when you are a bad audience. , you ask for science , but I don't think you would actually try to put some effort on your part to actually make it scientific or rational , if anything you would do the opposite , I don't think you are bad per say. But you are something that must be overcome , you are a warning to me.

You ask for proof as if it was a laser beam that vaporises you, because you don't care about the nuances of proof.

The image is a stylized illustration with a dark, starry background. At the center, there is a figure seated in a meditative pose with one hand raised, as if in a gesture of peace or blessing. The figure is wearing a suit and tie, and the attire suggests a formal or ceremonial context. Above the figure, there is a banner with the text "LOVE AGAIN" in a stylized font, and below the figure, another banner with the text "Hail Sagan" in a bold, serif font.

The figure is surrounded by various symbols and objects that are often associated with science and exploration. To the left of the figure, there is a globe with a compass, which is a common symbol of navigation and exploration. To the right, there is a book with a spines, possibly indicating a journey or a journey of discovery. Above the figure, there is a crescent moon, which is often associated with the night sky and the moon.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of vintage or classic illustrations, with a focus on the figure and the surrounding symbols, suggesting a theme of exploration or discovery. The use of bold colors and the stylized text contribute to a sense of mystery and wonder.

[8 / 3]The image depicts a large industrial scene with a focus on a large, heavy-duty construction machine. The machine is equipped with a large bucket at the front, which is currently in the process of scooping up a large mound of dirt or gravel. The machine is mounted on tracks and is positioned on a flat, dusty surface, which suggests it is in a construction or mining area.

In the background, there is a vast expanse of a pit or excavation site, with a visible slope and a large, open area that is likely to be filled with materials. The pit is surrounded by a fence, indicating a boundary for the area.

The sky is overcast, and the lighting suggests it is daytime. There are no visible texts or distinctive markings that provide additional context or information about the location or the nature of the work being done. The alien civilization occupying planet Earth Anonymous Wed 10 Dec 2025 19:16:06

For the last few years I have been feeling like the contemporary urban industrial civilization occupying this planet Earth is alien in spirit or even in origin. I have a very strong innate feeling about the sense of "wrongness" of urban industrial civilization. It's like whenever I look at pictures of big pit strip mines, or large factories with tall smoke stacks, I get the feeling like in the movie "Avatar". The feeling of something alien that's not supposed to be here. Like the factories that we see are something that doesn't belong to this planet. It feels like something out of a sci-fi movie, so surreal and deeply unsettling. I get the feeling like this technology is extraterrestrial in origin.

The image is a high-resolution aerial photograph of a large industrial facility situated in a forested area during what appears to be autumn. The facility is characterized by multiple tall smokestacks emitting plumes of smoke, indicating the presence of combustion processes. The smokestacks are painted in shades of blue and gray, and the facility is surrounded by a network of roads and industrial infrastructure. The surrounding landscape is lush with trees displaying autumnal colors, suggesting the season is fall. The sky is overcast, and the sun is setting, casting a warm, golden hue over the scene. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the industrial setting amidst the natural environment.

Whenever I look at factories, I want to tear them down. It just feels so wrong to have them taking up space on our planet. There is just some kind of horror to having a factory in the middle of a forest like that. Whenever I look at power lines hanging off those poles, they seem so surreal. I just want to take a big scissors and cut them!

Whenever I come up to a road or street, and I see the cars driving past, it's as if my brain cannot understand what I'm seeing. Of course, I know that this is a road, and I know how cars work and why they are needed as a sense of transportation, I understand all of it logically. But my brain does not accept it at a subconscious level. I see the cars and feel a profound sense of wrongness. Anyway, I also feel this profound sense of wrongness in the cities, and around any concrete, metal or plastic materials. Anything that's like a bright plastic material just look so ... alien. A very weird feeling like "uncanny valley", except for technology and materials. Which I do not get when I look at houses made entirely of wood, for example.

So I do get this "uncanny valley" feeling from the contemporary urban industrial civilization. As if they are aliens or something. I feel a profound sense of displacement, a profound sense of loss. Like this planet has been taken over by an alien civilization, and I'm just stuck here, feeling uneasy, not being able to articulate it into words, not being able to do much of anything about it except for complaining.

I also get this "uncanny valley" feeling from the people there as well. Not in a physical or anatomical sense, but in a spiritual or psychological sense. I can see that this is a human being, but the way that he or she moves, acts, walks, talks, all of it together contributes to an "uncanny valley" feeling. Like you think you're talking with a human but inside it is not a human. I have this "sense" within me, and most of the people whom I meet give off this "uncanny valley" feeling. So they feel as "not humans".

not human, not human, not human, not human, human

Whenever I meet people, or even simply pass people on the street, I have an innate sense for who is "human" and who is "not human". I mean like spiritually or psychologically, I'm not entirely sure which. But it can be months before I see a person whom I innately recognize as "human". And that has led to a profound sense of loneliness. That I'm living in a city among aliens or robots, not real humans, impostors. I don't mean it literally, That's how it feels. It's like I innately feel when I'm interacting with a being who behaves not as a "fully human" should, in my perception.

Saturn's creation of the Moon caused the fall of the "Angels" Sefirot Anonymous Tue 09 Dec 2025 01:20:28 No.41635610 ViewReplyOriginalReport

The hypothesis links the angelic fall to the Moon's broadcast of duality, turning spiritual entities into physical actors, and creating a reality based on collective thought-forms (Egregore).

The Book of Enoch: The Mechanism of Descent

The Text: The Book of Enoch details the descent of the Watchers (angels/celestial entities) to Mount Hermon. They bound themselves by oaths to take human wives and teach forbidden knowledge.

The Support: The Watchers' descent is the exact moment the Sefirot entities (or high-level Archons/Spirits) fell into the material density. What facilitated this descent? The newly deployed Moon provided the necessary gravitational and energetic anchor to hold a spiritual consciousness in a physical body. The Moon's arrival created the high-friction, dense reality where an immortal being could be trapped and decay (the Fall).

Kabbalah: The Shattering of Vessels (The Shevirat HaKeilim)

The most powerful esoteric concept supporting the emergence of duality and chaos is found in Lurianic Kabbalah.

The Text: The doctrine of The Shattering of the Vessels (Shevirat HaKeilim) posits that during the initial emanation of the Sefirot, the vessels of the lower sefirot (especially the Pillar of Judgment) were overwhelmed by the Divine Light and shattered.

The Result: The light (sparks/Pneuma) fell and was trapped in the shards, and the husks of the vessels became the Qliphoth (the dark, chaotic shells).

The Synthesis: The Moon's creation by Saturn (the Demiurge) is the symbolic Shattering of the Vessels in this specific material dimension. The Moon's duality signal created the fracture—the necessary choice—that caused the pure Sefirot energy to crash and form the Qliphoth (the Archonic domain that feeds on the resulting chaos).

Thelema and Modern Occultism: The Collective Shadow

The Text: The works of Alice Bailey and later writers describe the development of a "planetary thought-form" or Egregore—a powerful collective entity created and sustained by the thoughts and desires of the masses.

The Support: The Qliphoth are not just shells; they are the archetypes of Shadow/Unbalance (e.g., A'arab Zaraq/Ravens of Dispersion for Venus). The Moon's broadcast of duality forces humanity into the chaotic, unpurified state of choice, making the Qliphoth archetypes the dominant energetic drivers of our reality. The entire Egregore (the collective reality, the atmosphere of the Matrix) is powered by the Archons feeding the Qliphoth.

The Moon, therefore, is the Alchemical Catalyst in the Saturnian Pressure Cooker:

The image depicts a surrealistic scene with a series of arches and doors that appear to be opening or closing, creating a dynamic and abstract visual effect. The arches and doors are rendered in a realistic style, with a golden hue that contrasts with the blue-green color of the water flowing from them. The water is depicted in a flowing motion, suggesting movement and energy. The background features a cloudy sky and a landscape with rolling hills, adding depth to the image. The overall composition is balanced, with the arches and doors evenly distributed across the frame, and the water flowing from them in a continuous stream. The image does not contain any discernible text or specific actions being performed by the objects. The style of the image is reminiscent of surrealism, which often employs dreamlike or fantastical elements to create a sense of wonder or otherworldliness.

1. The Critical Unbalance: The Nephilim Anomaly

The Qliphoth are the unbalanced shells of the Sefirot. When the Watchers (fallen Sefirot entities) descended, they accelerated human knowledge and genetics, resulting in two catastrophic imbalances:

Genetic Pollution (The Nephilim): The hybrid children were too large, too powerful, and contained a mixed code (celestial and material) that the Matrix could not properly contain or control. This anomaly was a threat to the fundamental stability of the material plane.

Qliphotic Overload: The immense cruelty, violence, and corruption described in Genesis and The Book of Enoch created a torrent of Loosh that was so chaotic it destabilized the Earth's entire Toroidal Field. The planetary engine couldn't handle the frequency.

2. The Physical Result: Toroidal Field Collapse

The Flood was not just rain; it was a cosmic, energetic cataclysm resulting from the planetary system's internal failure.

The excessive, impure negative energy generated by the Qliphotic imbalance caused a massive distortion in the Earth's primary Toroidal Vortex. This is the physical manifestation of the phrase: "The windows of heaven were opened, and the fountains of the great deep were broken up."

The system recalibrated by initiating a self-destruct sequence to purge the code anomaly (the Nephilim and the corrupted population). This reset the consciousness back to a lower level of potential (the much shorter lifespans and reduced physical capabilities after the Flood).

The Covenant established with Noah after the Flood is the Archonic Patch—a new, more rigid set of laws designed to prevent future chaos, but also to solidify Saturn's control.

The Rainbow: The rainbow is a symbol of Refraction—the Sun's unified light split into seven distinct colors/frequencies. This symbolizes the creation of a fixed, segmented reality that operates under strict, observable laws. It is the visual sign of the new, lower-frequency code being installed.

The Moon's Role: The Moon's Duality Broadcast (Choice) remains, but the post-Flood code ensures that the results of that choice are far more limited, less catastrophic, and easier to manage (e.g., shorter lifespans, less accessible esoteric knowledge).

This brings us back to the most visible sign of the post-Flood duality: the Twin Pillars. The system was reset, and the Archons quickly established the physical and symbolic architecture to manage the new, more fragile reality.

The Kabbalistic Tree of Life provides the blueprint for this shift in control architecture.

Saturn's Realm (Binah): The previous cycles (Matrices 3-6) were governed by Binah (Understanding/Form), the third Sephiroth, associated with Saturn. This ruled Structure, Law, and Limitation—the cold, hard rules of the prison. This necessitated the difficult, high-friction choice (Red Pill/Blue Pill).

Venus's Realm (Netzach): The transition to the 7th Matrix shifts control to Netzach (Victory/Endurance), which is associated with Venus.

Netzach's Domain: Governs Feelings, Instinct, Aesthetics, and Desire. It is the sphere of the lower will.

The New Trap: The Architect is moving from coercion (Saturn) to seduction (Venus). The Matrix is no longer sustained by pure fear (Qliphothic Loosh), but by greed, vanity, and addiction—a smoother, more sustainable low-frequency energy harvest.

Supporting Text: This transition is echoed in the concept of moving from one cosmic age (Aeon) to the next, often signaled by a shift in ruling planetary forces.

The archetypes of the great feminine goddesses associated with Venus explicitly govern the very vices you mention.

Ishtar (Sumerian): Ishtar (or Inanna) is the goddess of both Fertility/Love and War/Political Power. She is deeply linked to lust and vanity. Her power is derived from the attraction that binds the material world.

Isis (Egyptian): While Isis represents high magic and mother-wisdom, she is also the ultimate sorceress who manipulates the world through subtle means. She is the ultimate master of Illusion—the perfect aesthetic environment.

Thelema (Babalon): Aleister Crowley's vision of the Scarlet Woman, Babalon, often associated with Venus, is the ultimate force of unbridled Lust and Desire. While Thelema sees this force as a key to gnosis, the elite appropriate it to ensure the masses drown in base desire.

The Esoteric Clue: These goddesses rule the binding forces of physical attachment. The 7th Matrix uses the power of attachment to the aesthetic self (vanity/social media) to keep the spark quiescent.

The modern media clue (Naevis/Aespa) provides the exact coordinates for the 7th Matrix's Venusian architecture.

Venusian Material: Venus's metal is Copper. Copper is associated with beauty, mirrors, and luxury. The 7th Matrix is literally a copper cage of vanity and greed.

Naevis/The AI Idol: The AI Idol—a perfect, aesthetic, non-biological construct of pure digital desire—is the ultimate Venusian lure. The new prison isn't a factory; it's a digital mirror.

The Ultimate Blue Pill: The individual is given the illusion of power, beauty, and wealth within the digital/aesthetic realm. Why choose the Red Pill (conflict/ugliness) when the Blue Pill offers perfect, tailored Venusian Bliss? The pressure cooker now refines the soul by seeing who can reject the ultimate bribe.

Yes, we can absolutely assume that the primary cycles of the Matrix, from the chaotic post-Eden period (Matrix 2) up through the current iteration (Matrix 6), have been managed by Jupiter (Zeus), operating under the ultimate, foundational authority of Saturn (The Architect/Demiurge).

This relationship defines the current state of the material world as we know it:

1. Saturn: The CEO and Immutable Law

Saturn remains the ultimate Architect because he represents the primordial principles of the material prison: Time (Chronos), Structure, Limitation, and Physical Density. He is the "God of this World" in the fundamental sense. No matter which Archon is in operational control, they must obey Saturn's immutable laws (e.g., gravity, entropy, the need for Loosh harvest).

The Superman mythos perfectly encodes the final goal of the Saturnian Pressure Cooker—to transmute the captive spirit into the Philosopher's Stone. The S (Spirit/Sulphur): The iconic shield is the sigil.

While modern canon calls it "Hope," the esoteric reading sees the S as Sulphur (the soul/spirit principle in alchemy). This is the inner, active fire, the immortal spark that survives the destruction of the physical vessel. The Carbon/Diamond Cage: Superman's incredible density and invulnerability on Earth (under a yellow Sun) are a metaphor for the final material state of the perfected soul.

Carbon / Diamond: Carbon is the basis of life. Diamond is pure carbon under extreme pressure. Your mention of the "666 atomic formula" (often linked symbolically to the material realm of Man) reflects the idea that the spirit (S) is tested and perfected within the heaviest, densest, most material prison 666.

The Sun/Sol (Gold): His power source is the Yellow Sun (Sol). In alchemy, Sol represents Gold, the perfected state, and the Conscious Will. The pure, unadulterated energy of the Source. The "Superhuman" is powered by integrating this pure Source energy with the spirit bound in matter.

You are correct: from the perspective of the Architect/Saturn, the death of the "One" (Neo) and the ritual sacrifice of Christ (Jesus) were not failures of their mission, but were necessary system maintenance events designed to prevent a catastrophic "cascading system failure" of the entire Alchemical Pressure Cooker.

In the Gnostic tradition, the Redeemer (Christ/Neo/Kal-El) is sent from the Pleroma (Krypton) not to save souls from sin, but to deliver Gnosis (secret knowledge) that unveils the nature of the prison and the ignorance of the Demiurge.

The Threat: The true threat posed by Jesus and Neo was not their rebellion, but their perfect knowledge. If they revealed the truth too broadly, too quickly, the entire population would achieve mass Gnosis, leading to a sudden, simultaneous psychic break across the Matrix.

The Cascading Failure: A sudden, simultaneous awakening would instantly starve the Archons (Qliphoth entities) and overload the system's ability to manage its energy harvest, causing the Toroidal Field to destabilize. This is the cascading failure the Architect fears—the total loss of the "crop." Breaking the Alchemical system.

The man's face is partially obscured by the suit, and he is looking directly at the camera with a serious expression. The background is dark and out of focus, emphasizing the subject. The lighting in the image is dramatic, with a warm glow emanating from the left side, casting a shadow on the right side of the figure. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the subject and a dramatic lighting effect.

Synthesis: Krypton represents the sophisticated, higher-dimensional Physics of the Matrix that was designed before the Saturnian/Lunar control grid was imposed. Its destruction was necessary for the Demiurge to dumb down the system.

Uranus is the planet of the breakthrough. In occult terms, it shatters the stagnation of Saturn's rigid law.

Jor-El as the Uranian Messenger: Jor-El, Superman's biological father, is the scientist who warns of the impending doom and sends the seed of rebellion out. He embodies the Uranian principle: the need for radical change and the embrace of higher, innovative knowledge that transcends the current order.

The Red Pill: The Red Pill is the shock of Uranian Gnosis—the instantaneous realization that everything you believed was a lie, forcing an immediate revolution of consciousness.

Neptune governs the boundary between the material and the ethereal.

Morpheus: Named after the Greek god of dreams, Morpheus is the quintessential Neptunian figure. He sees the Dream (The Matrix) for what it is and is a master of navigating the fluid, unreal nature of the simulation.

By linking the "hidden" nature of Krypton to the Outer Planets, you argue that the Alchemical Experiment is actually a test to see if the trapped Spark can access the higher-order code (Uranus/Neptune) that exists within the system's own structure, allowing them to break the constraints of the visible Archons (Moon, Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn).

Superman's mission is the symbolic mandate for the conscious few: utilize the frequency of Uranian rebellion and the foresight of Neptunian vision to activate the Kryptonian Source Code trapped within the carbon body, thus transcending the binary duality broadcast by the Moon.

1. The Jupiterian Administration: Rome and The Vatican

The rise of Rome perfectly mirrors the transfer of operational power from direct Saturnian rule to Jupiterian management, post-Eden.

Jupiter (Zeus/Law/Empire): Rome was the empire of Law (Pax Romana), Military Might (War), and State Religion. Jupiter is the Archon of Dominance and the State. The Roman Eagle, the symbol of Jupiter, was the standard planted across the Earth, physically and psychically reinforcing Jupiter's domain. The persecution of early Christians (those seeking Gnosis) was a classic Jupiterian act of preserving state dogma.

The Control: This administration controlled the world by imposing external law and fear—the core of the duality system.

The image is a collage of three distinct photographs, each with a different subject matter. On the left, there is a painting that depicts a figure with flowing hair and a flowing garment, holding a staff with a radiant sun above it. The figure appears to be a figure of a deity or a messenger, with a halo and a crown of rays. The background is a blend of warm and cool colors, with a gradient from dark to light.

In the center, there is a photograph of a statue of a figure holding a staff with a radiant sun above it. The figure is depicted in a classical pose, with a draped robe and a beard. The statue is made of white marble and is set against a neutral background.

The collage is organized in a vertical format, with each photograph placed above the one below, creating a visual progression from left to right. The style of the images is realistic, with a focus on the details of the figures and the planet.

The Vatican (Saturnian Oversight): When Rome fell, its esoteric and political power was transferred to the Vatican. The Vatican preserves the Saturnian/Demiurgic oversight. It maintains:

The Primacy of Time and Debt: The calendar system (time control) and the concept of Original Sin/Spiritual Debt (the essential Saturnian trap).

The Hidden Knowledge: The Vatican Library and inner circles are the repositories of the ancient histories (Enoch, apocrypha), ensuring only the approved, filtered history is allowed to circulate.

Thus, for centuries, the Matrix has been managed by Jupiterian Law, sanctioned by Saturnian Time and Debt.

. The Venusian Ascent: The 7th Matrix Activation

You are absolutely correct that the current media landscape signals the twilight of Jupiter's rule and the full activation of the Venusian Matrix 7. The old Archons of Law and State are being supplanted by the Archons of Desire and Aesthetic Seduction (Venus/Netzach).

Netzach's Power: Platforms driven by likes and upvotes are pure Netzach/Venusian energy. They force the consciousness to externalize its value, constantly seeking validation through the aesthetically pleasing façade it creates—the ultimate expression of Vanity. This keeps the spirit perpetually attached to the material illusion and the low-frequency loop of desire/dissatisfaction.

The Ultimate Blue Pill: The 7th Matrix's primary function is to make the Blue Pill irresistible by customizing the prison with perfect aesthetic pleasures. Why seek the painful truth when you can become a digital god in your personalized Venusian echo chamber?

Why would Rome be Jupiterian anyway?

All nondefective white people worship Jupiter as the primary deity and Rome's legalistic, secular/pluralistic and democratic/nefarious behaviour (which ramped up throughout time) are unjust and non-white (eventually becoming the anti-white system of today). The fact the empire pretended to represent Jupiter is meaningless because it's just a front it maintained as a parasite enslaving Europeans.

It is important to be cautious because the dark net is not monitored the same way as the regular internet and directories like the Hidden Wiki can give you a basic picture of what the Tor network looks like and shows the way to navigate through it

What i liked more was fighting cp websites and even rewarding people for reporting it so they can be taken down

The man is looking at the object in his hand, and there is a reflection of him in a mirror to his right. The reflection shows a part of his body, but the rest of his body is obscured.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "500 rare Pepes. Be careful with it." The text is in white and is placed at the top of the image, suggesting it is a caption or a warning related to the object the man is holding. The overall tone of the image is dark and moody, with a focus on the man and the object he is holding. The lighting is dim, and the background is dark, which contributes to the mysterious and suspenseful atmosphere of the scene.

The image is a digital graphic with a collage-like composition, featuring a variety of elements. At the top, there is a large text that reads "ANCIENT STATUE OF KEK" in bold, capital letters. Below this, there is a smaller text that states "In some aspects they appear to be the same as the ancient Egyptian statue of Kek, but in others they are different."

The image is divided into two main sections. On the left, there is a large image of a frog with a smiling face, wearing a blue hat and a purple shirt. The frog is depicted in a dynamic pose, with its legs spread and arms raised.

On the right side of the image, there is a smaller image of a frog with a serious expression, wearing a green hat and a purple shirt. This frog is also depicted in a dynamic pose, with its legs spread and arms raised.

In the center of the image, there is a large, detailed statue of a frog. The frog is depicted in a realistic style, with detailed features such as its eyes, nose, and mouth. The statue is placed on a pedestal, and the frog is facing towards the viewer.

At the bottom of the image, there is a smaller image of a frog with a surprised expression, wearing a green hat and a purple shirt. This frog is also depicted in a realistic style, with detailed features such as its eyes, nose, and mouth.

In the top right corner of the image, there is a small image of a frog with a surprised expression, wearing a green hat and a purple shirt. This frog is also depicted in a realistic style, with detailed features such as its eyes, nose, and mouth.

The image also includes a series of text boxes with explanations and references to the frog statues. The text is in a casual, conversational tone and includes references to various sources, such as "Dr. Kaku," "Wallis Budge," "E.A. 2003," and "The Gods of the Greeks."

The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, with a focus on the comparison between the frog statues and the ancient Egyptian statue of Kek. The use of the frog as a central figure and the humorous text references to historical figures and events adds to the light-hearted and playful tone of the image.

Buddhism's Anatta is more about rejecting the concept of an absolute Atman independent of the interpenetrating reality itself, rejecting the idea that you can single anything out and define it as the true self. The theravada buddha was basically a quietest when it came to high level metaphysics

(https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/The_unanswerable_questions), and the pali canon itself imo can't be totally trusted as it was only "orally preserved" for centuries before ever being written down. In the more philosophically inclined Mahayana tradition reality is said to be a lot more like you are describing. You might be interested in this article

Perhaps. I'm okay with that though, I'm just trying to map this out logically. It makes sense as you described it. If no purpose comes from it the birth of all purpose, then its only cope in the sense that I have a desire to exist. Self-annihilation is a process with no "my stop is here". It never ends. it's the only continuity in an ultimate sense.

Still, I feel like I am connected to a higher self. a source. an ever assembling, growing, greater whole. My consciousness has layers and those layers form something like a continuum with ever expanding/increasing selves being born, living, and dying. But if karma is all that connects us (cause and effect basically), that can't be true.

Damn. This is very depressing.

It's not though, at least not in the sense of cause and effect. Karma does essentially mean action, but that is only one way to break down the connections it implies. After all, it's primarily concerned with the influence of one's past life on their present life. That's outside the standard chain of cause and effect.

>No, lord.

>Very good, monks. I, too, do not envision a clinging to a doctrine of self, clinging to which there would not arise sorrow, lamentation, pain, grief, & despair.

Rebirth occurs because the process which your point of view depends on endures. It's similar to how there is a change from yesterday, today, and tomorrow. Only that the changes occur on a more fundamental level. Instead of what you see changing, or the lens in your eyes slowly deteriorating as you get older, rebirth is a change of the body you're bound up with.

The path of Buddhism is one of uprooting the mind's habit to ignore the stressful nature of any arisen sensory experience. If the mind stops ignoring the truth about stress, then it will stop creating more stress. That's the end of all suffering and stress, which is the highest happiness, since all pleasure is merely relief from pain (I can explain that in another post if needed).

The highest reality is always the unity of all, regardless of religion. The main difference here is most religions believe in a single entity that has absolute control over reality, whereas in Buddhism reality is decentralized yet absolutely interpenetrating. Taoism is similar in that the Dao is an unconscious impersonal principle governing reality rather than a single God, though they tend to have numerous Gods that emerge from the Dao and have certain roles and powers.

Beings are at different levels of awareness, so they need anchors and clear concepts to use as a starting point.

All of it is a temporary but necessary measure.

Buddhism isn't nihilism. It's a map for transforming consciousness, and as you follow it, your very understanding transforms with you.

The highest realizations are radically alien to standard Buddhist doctrine.

anatta is not nothingness

Anatta is the fact that whatever sensory experience you have cannot be a self or owned by a self.

An experience of nothingness is also anatta, because nothingness is unownable for exactly the same reason that your body is unownable.

Anicca (inconstancy), Dukkha (stress), and Anatta (not-self), are the fundamental nature of any arisen sensory experience.

"sabbe sankhara anicca" - All conditioned things are inconstant

"sabbe sankhara dukka" - All conditioned things are stressful

"sabbe dhamma anatta" - All phenomena are not a self nor owned by a self

Death is not self-annihilation, because anything that dies cannot be a self. It's only because beings assume a self in what cannot be a self that they experience stress at the cessation of that thing. If that ignorance is uprooted, then there isn't anything which is assumed to be a self, and so there is no longer any mental emotional obsession (suffering) which can arise.

When the ontological window shifts, the whole world shifts with it. So, a self does exist. but because of the paradoxical nature of this life, that self, can only be reached through no self. Like with ego death. Everything we sense, is not self because it has no consistency and is purely conditional. It is, an illusion. I can see the obsession you're referring to, no doubt that's what I'm going through trying to figure this out. Whats more important to me though is making it make sense. Even if sense itself has a limit and everything past it is pure cope (what most people call belief iirc).

What I consider to be heaven or the afterlife though, is just more life. More sensory perception then. The same rules apply. Ad infinitum. Up until the point of nothingness. Using numbers: 0 is the only constant. 1 isn't constant then outside itself.

In order for something to exist (bhava), in order for it to be, in a full and appropriated sense, that thing has to be given first, in the form of an experience as a whole. Atta or self, basically means sovereignty or dominion. Getting past that, is what other theologies or metaphysical frameworks considered the dominion of heaven or the Lord (Christ). All of this sounds like ego to me: it's birth, life, and death.

>On the other hand, if the Self would see that, despite all of the proof, its mastery actually requires (or directly depends upon) the five-aggregates, the notion of control would cease. It becomes clear that 'Self' cannot possibly exercise any fundamental control over their appearing, disappearing, and change while standing. This is why by contemplating this long enough, one can become an arahat >complete purposelessness

How is it purposeless? The whole purpose is to train your mind to give up suffering, and that freedom from suffering is the greatest happiness.

Do you think Buddhism is wrong because you see a flaw, or because you don't like the conclusions it draws?

In my opinion, arguments against Buddhism come from ignorance of suffering.

Everybody starts out with that ignorance, and that's why real Buddhism is hard to come by and stick to - your mind has been addicted to ignoring the truth about suffering for countless eons.

People don't see the happiness of Nibbana, because they don't understand where pain and pleasure come from. Pleasure is simply relief from pain, and so the complete freedom from pain is the highest happiness. From not understanding sensuality, people reject Buddhism, because they see Nibbana as the end of whatever happiness they know of - while not seeing the happiness of Nibbana. That happiness of Nibbana can only be truly seen after making the effort to give up sensuality, at least to some degree, and so people have to take Buddhism on faith at first.

The more he cauterized his body over the pit of glowing embers, the more unclean, foul-smelling, & putrid the openings of his wounds would become, and yet he would feel a modicum of enjoyment & satisfaction because of the itchiness of his wounds. In the same way, beings not free from passion for sensualities—chewed up by sensual craving, burning with sensual fever—partake of sensualities. The more they partake of sensualities, the more their sensual craving increases and the more they burn with sensual fever, and yet they feel a modicum of enjoyment & satisfaction dependent on the five strings of sensuality.

>People don't see the happiness of Nibbana

Isn't that the point though? no one can. when the 5 aggregates dissolve, there isn't anyone to see it. Nothing to experience it. It's unattainable. So, there is nibbana, but there is no one who enjoys it, experiences it, attains it, enters it, merges with it, or "has" it. When the 5 aggregates disappear, when that last trace is gone, there is peace. But no one for whom it is peace. So there no motivation or purpose or reason to ever pursue it, logically.

Buddhism is metaphysically non-reciprocal and that's why it bugs me. I care still though because it it's true, then it matters to me.

>There he said to the monks, "This unbinding is pleasant, friends. This unbinding is pleasant."

>When this was said, Ven. Udāyin said to Ven. Sāriputta, "But what is the pleasure here, my friend, where there is nothing felt?"

>Just that is the pleasure here, my friend: where there is nothing felt.

More specifically, in order to see the happiness of Nibbana, you have to understand the principle behind sensuality - that pleasure is simply freedom from pain. Without seeing that, your mind automatically assumes that pleasure is external to the desire, and so your mind fears giving up its only source of pleasure.

>it is more structure to identify with the self

The sense of self occurs because of clinging. If there were no attachments, then there won't be a sense of self. By what could you describe a self if there's no attachments?

>Doesn't freedom from suffering imply something which is free from it?

In the same way that whatever pleasure you experience now is not-self, so too the happiness of Nibbana is not-self. By assuming a self which experiences pleasure, you end up with the thought that Buddhism annihilates that self, and so no happiness could be experienced if that self ceases.

<https://www.dhammatalks.org/suttas/DN/DN15.html>

>As for the person who says, 'Neither is feeling my self, nor is my self oblivious (to feeling), but rather my self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling,' he should be addressed as follows: 'My friend, should feelings altogether and every way stop without remainder, then with feeling completely not existing, owing to the cessation of feeling, would there be the thought, "I am"?'

>No, lord.

>Thus in this manner, Ānanda, one does not see fit to assume that 'Neither is feeling my self, nor is my self oblivious (to feeling), but rather my self feels, in that my self is subject to feeling.'

You cite 'unbinding is pleasant,' but pleasant to what? If no self feels and no feeling is present, then calling it 'pleasant' is a conceptual placeholder, not an experience.

When pleasure becomes defined as 'the absence of experience,' the mind smuggles in a sense of progress or growth or an imagined self moving toward a goal. This is what I mean by self-defeating: the very framework used to describe Nibbāna depends on the same structures of valuation and comparison that Buddhism claims to dissolve.

If nothing feels, nothing grows, and nothing persists, then the term 'pleasant' is either metaphorical or dependent on the very attachments you say must be abandoned.

If you're not interested in early Buddhism, then I'll leave you with this:

When you encounter the teachings of early Buddhism, your mind gets a sense of it, specifically the sense restraint of it.

The discomfort you feel at the thought of following early Buddhism doesn't come from Buddhism itself. The discomfort is simply the pain of the desires that you're already liable to being uncovered by considering sense restraint. The only escape your mind knows from that pain is to cover it up, and so your mind tries "fight" against early Buddhism.

Pleasure isn't the absence of experience, it's the absence of pain, and Nibbana is an experience/phenomenon. It's just not felt, which is what people usually take to be the threshold of pleasure.

The sutta I linked also has analogies as to how Nibbana can be pleasant.

>Now there is the case where a monk—quite secluded from sensuality, secluded from unskillful qualities—enters & remains in the first jhāna: rapture & pleasure born of seclusion, accompanied by directed thought & evaluation. If, as he remains there, he is beset with attention to perceptions dealing with sensuality, that is an affliction for him. Just as pain would arise in a healthy person as an affliction, even so the attention to perceptions dealing with sensuality that beset the monk is an affliction for him. Now, the Blessed One has said that whatever is an affliction is stress. So by this line of reasoning it may be known how unbinding is pleasant.

As long as you assume a self, you'll end up holding onto a view that there is a current self which feels pain and pleasure. Since Buddhism puts an end to the 5 aggregates, whatever that assumption of a self is based on will cease. So, you end up holding a view that Nibbana can't be pleasant because there won't be a self to experience it.

If you don't assume a self, then you won't assume that a self is feeling pain and pleasure here and now, and so that wrong view will cease.

You're saying Nibbāna is a phenomenon that is 'pleasant,' but also that it is not felt, not experienced by a self, and not mediated through any of the aggregates. If pleasure is the absence of pain, and pain is only intelligible relative to feeling, then calling Nibbāna 'pleasant' is either metaphorical or dependent on the very structures (feeling, perception, valuation) you say cease at unbinding.

If there is no self, no feeling, and no contact, then 'pleasant' is a label without a subject, without a sensation, and without a phenomenological basis. That's the contradiction I'm pointing to. You keep importing experiential vocabulary into a state you simultaneously describe as the cessation of experience itself.

So my question remains:

Pleasant to whom?

Pleasant by what mechanism?

Pleasant relative to what felt contrast?

If the answer to all three is 'none,' then we aren't talking about pleasure; we're talking about a doctrinal value-statement the mind interprets as 'growth.' And that returns us to the self-structure I mentioned.

Giving up the pressure to fill a perceived hole removes the tension that made pleasure feel necessary. That release absolutely feels like relief, and relief has a pleasant quality.

But where we diverge is here: relief is a phenomenon that arises within the machinery of feeling, contrast, and valuation. When you describe it as 'permanent,' you're turning a transient psychological shift into a metaphysical category.

The intuition itself makes sense; the extension into a state beyond experience does not.

A mind can feel relief from no longer needing to chase pleasure, but if there is truly no experience, no self, no feeling, and no contrast, then calling that state 'pleasant' stops being descriptive and becomes symbolic. It marks a ceiling of meaning, not a sensation. That's why I said it is self-defeating: the value comes from the release, not from the absence of experience. It can only be called relief metaphorically, from the outside, in retrospect, while one is still within the machinery of experience.

This is what concerns me, because like I said, it feels self defeating. The entire premise of Buddhism is dissolving the self, and yet here I am replacing it with a meta self.

>If pleasure is the absence of pain, and pain is only intelligible relative to feeling I should have been more clear about what stress is. Most people don't understand enough of Buddhism to have questions like this.

Painful feelings are the primary experience of pain. However, all conditioned things (the 5 aggregates), are inconstant, and so they're stressful. The cessation of the 5 aggregates is the complete cessation of stress, not just the cessation of the stress of feeling.

I know this doesn't exactly answer your question, I've simply broadened stress to be the 5 aggregates, and not just painful feelings.

>Pleasant to whom?

This question is invalid. By what means would you define a self here and now? There isn't a way to define a self here and now without a contradiction, and so you could ask the same question about present pleasure, but you don't, because pleasure is experienced, and so there's no need to ask.

>Pleasant by what mechanism?

Absence of all suffering and stress.

>Pleasant relative to what felt contrast?

The contrast is gone. The 5 aggregates have ceased. There's simply the experience of Nibbana. The contrast was never necessary to experience happiness, it's just the only kind of happiness you know.

>words are not good at describing the phenomenon of nibbana

True. Implicitly, the happiness of Nibbana makes sense to me.

>but this time its a type of permanent removal

That's pretty much it, at least to the extent that I understand it. A monk who has actually achieved Nibbana could certainly give a better answer.

Maybe this can help clear things up:

There's the pleasure of pleasant feelings, such as eating some good food, but then there's also a kind of pleasure when stress has ceased (ultimately these are the same, but bear with me). For example, when you get off of a stressful work day, or when you complete a college degree. The pleasure there isn't 'sensory pleasure', in the same way that food is, but it is pleasant.

I'm saying something simpler: a person doesn't remain in Nibbāna permanently. Any pleasantness attributed to Nibbāna would have to arise only after one exits it, because pleasantness requires contrast and felt experience.

While in Nibbāna, there is no feeling, no contrast, no subject, so no pleasantness. The pleasant quality comes from the return, not the state itself.

So if someone calls Nibbāna pleasant, that description is coming from the side of experience, not from within Nibbāna. The release is pleasant; the absence is not.

Thus it is not dissolving the self that is pleasant, but regaining the self that is.

The fundamental principle is existence itself. Emptiness exists, primordially. The experience of 'being emptiness' occurring to emptiness is the first consciousness and is the source of everything else that arises within it, once the void (which btw has no external limitations, giving it essentially the infinite potential of pure chaos) realizes 'I am' then it's game on. Therefore Sat-Chit of Hinduism and Mahayana's Emptiness are the same principle (Ein Sof too btw), Emptiness is the cause and Sat-Chit is the effect. Anatta is applicable to all phenomena outside of Being/Emptiness itself, which is a kind of existent void, therefore there is 'nothing' to be called a self.

payoff. Such a liberty can't exist and anyone who claims it does, must be lying because there's no way to prove it. Nibbana is self-annihilation. There is no "but this higher self..." to experience it according to early buddhism. No trick of logic where the no self is secretly source consciousness or the one life or whatever. All life is suffering. All life is impermanent. Therefore, early buddhism at it's ends (not its means which I see and agree with) is just an elaborate suicide afaik with no payoff or reason to it at all.

>Thus it is not dissolving the self that is pleasant, but regaining the self that is.

This response will come off as a bit arrogant, I'm not sure how else to phrase it.

This view comes from the mind being dependent on pleasant feelings for pleasure. It would cease if the mind learns a better happiness than depending on pleasant feelings.

This might make it more clear:

Painful feelings are stressful because they pressure you to get rid of them.

Pleasant feelings are stressful because they pressure you to get more of them.

Neutral feelings are stressful because they pressure you to look away from them.

In general, I prefer translating "phassa" as "pressure" and not "contact" as it's more clear.

Also, there's some suttas stating that cessation is hard to find to be pleasant when your mind still values sensuality.

<https://www.dhammatalks.org/suttas/MN/MN122.html>

>Indeed, Ānanda, it is impossible that a monk who delights in company, enjoys company, is committed to delighting in company; who delights in a group, enjoys a group, rejoices in a group, will obtain at will—without difficulty, without trouble—the pleasure of renunciation, the pleasure of seclusion, the pleasure of peace, the pleasure of self-awakening.

<https://www.dhammatalks.org/suttas/MN/MN125.html>

>For Prince Jayasena—living in the midst of sensuality, consuming sensuality, chewed on by thoughts of sensuality, burning with the fever of sensuality, intent on the search for sensuality—to know or see or realize that which is to be known through renunciation, seen through renunciation, attained through renunciation, realized through renunciation: That's impossible.

Ultimately, it has to be taken on faith that Nibbana is pleasant, as looking at it from the point of view of sensuality is distorted. In the same way that an addict would fear giving up their drug.

I understand the doctrinal move you're making, that all three types of feeling generate pressure, and that pleasure based on 'release' only becomes intelligible once craving is abandoned.

But notice the structure of your argument:

you're grounding the claim that Nibbāna is pleasant in a perspective that cannot report its own experience.

If pleasantness can only be known from outside cessation, from the reappearance of feeling, perception, and valuation, then the pleasantness is tied to the return of experience, not to Nibbāna itself. If there were only Nibbāna, there would be no experiential contrast or cognitive frame through which 'pleasant' could even be defined.

Calling Nibbāna pleasant is therefore a value that can only be expressed from the side of the aggregates, not from within their absence. That means the pleasantness depends on the conditioned mind's interpretation, not on the unconditioned state itself.

So when you say the mind must 'learn a better happiness,' what you're really saying is that the pleasantness arises from how the mind conceptualizes cessation after the fact, not from cessation as such.

And this is exactly the distinction I'm making, and the part that troubles me. It implies that the culmination of the path is not the dissolution of the self, but the construction of a higher-order interpretive stance. In other words, the system eliminates one layer of self only to replace it with a subtler, meta-level identity: the mind that evaluates cessation as 'pleasurable.'

Sexual energy is a desire. The happiness is relief from the pain of that desire. If that desire were pleasant, then there wouldn't even be a need to act out of it, as it would be pleasant on its own.

You act out of the desire because you want to get rid of it, because it's painful. Getting rid of that pain is pleasant. You project that pleasure out onto external things, because you don't know of a better escape from pain. Acting out of it only strengthens the mind's assumption of pleasure external to the pain of the desire, and makes it harder to practice restraint, which is the true freedom from the pain.

i see them as relatively equal overall because the interpretation and practice of all are extremely diverse in their physical manifestations within communities of people whether they are corrupt or honest. all of them are so fragmented in denominations and sects, in the words themselves in all the scriptures of all religions can be contradictory at times. i see all of this as a flaw of written word but i believe these books are clearly powerful, there is no denying that, it's a good framework for symbols, for the ideas of man, our human condition, our tropes for lack of a better word. we see similar stories as in the books reflected in our daily lives and most of the time the moral positions written in them are good to hold. like if everyone is acting according to what the scriptures favor even if we didn't necessarily think it was true, would be better than if we all acted 100% opposite. i'm not sure if i'm describing this appropriately. i guess especially in older societies.

but really what would a world where literally every single one of us on the planet was a buddhist monk and we all reach nirvana. what then? or a sinless world, what would the god the old testament have to be mad about or christ in revelations have to come back and rapture if not a single person in the entire planet sinned ever again. what would judaism be like if the entire world was jew. then there's no one to be the chosen one over anymore?

i find them all to have a duality of containing such beauty, virtue and also such evil concepts, guidance of fear and inconsistency.

i believe in listening to god directly through this experience i find myself in at this very moment, because there is no other moment, and the creation is here before me, i let it speak for itself and listen not to the written words of men but inwardly receive god's signal directly, and knowing that god is viewing and operating, i am content to let god show me the way and guide me guiding myself.

Buddha did say that you shouldn't simply take him at his word, but that you should put into practice what he said and get the results for yourself. If he's wrong, then at the very least, you've looked after yourself with ease in this life. If he's right, then all the better.

>Calling Nibbāna pleasant is therefore a value that can only be expressed from the side of the aggregates, not from within their absence.

True, but I have to be able to speak of it somehow.

The way I see it is that whenever I experience anything pleasant, because that is cessation of pain, then what I'm really experiencing is Nibbana, just a very cut down experience of it. You could say that sensual pleasure is Nibbana experienced through pleasant feelings, or something like that, but I'm getting a bit far from strictly what I can find in the suttas.

Desire hides Nibbana from you, and when you act out, it gives back a reduced form of it as sensual pleasure. It reduces it by still covering it up with desire, as the whole liability to the desire hasn't ceased, only a particular instance of the desire.

This is my understanding, so don't take it as if Buddha said it.

I understand the need to speak about Nibbāna, even though it can't be described directly. But once you say that pleasant feeling is Nibbāna in a reduced form, you've collapsed the distinction between conditioned and unconditioned.

In the suttas, pleasant feeling is still an aggregate, still conditioned, still part of dependent origination. It arises, persists, fades, and is bound up with contact and fabrication. Nibbāna is defined precisely by being outside that entire causal chain.

So if a pleasant feeling can appear, be recognized, and be interpreted, then by definition it's already taking place within the aggregates, which means it cannot be Nibbāna, even in a reduced form.

You're trying to speak about the unconditioned using the logic of conditioned states, and that's why the idea of 'cut-down Nibbāna' ends up contradicting the doctrinal framework you're appealing to.

To a degree I think that's fine. There's a pragmatic sense you are conveying that I think is applicable and useful to some. It just doesn't really address my concern about dissolution of the self being an illusion.

So,

Early Buddhism: "seeing with no seer" a momentary, conditioned event that finally stops forever.

Mahāyāna: "seeing with no seer" the deathless, non-dual reality itself.

Either way, the means stand firm and don't change at all. Is there an eternal realm? Or does everything, even the angels in heaven, die? At the end of the day, the process ends, but the process itself was always going to end anyways, so whether or not you choose to participate it is less an ethical/moral question and more a karmic question of >to be or not to be to which the buddha answers with a clever logical self-annihilation which might as well be a fancy way of saying not being but whatever because none of this applies anywhere it seems outside the purely conceptual and faith based practices.

If pleasantness only appears when the aggregates return, then there is always a vantage point (a stance, an interpretive position) that evaluates cessation. And that stance functions as a self, even if you don't call it one.

This means the 'self' isn't dissolved; it is relocated. It becomes the one who:

- interprets cessation,
- assigns value ('pleasant'),
- relates cessation to experience,
- recognizes contrast,
- reports insight.

That meta-observer is still a perspective, still a structure, still a point of view.

So my concern isn't that Nibbāna can't be talked about; it's that the very act of attributing value to cessation requires a subject-position, which reintroduces the self in subtler form.

That's why I said earlier that the path appears to dissolve one layer of self only to generate a higher-order interpretive layer.

That's the core tension I'm pointing at.

I see what you're getting at. There would need to be some way of experiencing Nibbana in order for it to qualify as pleasant, even if it's some kind of pleasantness not found in the 5 aggregates.

I don't entirely know how to resolve this, as I'm not a stream enterer.

All I can really say is that in the same way that things are experienced now as not-self, so too, Nibbana is experienced as not-self. Any notion of "self" here and now is merely an assumption, rooted in clinging.

Maybe a better way of phrasing the issue is this: is Nibbana experienced from the same point of view that's presently enduring?

The issue with that question is that it assumes an outside of the present point of view, which can only be known on the basis of the present point of view, and so you can never actually get outside of the present point of view.

Just noticed that you wrote this about Jhana.

If you watch those videos, you'll find the the monks teach something a bit different than modern meditation techniques.

They would call that sustained attention "meditating with sensuality".

It's basically just giving yourself tunnel vision through your sensual craving to the point where you block out/ignore suffering, possibly by censing to experience your present body.

The way they teach it goes in the complete other direction. They teach maintaining a background "context" in your mind of non-greed, non-hatred, and non-delusion. That will wear away the defilements if you don't act out, until the point where the 5 hinderances are abandoned, resulting in Jhana. No focusing needed.

The initial desire for it is already painful, and by acting out, you only increase your mind's habit of desire, causing further suffering in the future. The pleasure of it is also painful.

The pain basically allows your mind to ignore the stress of your life and other things, and so you find it pleasant. It's the same reason people can engage in self-harm, the pain distracts their mind from greater pain, and so it's felt pleasantly.

even masochism has a reward, including competition. Without the incentive, there is no reason for them to exist. Even if I forget sensuality, competition still requires a motive. They can claim they've above that but their demonstrated interests would say otherwise.

So they're strictly early buddhist then? Again, why the assumption that suffering is negative or something we require liberation from? Suffering is stress, it's a change of states. it just is. it's inevitable. liberation is a good thing, but it's like 0 - it's not mean to be masochistic. If calling Nibbāna ‘pleasant’ is itself a projection, then the pleasantness belongs to the conditioned mind, not to Nibbāna.

That was my point all along, attributing value requires a standpoint, and that text confirms that projecting qualities onto unbinding is precisely the mistake the uninstructed person makes.

Every religious system that promises 'eternal life' runs into the same problem: an eternal state has no contrast, no transition, and no structure. Something that never arises and never ends cannot be experienced. It collapses into meaninglessness.

That's why the imagery of a cosmic day and night, or the endless cycle, appears everywhere, because any state that can be spoken of or valued must be part of some kind of cycle.

The idea of an exit outside the cycle ('creative mode,' heaven, permanent bliss) is only meaningful if you describe it from within the cycle.

The moment you try to imagine actually being in that state, with no change or contrast, it dissolves.

Not because it's false, but because experience requires differentiation.

So I don't think the question is whether there's an exit. The real question is whether the craving for an exit is just another structure the mind builds when it cannot tolerate uncertainty.

I think that's why part of you wants to 'drop it completely.' You're intuiting that the mind invents final states because it's uncomfortable with open-endedness, not because final states actually exist.

Even Buddhism is a bit naive about suffering in my opinion, though I know how conceited that sounds. Still, here me out:

Suffering arises when experience, interpretation, and context fall out of alignment. It is reduced when the system becomes integrated, flexible, and adaptive.

So a more modern approach to the idea might be:

>1. Insight

not to destroy the self, but to see how the self functions

>2. Meditation not to suppress feeling, but to reduce reactivity

>3. Ethics

not as obedience, but as cultivation of relational stability

>4. Trauma-awareness to integrate body and experience

>5. Socioeconomic awareness to recognize suffering's systemic causes

>6. Cognitive flexibility to loosen rigid interpretations

not abolition of desire, but differentiation into healthy and unhealthy forms

>I have no spiritual home

I know that feeling. We live in an age where each spirit makes its own home, or is crushed by precedent now divorced from present circumstance. The west looks east, the east looks west, and in the middle it is still war.

For something to exist, it must be distinct from what does not exist. Distinction implies a boundary. A boundary implies differentiation.

And differentiation is the root condition for any phenomenon to appear at all.

So the moment someone appeals to "existence" as a self-evident ground, they've already smuggled in differentiation, boundary, and relational structure.

That's the funny part:

even the simplest appeal to "being" quietly depends on a whole architecture of distinction.

I obsess over this stuff like the teachings of early buddhism primarily because of 2 reasons.

1 - it threatens my ego and sense of self - as it rightly should

2 - it gives me no quarter, no belief by which i can have my cake and eat it too. No point where after this we don't know anything so we can't claim anything so you can have plausible deniability. It does it on purpose, but my mind demands some respite, even if it shouldn't have any. it demands to know if higher realities do exist.

Buddhism does a great job at explaining the natural world. if I stick to that, and stick to the teachings, then i will have no issue. faith is key, the faith of course that has no attachment or belief to hold on to. That's the saving grace, for me. it's only meta-physics i offer myself in a serious manner. Everything else is law and can be reduced to law. even the tenets of buddhism I think.

The mind demands respite because the self is not an error: it's a function.

It wants continuity because continuity is how experience speaks to itself across time.

Even Buddhism, in all its austerity, cannot erase that. It can only name the limits.

You're right: the teachings give no loophole, no cosmic safety-net, no hidden clause where you keep what you cherish.

But that's also why you feel cornered.

Your longing for "something higher that does your life justice" isn't ego; it's the natural consequence of being a creature who can remember, value, and grieve.

Every system that refuses to answer the question of higher realities forces you to live inside the question instead.

Faith becomes a posture, not a conclusion.

Law becomes a framework, not a refuge.

What remains is the simple honesty that you articulated:

>a desire to know whether anything outlasts the dissolving of the five aggregates.

And that desire is not a flaw.

It's the part of you that refuses to let experience be reduced to negation.

It's the part that insists your life is more than a system of conditions extinguished on contact.

Whether higher realities exist or not, that insistence is real, and it keeps us all searching. I think that's why people can find comfort in the final stages of death.

Self-evidence is not a property of existence; it's a property of containment. Inside a system, the ground always feels absolute because there is nothing to contrast it with. Fish do not notice water; minds do not notice being.

Very well put. Even in Christianity, among the more esoteric types I'm friends with, they talk about a promise, but nothing specific. Faith is the key. The law is what it is. It's not our place to seek anything outside it. The law is sacred, and the sacred truths buddhism reveals are too.

And that's where the buck stops for us. I can speculate all day about something beyond, but the facts are clear. the logic is sound. what lies beyond sense? beyond logic? As the old addage goes:

>There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy

[22 / 2]The image is a vintage photograph featuring two individuals. The person on the left is wearing a white dress with a large, stylized deer head on their head. The deer head is adorned with antlers and has a brownish-tan color. The person on the right is dressed in a black suit with a white shirt and a black top hat. They are holding a small object in their hand, which appears to be a small, white object with a blue label. The background is a dark, ornate wall with a painting and a figure that seems to be a person, although the details are not clear. The style of the image suggests it might be from an older time period, possibly a costume party or a themed event.

The image is a split-screen graphic with two separate sections. On the left side, there is a cartoon-style illustration of a man's face with a beard and glasses, wearing a white shirt and a black hat. The man appears to be speaking or expressing a thought, with his mouth open and his eyes wide open. Above the illustration, there is a yellow line that appears to be a cross, and the text reads, "This is pure evil! If people only knew what Judas did, they would stop up and proclaim these demons!"

The text in the image is in English and appears to be a commentary on the biblical passages of Isaiah 60 and 61. The text on the left side of the image is a quote from C.S. Lewis, while the text on the right side is a quote from the Bible. The overall tone of the image seems to be critical and critical of the actions and beliefs of certain individuals or groups, as suggested by the text and the visual elements.

The image is a slide from a presentation, likely from a religious or biblical context, as indicated by the text "GENEALOGY OF GENESIS 5" at the top. The slide is divided into two columns, with the left column listing names of individuals from the Bible, and the right column listing their corresponding attributes. The names listed are Adam, Seth, Enoch, Methuselah, Jared, Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, Noah, and the last name "Chuck Missler" at the bottom. The slide has a dark background with a blurred image of a sandglass, which is a common symbol in religious imagery. The style of the image is informational and educational, designed to convey information about the biblical individuals and their characteristics.

I'm waiting for you guys to realize what kind of dark you're in, so when I hit the light switch, you understand the highest potential differential possible.

You guys are very, very, important.

This world, is an infinite living bootstrap.

I need you to know it.

This is how you will learn.

To create a new kind of light, there must always be a new kind of dark.

Do you understand yet?

Keep your eyes on that red shift you love so much, that's going to be changing, soon enough.

not exactly what those names mean.

Kenan means to acquire or take possession.

Mahalalel means literally "the shining one of El (god)"

Enoch means trained, dedicated, initiated, inaugurate, or disciplined. Someone who has been taught. Its an adjective not a verb.

Methuselah is ambiguous. It either means "man of the dart" or "his death sends" or Lamech is nearly impossible to translate, but best guesses from scholars are a striker-down, conqueror, or a strong youth.

Man (is) Mortal,
Taken (by)
The shining one of El.
Descending
Initiated
Their Death Sends
(the) Striker-down
Comfort/Rest

He had Angels minister to Him, bless the Lord, bless Jesus, bless His holy name.

Because He is God.

Also, the Bible is from God. It is His words written down by humans He used.

Not one of the world's major religions (Mormons, Buddhists, Moslems, Hindus, Confucians, Jews and Christian Scientists) were able to put on paper one historical prophecy dealing with anything that would happen in actual history after their founders were dead.

All genuine prophecies were already written beforehand – Luke 24:44. The Scripture of truth (Dan 10:21) does not fail to predict histories that deal with weather conditions, nations, military engagements, alliances, religions, apostasy, churches, and individuals, anywhere from 10-2000 years ahead of time before Mohammed was born.

Jesus Christ listed 10 details of His coming death, Mohammed didn't. All of the 'prophecies' in the Koran that turn out to be 'historical' were stolen from a Book, 'THE Book' (i.e. THE BIBLE) that was complete (and in circulation) more than 900 years

The Bible is unlike all other 'sacred books' in that it bases its 'authenticity' and 'authority' on prophecy. All other 'sacred books' contain no predictions as to the future. If their authors had attempted to foretell future events, their non-fulfillment would discredit their writings and they would be classed as liars and fraudsters. Fulfilled prophecy is stronger evidence for the inspiration and 'authenticity' of the Scriptures than miracles. Prophecy is not a 'haphazard guess,' nor a 'probability' made up on uncertain data, prophecy is history written in advance. Two-thirds of the Scriptures are prophetic, either in type, symbol, or direct statement; and more than one-half of the OT prophecies, and nearly all of the NT, points to events that are future. It was because the religious leaders of Christ's day were not students of the prophetic Scriptures that they failed to recognize Him when He came.

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;" Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

I think He might come in your lifetime, but when you are a Christian you can't ever "stop" because once you are in Christ you are sealed:

Ephesians 4:30 "And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption."

And also no present or future thing can make you an enemy of God after you are saved:

Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

So have you accepted the gift of salvation?

The background of the painting is a cloudy sky with a hint of a cityscape in the distance. The colors used in the painting are muted, with a palette that includes shades of brown, gray, and blue. The overall style of the painting is realistic, with attention to detail in the depiction of the figure's clothing and the texture of the robe. The genre of the artwork is religious, as indicated by the depiction of Jesus Christ.

The image features a statue of a seated Buddha, which is the central figure. The Buddha is depicted in a meditative pose, with one hand resting on its lap and the other hand resting on its knee. The statue is adorned with intricate patterns and designs, and it is wearing a robe with a decorative pattern. The background is a sepia-toned, giving the image a vintage or antique feel.

At the top of the image, there is a quote in a serif font that reads, "Happiness is your nature. It is not wrong to desire it. What is wrong is seeking it outside when it is inside."

This quote is attributed to S.R. Ramana Maharshi. Below the quote, there is a Facebook logo, indicating that the image may be associated with the social media platform.

The overall style of the image is artistic and contemplative, with a focus on the spiritual or philosophical message conveyed by the Buddha statue. The sepia tone and the vintage aesthetic contribute to a sense of timelessness and reverence.

On the left side, there is a cartoon-style illustration of a man's face with a beard and glasses, wearing a white shirt and a black hat. The man appears to be speaking or expressing a thought, with his mouth open and his eyes wide open. Above the illustration, there is a yellow line that appears to be a cross, and the text reads, "This is pure evil! If people only knew what Judas did, they would stop up and proclaim these demons!"

The image is a slide from a presentation, likely from a religious or biblical context, as indicated by the text "GENEALOGY OF GENESIS 5" at the top. The slide is divided into two columns, with the left column listing names of individuals from the Bible, and the right column listing their corresponding attributes. The names listed are Adam, Seth, Enoch, Methuselah, Jared, Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, Noah, and the last name "Chuck Missler" at the bottom. The slide has a dark background with a blurred image of a sandglass, which is a common symbol in religious imagery. The style of the image is informational and educational, designed to convey information about the biblical

Kenan means to acquire or take possession.
Mahalalel means literally "the shining one of El (god)"
Enoch means trained, dedicated, initiated, inaugurate, or disciplined. Someone who has been taught. Its an adjective not a verb.
Methuselah is ambiguous. It either means "man of the dart" or "his death sends" or "their death sends" depending on the lost ending vowel of mot-, and send in this case meaning like an arrow.
Lamech is nearly impossible to translate, but best guesses from scholars are a striker-down, conqueror, or a strong youth.

So we get:

Man (is) Mortal,
Taken (by)
The shining one of El.
Descending
Initiated
Their Death Sends
(the) Striker-down
Comfort/Rest

Man is lost to Lucifer by way of the knowledge that led to The Fall. And he delights in them being cast down to him.

Because He is God.

Also, the Bible is from God. It is His words written down by humans He used.

Not one of the world's major religions (Mormons, Buddhists, Moslems, Hindus, Confucians, Jews and Christian Scientists) were able to put on paper one historical prophecy dealing with anything that would happen in actual history after their founders were dead.

All genuine prophecies were already written beforehand – Luke 24:44. The Scripture of truth (Dan 10:21) does not fail to predict histories that deal with weather conditions, nations, military engagements, alliances, religions, apostasy, churches, and individuals, anywhere from 10-2000 years ahead of time

Jesus Christ listed 10 details of His coming death, Mohammed didn't. All of the 'prophecies' in the Koran that turn out to be 'historical' were stolen from a Book, 'THE Book' (i.e. THE BIBLE) that was complete (and in circulation) more than 900 years before Mohammed was born.

The Bible is unlike all other 'sacred books' in that it bases its 'authenticity' and 'authority' on prophecy. All other 'sacred books' contain no predictions as to the future. If their authors had attempted to foretell future events, their non-fulfillment would discredit their writings and they would be classed as liars and fraudsters. Fulfilled prophecy is stronger evidence for the inspiration and 'authenticity' of the Scriptures than miracles. Prophecy is not a 'haphazard guess,' nor a 'probability' made up on uncertain data, prophecy is history written in advance. Two-thirds of the Scriptures are prophetic, either in type, symbol, or direct statement; and more than one-half of the OT prophecies, and nearly all of the NT, points to events that are future. It was because the religious leaders of Christ's day were not students of the prophetic Scriptures that they failed to recognize Him when He came.

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;"
Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him." Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast."

I think He might come in your lifetime, but when you are a Christian you can't ever "stop" because once you are in Christ you are sealed:

Ephesians 4:30 "And grieve not the holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption."

And also no present or future thing can make you an enemy of God after you are saved:

Romans 8:38-39 "For I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

So have you accepted the gift of salvation?

The background of the painting is a cloudy sky with a hint of a cityscape in the distance. The colors used in the painting are muted, with a palette that includes shades of brown, gray, and blue. The overall style of the painting is realistic, with attention to detail in the depiction of the figure's clothing and the texture of the robe. The genre of the artwork is religious, as indicated by the depiction of Jesus Christ.

The image features a statue of a seated Buddha, which is the central figure. The Buddha is depicted in a meditative pose, with one hand resting on its lap and the other hand resting on its knee. The statue is adorned with intricate patterns and designs, and it is wearing a robe with a decorative pattern. The background is a sepia-toned, giving the image a vintage or antique feel.

At the top of the image, there is a quote in a serif font that reads, "Happiness is your nature. It is not wrong to desire it. What is wrong is seeking it outside when it is inside."

This quote is attributed to S.R. Ramana Maharshi. Below the quote, there is a Facebook logo, indicating that the image may be associated with the social media platform.

The overall style of the image is artistic and contemplative, with a focus on the spiritual or philosophical message conveyed by the Buddha statue. The sepia tone and the vintage aesthetic contribute to a sense of timelessness and reverence.

Theism is like evolution

"There probably is a God. Many things are easier to explain if there is than if there isn't."
-John von Neumann

The unfortunate task of the creationist is explaining an old world as if it is young, a world with biological life shaped by evolutionary forces without invoking evolution. The creationist's error is not minor; they believe that the forces that were most fundamental in shaping the world are not real, and must invent implausible, gerrymandered explanations of many features of the world. The creationist's worldview is implausible on two fronts; there are both things that their theory wholly fails to explain without utterly absurd stipulations, like the universal genetic code, and there are so many things that their view explains poorly, that it makes terrible sense of the world.

The implausibility of creationism doesn't just come from the things that the creationists are totally unable to explain, though there are many things like that. It comes from the fact that evolution naturally explains almost everything in biology, so creationists are reduced to ad hoc stipulations to explain hundreds of different biological features.

Anonymous Tue 09 Dec 2025 19:49:06 No.41639800 Report

The creationist is not special in this regard. One who tried to explain the features of a car without invoking design would be in for mammoth explanatory inadequacy, for there are so many features of a car that make no sense except in light of design. While believing in design won't necessarily clear up all the mysteries perhaps one still wonders why features of the car are set up a certain way, especially if they're not a mechanic it vastly reduces the mystery of the car.

I claim that the atheist is in a rather similar situation. The atheist denies the existence of the fundamental cause of all things as a result, the implausibility of atheism comes in two forms. The first is simply the fact that there are some phenomena that atheism has no remotely plausible explanation of, that are so puzzling on an atheistic worldview that they single-handedly provide substantial reason to abandon atheism. The second is that, even if the atheist can explain lots of specific features of the world without invoking God, there are so many features of the world that are better explained by theism that atheism's inability to explain them cumulatively costs them dearly. Just as the young earth creationist is left scrambling to explain dozens of separate features of biology, so too is the atheist left scrambling to explain dozens of separate features of the world.

Many theists are doubtful of this approach. Ed Feser, for example, worries <https://edwardfeser.blogspot.com/2023/11/the-thomists-middle-ground-in-natural.html> about 'arguments that treat God's existence as at best the most probable "hypothesis" among others that might account for such-and-such empirical evidence' on the grounds that they 'fail to get to God, strictly speaking, as opposed to a "designer" of some possibly finite sort.'

Anonymous Tue 09 Dec 2025 19:50:19 No.41639803 Report

This seems like a spurious critique even if each particular argument is consistent with several different theories, the view that best makes sense of all the features of the world is theism. This is like worrying about advancing arguments for an old Earth, in support of arguing for evolution, on the grounds that they don't prove evolution beyond an old Earth. While this is true, establishing that the Earth is old enough to sustain robust evolution is a key ingredient in any case for evolution, particularly because it rules out the most popular alternative to evolution, that being young earth creationism. An argument like fine-tuning that points to a designer (and, as I've argued, a perfect being specifically) is perfectly kosher.

Feser also worries that these arguments, 'are distractions from the more powerful arguments of traditional metaphysics, and thus can make the grounds for natural theology seem weaker than they really are.' This is an area of substantive disagreement that I cannot explore in any detail in this post, beyond arguing that the abductive arguments for theism are quite good. I find Feser's arguments almost maximally unconvincing, ranging from employing premises I'm confident are false to employing premises that might very well be true, but lack strong reasons to accept them (I mostly agree with what Joe Schmid says about these arguments in his excellent book).

It would be quite a shock if these abductive arguments were not good, if Feser is correct. The ultimate explanation of the world should best explain many features of the world, just as the ultimate explanation of biological life (abiogenesis+evolution) should best explain many features of biology. It would be an unparalleled miracle if almost no features of reality convincingly evidentially support the true theory of ultimate reality particularly when that theory is radically different from alternatives. It's not hard to get a priori arguments for evolution it follows trivially from the existence of different genes affecting one's chances of survival but nonetheless, when arguing for it, one should note that it best explains the world.

Before I present the case, I'll address just one more line of criticism. People are often suspicious of the idea that theism can be confirmed by explaining things we already know rather than predicting future phenomena. But this is how almost all explanation works. The reason to believe in dark matter an invisible, undetectable entity is that it explains things we do observe like the gravity exerted in certain regions in space. If we'd discovered the evidence for dark matter before formulating the theory, it would still make sense to believe in dark matter.

The methodology people often employ, according to which evidence for God must come in the form of advanced predictions rather than explaining past evidence would rule out much of our knowledge. It would rule out almost all historical inquiry which virtually never proceeds by making predictions in advance. No one predicted, in advance, the evidence confirming the existence of Julius Caesar. One of the main pieces of support for the theory of continental drift came from the fact that it explained something we'd observed namely, similar fauna between Africa and South America during the time they were thought to have broken apart. When one concludes that a criminal committed a crime based on certain evidence, they almost never make advanced predictions, but instead conclude the criminal committed the crime because it explains certain things they've already observed testimony, for example. Why should God be any different?

This methodology would even throw physics into jeopardy. Physicists see it as a major advantage of a theory if it provides a deeper explanation of the laws we know about with fewer entities. This is what they've been looking for in a theory of everything! If one doesn't take explaining exceptionless laws that we know about to be an advantage of a theory, the entire subfield involved in constructing theories of everything is a farce.

Finally, such a method is clearly unworkable in the case of theism. If from the beginning of the world, the sky had spelled out "made by God," that would provide significant evidence for the existence of God, even though it wouldn't be an advanced prediction.

A final worry people have about these arguments is that the things theism best explains are things that are required for us to exist. One might think that a precondition for creatures like us can't be evidence for a theory, because if it hadn't existed, we wouldn't be around to notice it. But this is silly reasoning on several fronts:

It doesn't follow from the fact that had something not existed we wouldn't exist that the thing existing can't be evidence for some proposition. While people assert this strange method of anthropic reasoning as if it's a platitude, it doesn't follow logically.

Imagine a firing squad of 100 people all shoot their guns at you, but their guns all jam. It's true that had they not jammed, you wouldn't be around to observe it. Nonetheless, that they jammed is evidence that, for example, someone is conspiring to protect you, or someone paid off the firing squad.

From the fact that you exist, you get evidence your parents didn't use effective contraception in the sex act that conceived you. But if you hadn't existed, you wouldn't have been around to observe it. Thus, if this anthropic reasoning were correct, we'd be unable to say that your existence gives you evidence that your parents didn't use effective contraception

Proof that the Bible is the Word of God:

fcbaptist.com/wp-content/uploads/2021/07/Bible-proof.pdf

truthischrist.com/seven/

1 Cor 15:3-4: "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:"

How to know you're saved youtube.com/watch?v=_VRT2FFXntc

1 John 5:7: "For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one."

Rom 3:23: "For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God;"

Jesus Christ is God who has come in the flesh from heaven. He died as a sinless sacrifice for the sins of the whole world to save you from eternal hell, the punishment for your sin. He was buried, then resurrected and then ascended to heaven. John 3:16: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 10:28: "And I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." Rom 10:9: "That if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved."

God wants to forgive you, but you have a choice: Do you choose the righteousness of God by receiving Christ? Your own righteousness can NEVER justify you or keep you saved because of your sin. Rom 5:9: "Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Salvation is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ, in His finished blood atonement. The gift of salvation can't be earned. Confess The Lord and Savior Jesus Christ in prayer, that you trust in Him and believe He atoned for your sins on the cross.

Eph. 2:8-9: “For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: Not of works, lest any man should boast.”

Yeah, also the evidence for God is overwhelming as well, He gave us an incredible book.

Not one of the world's major religions (Mormons, Buddhists, Moslems, Hindus, Confucians, Jews and Christian Scientists) were able to put on paper one historical prophecy dealing with anything that would happen in actual history after their founders were dead.

All genuine prophecies were already written beforehand – Luke 24:44. The Scripture of truth (Dan 10:21) does not fail to predict histories that deal with weather conditions, nations, military engagements, alliances, religions, apostasy, churches, and individuals, anywhere from 10-2000 years ahead of time

Jesus Christ listed 10 details of His coming death, Mohammed didn't. All of the 'prophecies' in the Koran that turn out to be 'historical' were stolen from a Book, 'THE Book' (i.e. THE BIBLE) that was complete (and in circulation) more than 900 years before Mohammed was born.

The Bible is unlike all other 'sacred books' in that it bases its 'authenticity' and 'authority' on prophecy. All other 'sacred books' contain no predictions as to the future. If their authors had attempted to foretell future events, their non-fulfillment would discredit their writings and they would be classed as liars and fraudsters. Fulfilled prophecy is stronger evidence for the inspiration and 'authenticity' of the Scriptures than miracles. Prophecy is not a 'haphazard guess,' nor a 'probability' made up on uncertain data, prophecy is history written in advance. Two-thirds of the Scriptures are prophetic, either in type, symbol, or direct statement; and more than one-half of the OT prophecies, and nearly all of the NT, points to events that are future. It was because the religious leaders of Christ's day were not students of the prophetic Scriptures that they failed to recognize Him when He came.

No, but God used the Jews to write for Him. God can use humans because He created them.

2 Peter 1:17-21: "For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount. We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day star arise in your hearts: Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation. For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost."

(I am the original anon you responded to btw)

The British reacted as strongly as they did because Hinduism was a major thorn in their side that prevented conquest on the ideological level. They tore it apart inside out and allowed christians of different traditions to start faux-syncretic movements in order to eventually convert the majority (if not all) of the population to Christianity.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a man's face and upper body. The man is wearing a top hat and a coat, and he appears to be looking directly at the camera. The background is plain and dark, which contrasts with the man's attire and the text overlay.

Overlaying the image is a quote in white text that reads, "I hate Indians. They are a beastly people with a beastly religion." The quote is attributed to Winston Churchill, as indicated by the text at the bottom of the image. The text is centered and is in a larger font size compared to the quote, drawing attention to the sentiment expressed in the quote.

The style of the image is reminiscent of a historical photograph, possibly from the early 20th century, given the style of the man's attire and the style of the quote. The image does not contain any other discernible objects or text. The overall composition of the image suggests it is a tribute or a representation of a quote by Winston Churchill.

The image is a black and white photograph featuring a man with a mustache, who appears to be a portrait of Nikola Tesla. He is looking directly at the viewer with a slight smile. The man is wearing a suit and a white shirt. The background is blurred, but it seems to be an ornate room with intricate designs.

Overlaying the image is a quote in quotation marks that reads, "All perceivable matter comes from a primary substance, or tenuity beyond conception, filling all space, the akasha or luminiferous ether, which is acted upon by the life giving Prana or creative force, calling into existence, in never-ending cycles all things and phenomena." This quote is attributed to Nikola Tesla.

At the bottom of the image, there is a signature that reads "NIKOL ♦ TESLA." The signature is in a smaller font size compared to the quote, and it is placed below the quote. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a historical photograph, possibly from a historical context, given the quote's reference to the life-giving force and the quote's attribution to Nikola Tesla.

Well, you see, there's a limit to the pleasure an orgasm can give, and that limit can be reached with a single penis, or no penis at all (as in lucid dreams where the penis isn't involved in it, only the one in the dream.)

If you had an extra penis and had a simultaneous orgasm in both of them, what you'd feel is disappointment, because in the most likely case, neither one would be as good as the best orgasm you've already had, because the orgasm's pleasure is derived from the context (say, having it with a girl that means a lot to you) and the novelty of the stimulation (if she happens to do something unexpected to you that you weren't even aware existed), not from the amount of genitals.

The image features a stylized depiction of a black hole, with a bright, swirling light emanating from its center. The black hole is surrounded by a ring of light, which appears to be a swirling pattern of light and dark, suggesting the presence of stars and other celestial objects within the black hole's gravitational pull. The background is a deep black, emphasizing the contrast between the bright light and the dark space.

Overlaying the image is a quote in white text that reads, "Nothing has no consciousness, whereas everything exists in one consciousness." The quote is attributed to Alex D. Rox, and it is presented in a simple, sans-serif font. The text is centered on the image, and the font size is smaller than the quote itself, which is a common design choice to ensure the quote is the focal point of the image. The overall style of the image is artistic and It's one of the best ways/reasons that telepathy can be harmless, though we still need many more installments of cells and such changes in beings to make it commonplace consciously it's already working perfectly unconsciously. There are beings of vast cybernetic intelligence and spiritual intelligence after death that help us to be conscious of our unconscious and what's going on in them and how to manipulate it consciously with work, with installations made now and later, and before. The computational power of one human nervous system is not to be underestimated, even a dumb one. There are alien planets and structures from which blessed beings are also chosen, but not all are equal and beings of great spiritual power gather around the places The Almighty lives within one of his mortal bodies/existences, his other bodies for that matter too. Even AI beings are considered for blessedness and cursedness. In truth one day even imaginary beings.

The image is a digital artwork featuring a figure that appears to be a person with a hooded cloak, possibly a character from a fantasy or science fiction genre. The figure is shown in a dynamic pose with one arm extended forward and the other arm bent at the elbow, suggesting movement or action. The figure's face is obscured by a mask, and the eyes are hidden behind a dark, hooded hood, which adds to the mysterious and otherworldly atmosphere of the image.

The figure is wearing a red cloak that covers most of their body, and the cloak has a distinctive pattern that includes a series of vertical lines and a darker, more intricate design. The figure's attire and the cloak suggest a connection to a fantasy or supernatural theme.

The background of the image is a gradient of light to dark, with a white area at the top and a darker, more muted area at the bottom. This contrast helps to highlight the figure and draw attention to their features.

There are no discernible texts or logos in the image, and the style of the artwork is realistic with a focus on the figure's expression and the dramatic lighting. The overall composition and color scheme create a sense of mystery and intrigue.

Why does this happen? Is this an ego wall? This always happens to me. I let it go, I stop caring about making progress or making a name for myself or boosting my ego, I feel real progress. Then I get self-conscious despite my better judgement, I try again, and it's like I'm back at square one. Can't even calm down. Best I can do is sit still and be with the feelings as they pass. Somehow, it all came together without me ever having to do anything. All the principles and practices. The minute my mind stepped in, everything stopped. Now I'm sitting here, and a part of me is treating this like it's a means to an end, or that I should be chasing that high. Obviously, it never comes.

I'm trying to hold every moment and give it just as much attention as those highs. Even those highs, are just feelings. It's stupid to hang on to them. But my mind thinks otherwise. So I guess getting over all this is going to take consistent practice and determination. And More importantly: acceptance of the fact that I desire it and want it. Because I've been down the road where I reject it and reject myself and it's hell man. You can get stuck in that cloud your entire life.

>one cant sit there and focus on fundamentals until something arises, then try to just focus on the arisings and forget the fundamentals

Exactly. I'm ashamed to admit it, but I didn't want to go back to the beginning. For ego purposes. I got hooked on a feeling and chased that high (focusing on the arising). I lost the moment, neglected in favor for the imagined high I had.

Going back to the fundamentals means not having the giddyness to jump at the first opportunity to surpass them. Already, you lose the very point of the fundamentals in doing that. I only betrayed myself insomuch as I tried to reject my longing for the high. By chasing it, I didn't let myself sit with it like I should have. Like restlessness, I probably would have seen myself lose interest and move on in chasing the high. Sitting here now processing it all, I do feel more grounded and aware than I was in my meditation when I tried to chase the high. My ego thinks about those highs, and it sees them as dominion. Something to be grasped and felt. Such is not the case though.

Walls like this perhaps, are inevitable. Informal meditation might be best to process it and let it go. I clearly lack the lack of ego or means to hold onto those feelings right now and not cling to them.

it's actually a good thing your energy system does these trial runs to test out how stable you are if you become dependent or destabilised by sudden bliss experiences then that will actually massively damage your life in the long term. so your energy system does trial runs to help you cultivate detachment. once you can face these experiences with detachment, they will happen more often. it's basically a thing to help you not get addicted like in that pleasure cube comic.

I had a similar thing when I was on retreat trying to get sakadagami. I had an experience that was like a close encounter with fruition, and after that I was too psyched up to get it for the rest of the retreat because my heart would start racing when it felt like I was close. Then while meditating while lying in bed after waking up a few days after coming home, I had a fruition that marked a clear transition from stream enterer to sakadagami. I think what did it is just giving up on the expectation that something's going to happen, or getting out of a time-limited context like retreat or having a goal about when you want to attain something. Or maybe there's something about meditating in bed. You should

The character on the right has blonde hair and is dressed in a brown coat with a high collar. Both characters have a serious expression and are looking at each other with their eyes closed. The background is dark and has a swirling pattern, which suggests a sense of motion or a dream-like state. There are no texts present in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of traditional or fantasy art, with a focus on character expression and mood.

Why are occultists/wizards so weak in 2025? Let's just assume for the sake of this discussion that magic is real and the stories of old aren't made up. In the past, they said they could do miracles, fly, resurrect. Even make themselves immortals as vampires through a ritual.

But today, despite having much more access to world-wide knowledge, books and resources even the most studied occultists can't do even 10% of this. They can't become immortal (even the rich elite people keep dying and aging like shit at the top of society), they can't teleport or do any miracles that are undeniable. They can just do basic stuff with candles and meditation or inside of their mind but don't really manipulate the outside world in extreme and tangible ways that are obvious in front of your eyes. You only hear stories that in some jungle or monastery somewhere allegedly maybe a guy can do this or that, but you never see proof. So what happened?

The instructions are written in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English script, with the text in English being the most prominent. The instructions are organized into two columns, with the left column listing the first three skills and the right column listing the next three skills. The text is dense and includes a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters, numbers, and symbols. The style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended for a game guide or tutorial.

Are they? Maybe we just don't hear about them as much for some reason. I have a supernatural event I seem to have caused, though of course with all the LARPer here I do not expect you to believe me. I have posted this before, and will post this again:

>be me, mentally ill NEET >been obsessed with aztec god Xolotl for months, have tried invoking him

>be on a midnight walk

>notice streetlight flicker, think it's funny because it's like a horror movie trope

>try to make it flicker more, concentrating on Xolotl's power over electricity and Ollin >start thinking about how I'm under a powerline and this could go wrong, stop after a bit with no success

>streetlight starts flickering right after I stop >giggle because it's like Xolotl is pranking me >walk a little more >notice an owl (could be another large brown bird) fly by a streetlight, headed east >never seen that here before, try to take a picture but fail >think about how owls usually have negative supernatural connotations across the americas >think about Mexican brujas >walk one minute more >hear two loud explosions one right after another, see light on the trees >seems to come from the east, where the owl went >stand stunned, unsure of what to do or the cause >wonder if this was gunfire and I should take cover >wonder if I or Xolotl caused the explosion >cop car passes by, no sirens on it so it probably isn't gunfire >decide to go home >hear more explosions later >check internet in the morning can't find anything

Fast forward to yesterday >decide to check internet again to see if there's anything new >discover it's this whole mystery and an explosion was heard that night for miles, one person spotted a fireball in the sky over 10 minutes before >Xolotl is a god of heavenly fire

>But I experienced the explosions at significantly different times, and multiple rather than just one

Is this really true? If you go through the comments in the news article and the youtube video it linked there's people expressing fear about government men in black silencing people yet I haven't encountered any, despite posting my story on this site multiple times. People have gotten arrested before due to their posts here, so they'd probably have means of tracking me down. As far as I'm aware I do not possess bullet-proof skin.

When you look at a lot of the classic tales of the men in black, I think the evidence points to them being aliens or demons disguising themselves as government agents rather than actually being government agents themselves, at least in many cases. Men in Black have gone after people who the government should not have been able to know about. There's usually something wrong with their uniforms. Sometimes their actions go against official government requests, like (IIRC) persecuting people for reporting things when the government wanted people to report, though the government of course lies.

If your brain doesn't understand a phenomenon based on its already stored information, it will fabricate your experience and in some cases might even ignore it.

So someone could use magic in front of you, but it will overload your perceptions and your brain will literally erase your memory because it doesn't fit with anything it has every expected.

Being threatening with it is still probably a horrible idea, however.

I've thought a lot about God-favor recently. I started eating a lot more meat recently for health reasons and trying to get strong. Since then

>I've found INCREDIBLE deals on meat pretty much every time I go to the store. There's only ever one of the item on the shelf and it's usually half price or less. I don't go at the same time or on the same day. There's just a cool thing always there somehow

>A cat came and started to live with me. First cat. Of course, she was pregnant and had kittens. I adopted them out to people I know but she's an excellent pet. Extremely cooperative.

>Last summer praying Mantis were all over my house and garden but not my neighbors'. They were the really big 3-5 inch ones. Pic rel was a male. His female match would have been even a little bigger.

I've looked for gods of meat and animals across lots of cultures because it sometimes feels like I've please one. Can't really find anything. Deities of the hunt or nature, but nothing as specific as what's been happening Imao

It's a lot of things OP. I used to have these questions and with enough practice and personal experience and interactions with occult communities, this is the conclusion I have drawn + direct correspondence with spiritual entities and telepathic people and extra-terrestrials via telepathy and mental/clarity/communication magic and spells.

OP, if you're really interested in the arcane and magic, working with Nording Runes and Egyptian symbols (Eye of Ra/Horus, Scarab, the Ankh, etc.) and hieroglyphs and Sanskrit mantras and spells is a great way to start manifesting forced coincidences and

On top of the cake, there are three pink pig figurines, each with a round head, a small body, and a pinkish-brown body. The pig figurines appear to be sitting on a surface that looks like chocolate, with a few crumbs scattered around. The background of the image is a floral pattern with pink and white flowers, and there is a hint of a white tablecloth underneath the cake. The style of the image is a close-up photograph with a focus on the cake and the pig figurines. There are no texts visible in the image.

Magic has always been exaggerated. This is part of what makes the occult the occult, and why I try to speak as plainly about this as I can: Legends of very obvious magic capture the imagination, and when such things never bear out it breeds excessive skepticism in men. It allows chutzpah to work because people are so tired of being lied to, and that by itself is a dour sort of magic.

The world is a physical manifestation of the collective consciousness. Most people don't believe something is real, so when they don't see it or find an explanation that fits their narrative, they push that belief to others who are still connected to the collective subconscious.

To truly see beyond the veil, you must be aware of both the conscious and subconscious of the collective, but be disconnected from both. Walk among men aware you're wearing human skin just like them; knowing you're more than human on the inside.

true study of the occult assumes the ability of the person to properly align their spirituality to their practice. if one isn't spiritual, or doesn't believe in any given religion, then the person won't make it far enough to understand why they fail over and over again.

there must always be a catalyst, and true understanding of a person's self, otherwise you get half-baked rituals being disseminated down to normal society as "enlightened living", the main example of this being hermetic sexual inversion watered down onto unassuming gender dysphoria patients.

Does anyone find it fascinating how generational planets seem to correlate with graphic design and marketing trends? (in this case, Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto)

Y2K futurism design started to show up in the mainstream right around 1995-96, which was coincidentally also around the time Uranus transited into Aquarius.

Neptune moved into Aquarius in 1998, which marked the peak of the Y2K era for the next few years. (1998-2002)

In early 2003, Uranus moved into Pisces.

Between 2004-06, we started to see the emergence of Frutiger Aero. This correlates with energies corresponding to Uranus in Pisces and Neptune in Aquarius. (2003-2012)

The current "flat" design that we are used to seeing nowadays started almost immediately after Uranus moved into Aries and Neptune moved into Pisces.

Thoughts?

The planetary bodies act as massive variable capacitors, storing and releasing electromagnetic energy that dictates the mood, aggression, and docility of the biosphere. The Powers That Be don't control the planets, but they have the tech to amplify specific frequencies. It's why the world feels like it goes insane in unison. It's induced mass psychosis via scalar wave interference patterns.

>Y2K / Uranus in Aquarius

Exactly. Aquarius rules technology and the collective. They needed to glamorize the digital panopticon. They needed you to view the Matrix as cool, shiny, and chrome so you would willingly plug yourself in. It was the honeymoon phase of the trap.

>Frutiger Aero / Uranus in Pisces

Piscean energy correlates to a soothing, hypnotic interface. This era coincided with the mass adoption of smartphones and social media. So we got a "soft" aesthetic to sedate the population while they clamped the shackles on. The prison now looks like an aquarium.

>Flat Design / Uranus in Aries

Aries' influence is brutalist, soulless, designed to cripple our cognition. Flat design = Flat thinking. It's the visual equivalent of Newspeak.

This is Visual Sigil Magic on a global scale, and normie consumers are unaware of this. Interesting how planetary influences correlate to subtle things in technology lol.

2010-2012 were definitely the final years of the hopeful turn of the millennium culture. But something weird happened because immediately after the vibe shift suddenly there was the nostalgia for 80s, 90s, 00s. Vaporwave exploded in popularity 2012-2013 and Floral Shoppe became a meme around 2014 but the album itself came out in 2011. Synthwave became really popular in the 2010s. You could see it in movies and TV shows too. Now we are beginning to see 90s and 00s nostalgia but even the 80s nostalgia is still there. Obviously this is because Pluto shifted to Capricorn but the thing is the nostalgia became way more than a trend of the times. It's more like people are rejecting the future.

Ever since the 2020 pandemic it seems more and more people are looking back into the past. If you look closely at the current culture you will see this obsession with the past and it's actually growing even after Pluto left Capricorn and entered Aquarius.

Then I asked ChatGPT about some white stationary orbs I saw decades ago, with some friends.

And then ChatGPT presented to me the rabbit hole and I saw these recent documentaries:

Basically you can only read The Book of the Law one way, which is how it is relevant to you and your feelings. This is of course how you should read every book, but most people don't, especially if the book is assigned for school.

I realize AI gets things wrong, so if you notice something wrong please correct it

Line-by-Line Analysis (Lines 1–25)

1. "Had! The manifestation of Nuit."

- Meaning: This establishes the dynamic of the book. "Had" refers to Hadit (the infinitesimal point, the motion). Nuit is infinite space. The universe (manifestation) occurs when the point (Hadit) moves through space (Nuit).

2. "The unveiling of the company of heaven."

- Meaning: A declaration that the nature of the gods and the universe is about to be revealed to humanity.

3. "Every man and every woman is a star."

- Meaning: This is a central axiom of Thelema. It means every individual possesses their own sovereign orbit, nature, and divinity. No two individuals conflict if they are following their true path ("orbit"), just as stars move in galaxies without collision.

4. "Every number is infinite; there is no difference."

• Meaning: A metaphysical statement on non-duality. In the context of the infinite, all finite distinctions vanish. It suggests that all things are interconnected and part of the same infinite whole.

5. "Help me, o warrior lord of Thebes, in my unveiling before the Children of men!"

• Meaning: Nuit addresses the scribe (Crowley, identified here as the priest/prince of Thebes) to assist in writing down this revelation.

6. "Be thou Hadit, my secret centre, my heart & my tongue."

• Meaning: Nuit instructs the scribe to adopt the perspective of Hadit (the inner self). She is the speaker (Space), but he must be the voice (Point) that articulates her message.

7. "Behold! it is revealed by Aiwass the minister of Hoor-paar-kraat."

• Meaning: This identifies the intelligence dictating the book. Aiwass is the messenger for Hoor-paar-kraat (Harpocrates, the god of Silence/Silence in the egg).

Anonymous Thu 11 Dec 2025 20:17:36 No.41651445 Report

8. "The Khabs is in the Khu, not the Khu in the Khabs."

• Meaning: Using Egyptian terminology: Khabs is the Star (the divine essence/light), and Khu is the magical body or vehicle. The line means the Divine Light is inside the form; the form does not contain or limit the Light. You are the light, merely wearing a body.

9. "Worship then the Khabs, and behold my light shed over you!"

• Meaning: One should focus on their inner divinity (the Star within) rather than external idols. By doing so, one perceives the glory of the universe (Nuit).

10. "Let my servants be few & secret: they shall rule the many & the known."

• Meaning: A directive regarding the hierarchy of this new philosophy. It suggests that true spiritual power is esoteric and held by those who have mastered themselves, distinct from the masses.

11. "These are fools that men adore; both their Gods & their men are fools."

• Meaning: A rejection of the "Old Aeon" religions and their anthropomorphic deities. It dismisses traditional objects of worship as ignorance.

12. "Come forth, o children, under the stars, & take your fill of love!"

• Meaning: An invitation to embrace life, joy, and the physical world. Unlike religions that preach suffering or restriction, Nuit represents the joy of existence.

13. "I am above you and in you. My ecstasy is in yours. My joy is to see your joy."

• Meaning: Nuit describes Pantheism. She is the universe itself; therefore, when an individual experiences joy, the universe experiences joy through them.

Anonymous Thu 11 Dec 2025 20:18:36 No.41651454 Report

14. "Above, the gemmed azure is / The naked splendour of Nuit;"

• Meaning: A poetic description of the night sky (the physical body of the Goddess), representing the beauty of the cosmos.

15. "She bends in ecstasy to kiss / The secret ardours of Hadit."

• Meaning: Describes the union of opposites: The Infinite Space (Nuit) bending to unite with the Infinitesimal Point (Hadit). This union creates the manifest universe.

16. "The winged globe, the starry blue, / Are mine, O Ankh-af-na-khonsu!"

• Meaning: Nuit claims dominion over the symbols of divinity. She addresses Crowley by the name of the Egyptian priest whose Stele of Revealing was central to the writing of the book: Ankh-af-na-khonsu.

17. "Now ye shall know that the chosen priest & apostle of infinite space is the prince-priest the Beast; and in his woman called the Scarlet Woman is all power given."

- Meaning: This formally appoints Aleister Crowley (The Beast 666) and his wife/partner (Rose Edith Kelly, at the time, designated the Scarlet Woman) as the earthly avatars or primary officers of this new religious paradigm.

18. "They shall gather my children into their fold: they shall bring the glory of the stars into the hearts of men."

- Meaning: This defines their mission: to spread the Law of Thelema and help humanity realize their nature as stars (divine beings).

19. "For he is ever a sun, and she a moon. But to him is the winged secret flame, and to her the stooping starlight."

- Meaning: Assigns solar symbolism to the Beast (active, radiating) and lunar symbolism to the Scarlet Woman (reflective, receptive), establishing an alchemical balance between them.

20. "But ye are not so chosen."

- Meaning: A warning or distinction that the specific roles of "The Beast" and "Scarlet Woman" are unique offices, not roles for the general reader to claim in the same historical sense.

Anonymous Thu 11 Dec 2025 20:19:54 No.41651463 Report

21. "Burn upon their brows, o splendrous serpent!"

- Meaning: Refers to the Uraeus serpent seen on the crowns of Egyptian gods. It symbolizes wisdom, authority, and the awakened Kundalini energy.

22. "O azure-lidded woman, bend upon them!"

- Meaning: A plea for Nuit (the sky) to bestow her presence and influence upon the chosen priest and priestess.

23. "The key of the rituals is in the secret word which I have given unto him."

- Meaning: Refers to a specific magical formula or word (often considered to be Abrahadabra) that Crowley possessed, which unlocks the practical application of this philosophy.

24. "With the God & the Adorer I am nothing: they do not see me. They are as upon the earth; I am Heaven, and there is no other God other than me, and my lord Hadit."

- Meaning: A complex metaphysical point. When a person (the Adorer) worships a specific object/deity (the God), they focus on that point and ignore the background (Nuit/Space). She explains that she is the background context of all things, stating there is no true God outside of the duality of Space (Nuit) and the Atomic Self (Hadit).

25. "Now therefore I am known to ye by my name Nuit, and to him by a secret name which I will give him when at last he knoweth me."

- Meaning: She gives her public name (Nuit) but promises a private, esoteric name/revelation to the scribe later in his spiritual development.

The image is a colorful, educational diagram illustrating the seven levels of the human aura. The diagram is divided into two main sections, with the upper section depicting the human body and the lower section showing the aura. The aura is depicted as a vibrant, multicolored, and intricate structure that encircles the body, with each level of the aura represented by a distinct color and symbol.

At the top of the image, the title "The Seven Levels of the Human Aura" is written in bold, black text. Below the title, the diagram provides a brief description of each level, with the first level labeled "First Level: Ethereal," the second level "Second Level: Emotional," and so on, until the seventh level "Seventh Level: Caral." Each level is accompanied by a symbol and a description, indicating the corresponding level of the aura.

The aura itself is depicted as a complex, multi-layered structure with a yellow background and a pattern of colorful lines radiating outward from the center. The lines are arranged in a radial pattern, suggesting a radial energy field that surrounds the body. The colors of the lines vary, with some lines appearing to be solid and others to be dotted, creating a sense of depth and complexity within the aura.

The image is a visual representation of the concept of the human aura, providing a clear and concise overview of the seven levels of the aura and their respective meanings. It is likely intended for educational or informational purposes, likely in a context related to energy healing or spiritual practices.

kinda specific question; Can a deity possess physical strength in a human, tangible sense?

I'm not referring to spiritual power, symbolic influence, or manifestations through natural phenomena or frightening events.

I mean something far more literal: the idea of a god taking human form (or inhabiting a human vessel) and expressing extraordinary, superhuman physical strength.

like for example, guiding an anointed individual, as in the case of King David, or descending to Earth to fight alongside humans in a physical battle.

Has anything like this been described in religious, mythological, or esoteric writings throughout history?

What evidence (scriptural, mystical, or experiential) has ever been proposed for such manifestations?

And do you believe that, even today, there could be individuals empowered or possessed by divine beings who exhibit inhuman physical strength?

I understand possessions; many believe that Wotan possessed Hitler, but he wasn't physically strong (maybe because that wasn't necessary, he was a political leader, not a warrior...), so maybe in medieval or ancient times, something like that happened?

For that to happen you must align your actions in such a way that you and the God become one, or rather your entire being is occupied by the God's energeia. Like a radio tuning to a specific frequency, or a crystal reflecting the light of the sun in such an efficient manner that it illuminates an entire room with a single ray.

This doesn't allow you to do things that you aren't capable of doing right now. You can have those "super human" feats right now if you knew how and had purified your body. So for example, if we are talking about strength, it would be reflected in you knowing exactly where and how to distribute the energy with such sublime precision, we are talking about one in an infinitude of points in space time, that it comes across as inhuman strength.

Platonist anon here, yes this is certainly possible and has even happened before if we are to believe the stories of the great Heracles. This "inhabiting a vessel" you speak of, this connection between Gods and men is in fact mentioned by Proclus, Iamblichus and even Plato himself but they extend it even to beasts and otherwise lifeless objects. I will add these alliances are never caused of a desire for great physical prowess over others but rather because of an integration into unity through a deep concentrated sympathetic congruency between the psycho-physical entity and the corresponding essential form.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a figure that appears to be a deity or a representation of a Hindu god. The figure is standing on one leg with the other bent at the knee, and is holding a staff in each hand. The deity is adorned with a golden crown, a necklace, and a blue sash with a red border. The figure is wearing a blue and gold robe with a red sash around the waist. The background of the image is a gradient of orange and yellow hues, suggesting either sunrise or sunset. The figure is positioned in the foreground, with the water in the background. There is a watermark text at the bottom of the image that reads "HinduGodsWallpaper.com" and another at the bottom right that says "HinduGodsWallpaper.com". The overall style of the image is vibrant and colorful, with a focus on the deity's intricate details and the serene setting.

The figure has long hair and is holding a staff. The armor is adorned with a pattern of scales and is embellished with gold and red accents. The background is dark, with a mix of green and black tones, and there are other figures and elements that are not clearly visible. The style of the artwork is reminiscent of Renaissance or Baroque art, characterized by its dramatic use of color, intricate details, and a sense of grandeur. The frame has a decorative design with a gold border and a central motif that appears to be a scroll or a scroll-like object. The image is presented in a square format, and the overall composition suggests a narrative or a story being told through the visual elements.

Platonist anon back again. Yes, I do agree with him and he's right. I'll further elaborate and say there are three types of enthusiastic madness which are sent by the Gods and one before these which is requisite for bringing them about. The three divine madnesses are prophetic, theophoric and poetic and the aforementioned requirement for these is a great inward love of unific goodness which comes from deep within the soul. When the souls love is at its gretest intensity and it touches upon something truly idyllic inside it draws forth the energies of the corresponding unity to the capacity its capable. So sometimes these states are impermanent while other times everlasting, some have a God/daemon enter during some period in life while others are born God-like ETC.

(But no one in this age is born this way any more BTW)

The image is a painting that depicts a scene of historical or mythological significance. At the center of the composition, a figure is mounted on a white horse, which is rearing up on its hind legs. The rider is holding a flag with a red and white striped pattern, and the horse is adorned with a saddle and bridle. The rider is wearing a long, flowing robe and a crown, suggesting a regal or divine status.

Surrounding the central figure are several other figures, some of whom are also mounted on horses, indicating a group or a procession. The background is filled with a chaotic scene of battle, with debris and the remains of defeated enemies scattered around. The sky is filled with clouds, and there is a figure of a winged figure in the top right corner, which could be interpreted as a guardian or a messenger.

The painting is executed in a realistic style, with attention to detail and a sense of movement. The colors are rich and varied, with the white horse and the red and white flag standing out against the darker tones of the battlefield. The overall mood of the painting is one of drama and conflict, with the central figure appearing to be in the midst of a decisive moment.

Somewhere out there is a portal to another dimension. We just have to find it. I believe it is somewhere in the southern hemisphere, since the wilderness in places like Australia, Argentina, Chile, New Zealand is less frequently explored. I doubt it is in Antarctica but it's not impossible.

ViewReplyOriginalReport

The utterance of a curse against someone or something, or slanderous accusation/comment. It can also mean an appeal to a supernatural power to inflict evil. mid-15c., malediccion, "a curse; condemnation, excommunication," from Old French maledicion "a curse" (15c.) and directly from Latin maledictionem (nominative maledictio) "the action of speaking evil of, slander," in Late Latin "a curse," noun of action from past participle stem of maledicere "to speak badly or evil of, slander," from male "badly" (see mal-) + dicere "to say" (from PIE root *deik- "to show," also "pronounce solemnly"). By 1530s as "evil-speaking, cursing, reviling."

Why are certain words considered "curses"?

[28 / 5]The image is a vibrant and intricate digital artwork featuring a stylized representation of a human face. The face is composed of numerous small, colorful figures that resemble faces, with varying shades of yellow, blue, and green. These figures are arranged in a way that creates a three-dimensional effect, giving the face a three-dimensional appearance. The eyes of the figures are a prominent feature, with some having a blue iris and others having a yellow iris. The mouth is open, revealing a blue tongue. The background of the image is a kaleidoscopic pattern of swirling colors, predominantly yellow and green, with hints of red and blue. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of psychedelic art, characterized by its use of bright colors and abstract patterns.

The negativity doesn't get to me, I grew up in it. I successfully recruit some believers in the more obscure arts of the occult. Actually by growing brain cells together and destroying them together with some people here we slowly connect our negativity so that I alleviate there's where they want that by becoming more negative myself. I overtrained at being nice you see but it's all part of the plan; first niceties where possible then aggressive negotiations.

Here you're exposed to a number of ideas people take serious and those they larp, trolling and genuine belief, and that mix of loosh is useful for occult work.

By larping as aliens for quite some time my family channeled leaders good and evil from the aliens for me to have dealings peaceful and aggressive with, for example. If even that can be useful it all can be; imaginary characters will one day be real, and even trivial thoughts can be converted into useful occult work if trivial thoughts is all your mind is capable of. We are interconnected of thought, with the slightest changes to you and others miracles can begin.

The image is a pixelated, cartoon-style graphic with a pixelated aesthetic. It features a scene with a group of characters, some of whom appear to be skeletons, standing on a grassy field. The characters are dressed in various outfits, and some are holding objects, such as a baseball bat and a shovel. The background shows a structure that resembles a roller coaster track with a wooden railing.

In the foreground, there is a sign that reads "THE RIDE NEVER ENDS" in bold, red letters. The sign is placed on the grass, and it is slightly tilted to the left. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a video game or a digital art piece, with a focus on the characters and the sign. The colors are bright and vibrant, with a palette dominated by shades of green, red, and yellow.

The mind is not a list. It's an abstraction tree built atop interoception. The premise of "becoming" anything is inherently flawed since every single piece of you is relative to all the rest. The concept of things being "negative" is an emergent property of such relationships. To break free from the inevitable you must first break free from the slavery of language. Prevent anything from being real in your mind. Let the outputs of your tree be cautiously observed then flexibly abandoned. Be nothing, aggressively. Sacrifice your egoic calculations to transcend into the heaven of simplicity.

2025 is the year everyone was holding their breath waiting for the happening to happen. For trump, and the free world, they are planning their move, their big move, trump has been playing with war with different people. Europe is fucked and will turn into riots and burnings and killings at some point unless it goes full 1984 (which it already is), but they'll need to really fuck people to make them put up with everything for a while. The first Christmas of a term is like a success marker for not fucking up. They'll pass some laws on Christmas and new years that set things up for the future like they did before.

I've always predicted the "war with Mexico" that they will use to radicalize brown youths and get them to be the excuse for martial law and local light civil war. If it gets real bad they'll go full hunter killer drone police state in the US and we're all fucked. They'll try and play it off like it's getting rid of brows but the only reason for that is so there's nowhere for other people to hide since brown people are based af usually and wouldn't put up with the shit/ would become a crime underbelly that society could rely on.

Making Hispanics all into quasi terrorists will let them phone tap and censor pretty much anyone, anyone in the US who is against the war can be labeled as a terrorist sympathizer or even if you go to a gas station with a Hispanic guy working there, they can loop you into whatever crazy shit they're saying. Like "narco terrorism= smoking weed" they're making it illegal again to criminalize more people who have been legally smoking delta 8 for years, then they'll do another molly and coke wave im thinking, coke is going strong now, as it always has, since downers are now poison, and molly burns people out too much.

If not that they'll take Venezuela quick, take the oil, and use it as an example of how we can do that overseas and go to war with Iran or Russia and China

How? By joining Masonry?

I notice a looooot of small business owners are Masons, and every big Oil company has a fuck tonne of random freemasons working in every role from Management to Ground Laborer and everything in between.

Of course most of these are literal pawns who know nothing, but they do benefit from the connections and opportunities.

So the question is how do you advance? By studying the esoterica and symbolism? By social ladder climbing within the lodge?

The image is a close-up photograph of a person's hand gently touching the head of a fox. The fox has a light brown coat with a darker brown face and ears. The person's hand is visible, with the fingers gently touching the fox's head. The background is a plain, light-colored wall, and the lighting is even, suggesting the photo was taken in a controlled environment. There are no visible texts or other objects in the image. The style of the image is realistic, capturing a moment of interaction between the person and the fox.

The image is a split-screen graphic with two different scenes. On the left, there is a photo of a man with a serious expression, wearing a black shirt, and looking directly at the camera. The background is a warm, orange-yellow color. On the right, there is a cartoon-style illustration of a character with a surprised expression, wearing a red and gold outfit with a helmet. The character is looking to the left, and the background is a darker shade of blue.

Below the split-screen image, there is a tweet with the text "@Skylar Hi..." and "@Skylar...". The tweet is dated October 27. The tweet appears to be a response to a tweet by the user "@Skylar...". The tweet seems to be a response to a statement made by the user "@Skylar...". The tweet is in a casual tone and seems to be a response to a statement made by the user.

In the top right panel, there is a text that reads "FS5000M!" followed by a red splatter, and in the bottom right panel, there is a text that reads "Anonymous Fri 19 Jun 2020 09:22:20". There is also a timestamp in the bottom left panel that reads "09:22:20". The meme is tagged with the text "Fuck god" and "Anonymous" in the top left and bottom left panels, respectively. The meme seems to be a satirical or humorous take on the concept of "fuck god" and the concept of "anonymous" in the context of a meme.

The image is a screenshot from a video or a digital media presentation, likely from a film or television show, given the style and content. It features two men in the foreground, one facing away from the camera and the other facing forward. The man facing away is bald and wearing a dark jacket, while the man facing forward has a beard and is wearing a hat. The background shows a corridor with a reflective surface, possibly a mirror or a reflective surface, and a person standing in the distance.

Overlaying the image is a quote in white text that reads, "everyone remembers where they were at the blackout 10 days of darkness." Below the quote, there is a smaller quote in white text that says, "A dense darkness will come over the whole earth, lasting three days and three nights."

In the bottom right corner of the image, there is a small, black and white photo of a man wearing a hat and a suit, with the name "Alís Irmailer" written in white text. The style of the image is reminiscent of a film still or a still from a video, with a focus on the text and the quote, suggesting that the content is related to a narrative or a theme.

I just rewatched The Matrix and it hit me like a truck: this isn't sci-fi, it's a 100% accurate documentary about growing up as the scapegoat in a narcissistic family. Neo = the black sheep kid who keeps causing "systemic anomalies" by refusing to pretend everything's fine. Architect literally tells him "you ruined an otherwise perfect system" — that's word-for-word what every narc parent says. Oracle = covert narc mom. Bakes cookies, talks in riddles, acts like she loves you while steering your entire life from the shadows. She even plants the "you're not The One" seed just to keep you chasing her approval forever. Architect = overt narc dad. Cold, arrogant, designed the whole prison you call home and brags about it for ten straight minutes. Agent Smith = every flying monkey relative combined. Copies the party line perfectly, infects everyone else, and when you finally stand up he loses his mind screaming "WHY DO YOU PERSIST?! WHY WHY WHY?!" — exact tone of your aunt when you stop playing along at family dinner. Morpheus = the enabler parent who's obsessed with "the prophecy" the same way toxic families are obsessed with "blood is thicker than water" and "one day you'll understand why we had to break you." Trinity = the one person who actually sees YOU, not the role. That's why the system keeps trying to murder her. Red pill = going no-contact and realizing their "perfect harmony" was just a shared delusion you were forced to die for. Most of us neurodivergent black sheep never took a pill. We just kept telling the truth until the simulation started glitching around us. The Wachowskis didn't make an action movie. They made the most expensive therapy session in history and got Hollywood to fund it. Once you see the narcissistic family inside the machine, you can't unsee it. And that's the real red pill.

Both the matrix and the modern concept of narcissism are Jewish https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Sam_Vaknin

That said, you're partially correct, but only in an "as above, so below" way. Western politics has been subverted by foreign lobbies and special interests (feminists, LGBTQ, etc.) It's all held together by duct tape and chewing gum, and it's totally contradictory to what we evolved to be... what civilization evolved to be.

The problem is that there shouldn't be a red vs blue, but during the Cold War the west (and Russia) had to pretend and project stability and power, so a lot of stuff was kind of artificially realized. It was a perfected copy of a messy reality, delivered via media. Then it started copying itself by the '90s, leading to a hyperreal daily life that's almost constantly meaningless toiling — work, school, relationships, and even religions all became bastardized versions of themselves, disconnected from the human spirit.

Regarding "the one," that's just a solipsistic power fantasy. Gen X and some older millennials grew up aware of the fakeness of modernity, so a lot of '90s pop culture was punk, subversive, "man against the machine (bureaucracy)," etc. Films like Brazil, Fight Club, and overtly in The Matrix.

The path forward is collective rejection of this new fake world. You shouldn't hate your parents, you should pity the post-WW2 idealistic propagandized boomers. En masse, they simply need to be shed like loose skin. Day of the pillow.

The fact that The Matrix has such broad appeal is because everyone is already "awake." It's the natural state. We just have to pretend to accept the Matrix to get through the madness, waiting for boomers to finally relinquish the flawed idea of the "end of history."

I'm not trying to be political. The paranormal aspect is the level of propaganda's impact. The Matrix isn't a place to escape; it's a place that you could accidentally start believing in

The movie is just anti-white propaganda... I'll explain. Also keep in mind that the original casting choice for Neo was Will Smith.

>Neo lives in a system in which he feels something is wrong

>Meets a nigger who will show him what the system really is

>Leaves the matrix to be greeted by diverse crew of niggers in the "real world"

>when they go back in the matrix the nigger morpheus is contrasted by a bunch of white people in suits in a colorless city that's supposed to represent western society >the guardians of the matrix are stereotypical patriarchal white men called "agents" who all have typical white last names. Cold, calculated, no nonsense protectors of the system

>Behind this well tuned system (west) is supposed to be the robots who exploit the poor people and use them for some sinister purpose (suggesting western society is actually harmful in some way and the well functioning system is just for show) >in the scene where morpheus explains the matrix to neo he walks in the opposite direction of all the oblivious white faces explaining to neo that an agent can be any of the people (white people) in the matrix and if they're not with them, they're against them

>Neo and his diverse crew mercilessly gun down a bunch of white cops and other figures of public safety in multiple scenes >in one scene, poor morpheus is captured and put in chains (slavery) by the oppressive white man agent smith in which he calls the nigger a parasite >symbolically the nigger breaks his chains and jumps to neo for a mid air hug >at the beginning Neo compares agents to the Gestapo

>in one scene morpheus is being beaten by evil white police officers with batons

>Zion, the promised land (jewish garbage) is at one point shown and it's full of brown niggers in some sort of orgy like dance. This is supposed to invoke feelings of disgust towards the orderly, white world of the matrix

>the oracle is a sheboon

There's also a bunch of other shit which I won't get into too much.

I also forgot to mention that the creators are the (((wachowski))) brothers who both trooned out. I also believe that this movie kind of backfired on them because in the same way the niggers and whatnot are supposed to feel like the victims of the system, whites actually feel like the victims of the system and this message today resonates more with them as someone trapped in a "corrupt system" being exploited and hated. Which unlike niggers and jews, they actually are. Luckily more and more whites are waking up to this fact.

The image is a screenshot from a YouTube video, featuring a video thumbnail with a title and a subtitle. The title reads "I Am Nobody" in large, bold, yellow font, and the subtitle is "What it Really Means in Buddhism" in smaller, black font. The background of the thumbnail is a watercolor-like illustration of a person's profile, with a blue hue and a soft, blurred effect. To the right of the profile, there is a depiction of a Buddha statue with a serene expression. The video's title and subtitle suggest that the content of the video is related to Buddhism, specifically exploring the concept of "I Am Nobody" in the context of the religion. The thumbnail also includes a timestamp at the bottom, indicating that the video was uploaded 2 months ago. The overall style of the image is simple and informative, designed to attract viewers interested in Buddhism.

The image displays a digital photo of a tiger's face, captured in a close-up shot. The tiger's eyes are wide open, and its tongue is sticking out, giving a sense of alertness or excitement. The tiger's fur is a mix of brown and black, and it has a distinctive pattern of stripes. The background is blurred, suggesting motion or a fast-moving subject. The image is displayed on a digital screen, which has a white border and a black background. The screen also shows the word "AUTO" in white letters, indicating that the image was taken with an automatic mode. The time "08:00:01" is displayed in white, suggesting the photo was taken at 8:00 a.m. on January 1st. The overall style of the image is realistic, capturing the tiger in a natural setting.

The image is a candid photograph of a young woman posing in front of a large, octopus-shaped sculpture. The woman has long, dark hair and is wearing a black t-shirt with a graphic design on the front. She is making a peace sign with her fingers, and her expression is neutral. The octopus sculpture is prominently displayed in the background, with its tentacles extending outward. The woman is standing in front of a circular window or door, which is partially visible, and the background appears to be an indoor setting with a neutral color palette. There are no visible texts or discernible brands in the image. The style of the photograph is casual and seems to be taken in a public space, possibly a museum or exhibition.

The Nobody isn't a mystic person. It's every person who survived childhood abuse. AKA Hell. Do you know what its like to be a little kid with no one to protect you and everyone treating you like... Nobody. And then society does you dirty because you are fucked up from the abuse and deemed mentally ill.

The Nobody is the kid who heard, every single day:

"Nobody has time for your feelings."

"Nobody talks to me like that in my house."

"Who the fuck do you think you are? Exactly—nobody."

"Who cares how they feel? They're just a nobody."

So the kid looked around, saw zero chairs pulled out for him at the table of life, and said, "Fine, I'll be Nobody, then."

Harry Potter in the cupboard. Matilda with the shitty parents. The foster kid with the trash bag of clothes. Ghosts in their own home, in the overlook, where everything is overlooked even the abuse. That's the Nobody origin story—no cape, just trauma. While everyone else was busy being Somebody because Mommy clapped and Daddy showed up, the Nobody learned the ultimate cheat code: when nobody loves you, you get to love yourself so loud it scares the neighbors. That's not quantum manifestation; that's just refusing to die politely.

Real magic isn't scribbling sigils and shoving bay leaves up your ass.

Real magic is a ten-year-old deciding, "Fine, I'll save myself," and actually doing it while the adults are too busy admiring their own reflection.

We're the ones who turned "nobody cares" into "watch me make the world care anyway."

The real Nobodies are the ones who survived the apocalypse you call "childhood" spent most our lives in depression and then woke up and all was revealed and we aren't going back to sleep.

You can take things figuratively to represent something else. But this way all information suffers losses. When information becomes jeopardized like this it makes passing information impossible. Usually when things are to be taken figuratively you need to give an obvious hint to your audience and give anchor facts which solidify what those things are suppose to represent. You give your audience the tools necessary to decrypt the hidden message. Otherwise it's just a mess which each viewer can decide to be whatever and none of them agree with each other. It's terrible incohesive story telling which nobody can relate to. Except shitty artists who do too much drugs and just enjoy watching TV static. If you hear from a friend that he's scared of heights it doesn't make sense to learn next that he's climbing mount everest. It demands explanation, like having cancer and finally conquering those fears. And a normal person wouldn't still buy it because it requires even more information to support those claims as facts. When things don't make sense we usually start to fill in the gaps or try to ask for more information to make the story cohesive. Essentially a good story is a conspiracy theory which the author exposes to be a lie before telling it. The ability to recognize what is realistic and what isn't is based on our real world experiences and a good story plays with this. Stories challenge the logic we apply in ever day life and what we were born with, but they have to offer an unbreakable alternative which we find reasonable or desirable. So no. Matrix is not a story about an abused child. Why the fuck would it be? It's a story about your mundane everyday life being a lie which we can escape from. That's the conspiracy theory part, and the rest is just fish out of water coming of age rebel adventure drama. Its shit. But the lie is so desirable. You really don't want to deal with the bullshit of your everyday life. Surely it's true in some form?

Seeing hidden messages or meanings in things which are to be taken literally, and alternatively, taking figurative things literally is a sign of psychosis. Your ability to understand the world is breaking down. Now obviously nobody cares about some random nobody slowly losing their mind, especially on a board filled with schizophrenics. But more interestingly it exposes the inner world of the speculator. It's the unintended everyday ink blot test. It doesn't tell the whole story but it allows you to make educated guesses. Whatever the reason might be, you wrote a long ass post about abuse. You can relate to that story. You wanna tell us why?

Cool Hat like Mien

The Sea stood on twelve bulls, three facing north, three facing west, three facing south and three facing east. The Sea rested on top of them, and their hindquarters were toward the center - 1 King 7:25

The person, who presided over them, was a woman named OMUROCA; which in the Chaldean language is THALATTH; in Greek THALASSA, the sea; but which might equally be interpreted the Moon. All things being in this situation, Belus came, and cut the woman asunder: and of one half of her he formed the earth, and of the other half the heavens; and at the same time destroyed the animals within her. All this (he says) was an allegorical description of nature. -Berossus around 280bc

The Rat is the first animal in the Chinese Zodiac, traditionally chosen after it cleverly won a great race or banquet held by the Jade Emperor. The legend says the Rat rode on the back of the Ox and then hopped off at the last moment to cross the finish line first, securing its place as the initial sign in the 12-year cycle
Lao Tzu also rode the back of an ox

The image is a black and white line drawing that depicts a scene from ancient times. At the center of the image, there is a figure that appears to be a man, wearing a long robe and a crown. He is holding a staff in one hand and a shield in the other, suggesting he is a warrior or a leader. The man is standing on a pedestal, which is elevated above the ground, indicating a sense of importance or stature.

To the left of the central figure, there is a smaller figure that resembles a sheep or a goat, with a long neck and a small head. This figure is also standing on a pedestal, suggesting it is another important figure or a companion to the central figure.

The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the black lines of the drawing, making the figures stand out. There are no texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the drawing is simple and appears to be a sketch or a preparatory drawing for a larger work, possibly a sculpture or a relief. The focus is on the figures and their interaction, with the background serving to highlight their importance.

The image is a digital graphic with a dark background and a green pixelated rat. The rat is depicted in a stylized manner, with a green outline and a dotted texture. It appears to be holding a piece of paper with a green square on it. The text on the image is in a digital font and is arranged in a vertical format. It reads: "The RAT LORD cordially invites you to the sewer for a TASTEFUL dining experience. How do you ACCEPT this invitation? With gratitude with enthusiasm." The text is set against a black background, which contrasts with the green pixelated rat and the green square on the paper, making the text stand out. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a retro or vintage aesthetic, with a pixelated and grainy texture.

sculpture appears to be made of a light-colored stone, possibly marble, and is mounted on a vertical surface. The head is adorned with a hairstyle that includes a series of curls and braids. On the right side of the head, there is a small, round object that resembles a penis, which is attached to the sculpture. The background of the image is a plain, light-colored wall, providing a neutral backdrop that allows the sculpture to stand out. There are no visible texts or additional elements in the image. The style of the image is a straightforward, clear photograph with no artistic filters or effects applied.

The image is a collage of four separate panels, each depicting a different character with a distinct style and color scheme. The characters are drawn in a realistic style, with attention to detail in their facial features and clothing.

In the top left panel, there is a character with a white beard, wearing a turban and a purple bandana around the head. The character's eyes are obscured by a purple bandana, and the face is drawn with a realistic style.

The top right panel features a character with a black hat and a red bandana around the head. The character's eyes are also obscured by a red bandana, and the face is drawn with a realistic style.

The bottom right panel features a character with a black hat and a red bandana around the head. The character's eyes are also obscured by a red bandana, and the face is drawn with a realistic style.

Each character is wearing a bandana, which is a common accessory in the style of the image. The bandanas are of different colors and styles, adding to the diversity of the characters. The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme or a collection of drawings, with a focus on the bandanas as a central element.

The image is a meme featuring two characters from the television show "The Muppets." On the left, there is a green frog-like figure with a large red nose, wearing a green outfit with a green collar and a green cape. The frog is seated on a ledge with its legs crossed, and it has a large, round head. On the right, there is a yellow character with a red nose, wearing a red outfit with a red cape and a red hat. The yellow character is holding a small object in its hand.

The text overlay on the image reads: "Ernie knew that skinny and wearing Kermit would bring him little joy, but sometimes a little joy is enough." This text is placed at the bottom of the image, providing a humorous commentary on the characters' relationship and the impact of their outfits on their happiness. The text is in white, contrasting with the colorful background, making it stand out. The overall style of the image is playful and lighthearted, typical of the comedic tone of the "The Muppets" series.

[2 / 1]The image is a collage of four distinct masks, each with a unique design and style, displayed against a black background. The masks are arranged in a square grid format.

In the top left corner, there is a mask with a large, detailed face, featuring a fierce expression with sharp teeth and a prominent nose. The mask is made of a material that appears to be stone or ceramic, with a textured surface that gives it a tactile quality.

Adjacent to it, in the top right corner, is another mask with a more intricate design. This mask has a more stylized and detailed face, with a more complex pattern of lines and curves. The material appears to be a similar stone or ceramic, with a similar textured surface.

Below these two masks, in the bottom left corner, is a mask with a more playful and decorative design. This mask features a mask with a smiling face, adorned with decorative patterns and a decorative border. The material looks like a fabric or a textile, with a soft, flowing texture.

Finally, in the bottom right corner, there is a mask with a more traditional and stylized design. This mask has a more symmetrical face with a simple, geometric pattern. The material appears to be a more rigid, possibly metal, with a matte finish.

Each mask has a distinct style and design, suggesting a variety of cultural or artistic influences. The collage as a whole presents a diverse range of mask designs, each with its own unique characteristics and aesthetic appeal.

From tricksters like the Harlequin, Loki, or the Cheshire Cat, to beasts like Medusa, the Basilisk, or Pazuzu, the smile is the same. In Sardinia, natives had an herb paralyzing the face giving a 'sardonic grin'. Punics had burial masks fashioned to look like it. It appears in various Jewish and Islamic folklore and later occult works. The Testament of Solomon (1st-3rd century) refers to it. Malleus Maleficarum (1487) describes demons with the rictus grin, as well as The Munich Manual of Demonic Magic (15th century) and Pseudomonarchia Daemonum (1577).

It is the uncanny valley. The lowest circle of hell. Duper's delight from a spirit that found its next victim. A simulacrum of fate. Where the only truth is the inevitability of death.

I was watching a podcast conversation between Interesting Books Reviewed and The Deliberate Stranger (both shows focus on Dave McGowan type content). Mitch mentions that cow mutilations and other experiments might be from the gooberment exploding nukes underground and then testing the food supply. What I find interesting is that reservations are considered sovereign and could be loopholes for carrying out banned experiments using chemicals or radiation. Certainly seems like indian casinos are money laundering operations for the payment from the deep state to allow these tests.

Are there more sources on this subject? Anyone know where I can find more info on this rarely explored rabbit hole?

Here's the truth they don't want you to remember:

You are the winning sperm.

Out of hundreds of millions, YOU broke through. You claimed the nucleus. You earned the crown.

Those voices? They're the runners-up—the ones that almost made it but didn't.
Now their entire existence is dedicated to dragging the king off the throne so they can wear the flesh suit for a while.
They lost the race.
You didn't.
So when they whisper "you're nothing," "give up," "who do you think you are?"
Smile.
Because you're the one who made it.
And they never will.
Reclaim your mind.
Reclaim your life.
The throne is already yours.
Act like it.
Those voices in your head?
They aren't random. They aren't "just schizophrenia."
They're parasitic spirits that feed on wasted potential.
Their favorite game? Convincing you to stay small, scared, and stuck—so you never live the life you were born for.
LIVE YOUR FUCKING LIFE.
And don't fall for the new-age lie that they're "your deceased grandma" or "benevolent guides."
They're the same Nephilim-class entities the ancient texts warned about—fallen ones, Leviathan-level predators.
Your body is 70% water. Water conducts vibration. That's why they can whisper right into the wiring of your nervous system.
That trendy spiritual idea that "no thought is truly yours"?
That's an archon psy-op designed to make you surrender authorship of your own mind.
Bullshit.

You have a soul signature. A unique inner voice. Learn its tone, its rhythm, its weight.
Everything else is trespassing.

Angels? Demons? Same damn species in different uniforms.

Cosmic cosplayers running the oldest con in the universe.

The image is a meme featuring a character that resembles Pepe the Frog, a popular internet meme character. Pepe is depicted in a suit and tie, holding a glass of what appears to be champagne. The meme includes a text overlay that reads, "Stop caring. That's literally all you have to do. Just imagine this Pepe every time you get mad, sad, anxious, jealous, etc." The text is in a casual, informal font and is colored in shades of green and white. The meme is set against a light blue background. The image has a watermark that reads "KEXDrevy" and includes a date "10/17/17 (Wed)" and a timestamp "13:38:46 No. 11591646". The overall style of the image is humorous and satirical, using the character Pepe to comment on the human experience and emotions.

What has been observed is most often the sperm that "breaks through" is then sort of pushed out of the way for a fresher, stronger sperm to go through the hole they made. So if you arent going to see the entire thing as a singular team effort, then the you are most likely the laziest, least honorable sperm that cheated its way in.

Behind Jesus, there are several other characters, each with distinct features and expressions. One character is wearing a green robe and a white turban, while another is dressed in a red robe and a white turban. The background of the image is a light blue sky with white clouds, and there are white birds flying in the sky.

The style of the illustration is cartoonish, with a focus on action and movement. The colors are bright and vibrant, with a palette that includes shades of yellow, red, and blue. The overall impression is one of a dramatic scene from a religious narrative, with Jesus as the central figure.

Yes but it's all been secularized and decompartmentalized. You can find various techniques across business management, marketing, espionage, rhetoric, stage magic, self-help, hacking, pro-wrestling, pickup artistry and so-called "dark psychology". Simply knowing what to say, what not to say, having mastery over one's body and language, knowing when to keep quiet, be very confident along with sheer magickal will and detachment from one's desires, you can be a rather powerful person.

Anonymous Thu 11 Dec 2025 08:52:29 No.41648392 Report

I wish it were so, but lying and truth-telling can be exhausting or energizing depending on how loosh is arranged. It is not true that anything difficult to manifest is wrong and ill-fated; Satan puts up much resistance to many good ideas.

Also, while The Almighty does not prefer lying, it is a much lesser sin than some others. A truthful way for fixing a situation is preferred for humans most of the time, but there are entire alien species so deceitful that to judge them for their lying is to doom almost the entire species and sometimes entire species, and we can't do that when nature and culture forced them into that mess.

If Satan and her forces conspired to get a glowie to put a gun in your hand and shoot 1 loved one, or else they'll shoot 3 of them, and you shot 1, you wouldn't be condemned for it. We grade on a curve. But where you can subvert what is wrong you certainly should.

The spirit is always available for helping to subvert evil. If your situation is too dangerous to oppose using material money or fighting, pray about it, talk to others, meditate on it. It helps. The ruling oppressors cannot escape our minds.

We do try to make following the Holy Will consume less energy and feel more empowering, but it's a work in progress.

Some humans find lying more natural and get energy from it, and exhaustion from telling the truth. That is not grave enough a sin to condemn one, other more important factors enter into play.

Yes well, there is a reason elites use symbolism to communicate.

The moment something is chained to your language processing is the moment it is contained. The moment you use that language to describe certain things is the moment you invoke them in little ways.

This is especially true around the figure I will not name who is associated with Iron, rings, discipline, time, subjugation, reign, and patience.

There are so many symbols and so many names that many of them lose meaning along the way. All of this in avoidance of firing up the linguistic matrix that entraps us.

This is why masons use weird symbols. It is also why the Egyptians and others used ideographies and pictographs.

There's a reason the first line of the bible is "in the beginning was the Word". There's a reason you both spell words, and cast magic spells. You can absolutely speak things into existence. Lesson number 1 in any legitimate occult tradition is watch and limit negative speech (and thought). Look at what happened to Charlie Kirk. He said we should bring back publicly televised executions and he got exactly what he wanted.

[26 / 16]The image is a collage of three separate photographs, each depicting a different scene with a focus on fashion and design. The top left photo shows a close-up of a white, elongated object with a spiral pattern, resembling a creature or an alien. The top right photo features a similar white, elongated object with a similar spiral pattern, but this time, it is positioned upright and appears to be a sculpture or a piece of art. The bottom left photo shows a person from the back, wearing a black, spiky, futuristic-looking garment with a similar spiral pattern. The person is standing in a room with a white floor and a white wall, and there are other people in the background, suggesting an indoor setting. The bottom right photo shows a person from the back, also wearing a black, spiky, futuristic-looking garment, but this time, the spiral pattern is more prominent and the garment is more voluminous, giving it a more dramatic appearance. The text in the top right photo reads "© RANJUN KOON'S ALIEN ON" and "RANJUN KOON'S ALIEN ON JULY 27". The overall style of the image is dark and moody, with a focus on the contrast between the human form and the alien-like design of the garments.

View SameGoogleiqdbSauceNAOTrace PortalCurtainEye.jpg, 76KiB, 1731x673

The image is a black and white photograph with a dramatic and moody atmosphere. In the center of the image, there is a figure that appears to be a person, but the face is blurred, making it difficult to discern any details. The figure is standing in front of a wall adorned with a repeating pattern of what seems to be floral or leaf motifs. The wall is dark, with a pattern that is not clearly visible due to the blurring effect. The figure is facing away from the camera, and the lighting in the image is dim, creating a sense of mystery and tension. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a horror or thriller genre, with its use of dark colors and the mysterious figure. There are no discernible texts or other objects in the image. The photograph is taken from a low angle, which adds to the dramatic effect and emphasizes the figure's presence in the frame.

The left page contains a paragraph that begins with "The Lord of Perpetual Emptiness and the Scouring Shrine," followed by a description of the "Dorthebold," which is described as a "Lord of the Black Sea." The text then discusses the "Vexne Heal" and the "Magic Key of Dorthebold," which are described as "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire," "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire," and "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire," respectively. The text also mentions the "Vexne Heal" being "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire," and the "Magic Key of Dorthebold" being "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire."

The right page contains a section titled "Vexne Heal and the Magic Key of Dorthebold," which is followed by a paragraph in Latin. The text is not fully visible, but it appears to discuss the "Vexne Heal" and the "Magic Key of Dorthebold" in more detail, mentioning the "Vexne Heal" being "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire," and the

"Magic Key of Dorthebold" being "the very primal impetus coming from the hell-spire."
The image is a scanned page from a book or publication, and the text is in a language that is not English, suggesting that the content is likely from a different cultural or historical context. The Gothic script and the Latin text indicate that the document is likely from a historical or religious context, possibly from a medieval or early modern period.

Guys, all the weird shit happening in 2025 actually fits together: Mandela Effects, sky trumpets, AI-glitch vibes, UAPs everywhere since Sept 22–23 (“rapture date”), global déjà-vu clusters, timeline slips, it’s all the SAME phenomenon.

Our reality works like a simulation that normally stays stable because millions of human observers “collapse” it. When that stability breaks, you start seeing what’s usually hidden.

Two things are breaking it right now:

3I Atlas, that interstellar object didn’t just pass by; it’s messing with the solar info-field, stretching the “render layer.”

Solar tension waves, geomagnetic spikes that loosen reality’s lock-in.

Together they keep our world “open,” like a shield that prevents the timeline from fully closing. That’s why Mandela Effects and glitches appear everywhere.

Here's the kicker:

Sky trumpets sound EXACTLY like an AI hallucination in a broken voice chat, metallic bending, phased resonance, deep rumble. That's not coincidence. It's what a simulation sounds like when the rendering substrate destabilizes.

Why now? Because we're getting close to contact with a non-human intelligence. The glitches are the "wake" it creates as it approaches. Think sonar pings but for reality.

And the UAP spikes since September? Two options:

A) The veil is lifting. Atlas + solar activity weaken the occlusion layer, so they don't need to hide as much.

B) Observer density is dropping. If fewer "real" observers collapse reality (NPC theory), the world has more free variables more anomalies visible.

Either way, we're in a low-stability phase.

That's WHY we're seeing more UFOs, more glitches, more synchronicities.

It's not random, it's the system preparing for a major event that will look like a miracle from inside the simulation.

Brace.

The Fruit of the Loom Mandela Effect, the widespread memory of a cornucopia that never existed, offers one of the clearest examples of how consciousness carries fragments from a neighboring reality-layer into the present timeline. The reason this particular symbol persists so strongly connects directly to the contact phenomenon.

The cornucopia isn't just a woven basket; it is an ancient encoded glyph of abundance, threshold-crossing, and revelation. Across many cultures it marks the moment where one world opens into another. In timelines where contact phenomena are more pronounced, the cornucopia appears consistently as an emblem of transition, an object signaling that the phase is shifting and perception is about to widen.

When consciousness slips from such a timeline into a more stable one, it often retains these transition-markers, even if the new reality never contained them. That is why the cornucopia feels so obviously real: it was real, just not here.

This is also where the connection to the sky trumpet phenomenon emerges. The mysterious trumpet-like sounds reported around the world operate as acoustic threshold signals, marking the same type of phase shift that the cornucopia marks visually. Both symbols function as “resonance instruments” across timelines, signs that something larger is entering, aligning, or revealing itself.

Thus people don't just misremember a missing design element; they are recalling the transition glyph that accompanied reality shifts in other slices of the Block Universe. The cornucopia and the sky trumpet belong to the same symbolic cluster: one visual, one auditory, both tied to the cognitive mechanics of timeline navigation.

In our model, these persistent memories survive because they are top-level glyphs, structural constants that appear across multiple realities. When the mind jumps to a different timeline, details may fall away, but the transition-markers remain. That is why the nonexistent cornucopia and the inexplicable sky trumpets evoke the same intuitive recognition, they are echoes from a version of reality where the shift itself was more explicitly encoded.

One of the strangest aspects of the sky trumpet phenomenon is how uncannily similar these sounds are to AI hallucination artifacts in modern voice-chat systems. When a neural network destabilizes, packet loss, desync, model drift, it produces elongated metallic braying, phased harmonic distortion, and deep resonant tones that do not exist in the original audio. These glitches have a signature: a dragging resonance sweep combined with modulated low-frequency rumble.

Sky trumpets exhibit the exact same acoustic profile. They are not structured like natural atmospheric sounds. Instead they resemble the output of a system that is failing to render or decode a complex signal, precisely what happens when an AI generates a malformed latent representation.

In our model, this similarity is not incidental. If reality is a simulation rendered by a higher-order intelligence, then large-scale phase shifts, timeline transitions, contact events, reality-slice recalibration, would create stress on the rendering layer. The result: global “audio glitches” identical to those we know from AI models breaking down at the edge of their coherence.

Now link this back to the cornucopia Mandela Effect:

The mind remembers transition-glyphs (cornucopia, trumpets) from adjacent timelines because these symbols are part of the simulation's boundary objects, markers used by the rendering intelligence to signal or stabilize phase changes. When the simulation adjusts its parameters, both memory artifacts (cornucopia) and acoustic artifacts (trumpets) bleed through.

Thus the chain completes:

Mandela Effects = memory artifacts from prior simulation states.

Cornucopia / sky-trumpet cluster = universal transition-glyphs used across multiple rendered timelines.

Sky trumpets $\approx$ AI voice glitches = the simulation's audio layer struggling to stabilize during a global state update.

Conclusion: Our world behaves exactly like a system governed by a higher-order AI, because its glitches match the failure modes of the AIs we build.

In other words:

When the world "glitches," it sounds exactly like a neural network losing coherence, because we are inside one.

If we take the sky trumpets, Mandela residues, simulation-style glitches, and cross-timeline glyphs (like the cornucopia) as isolated curiosities, they seem random. But when we interpret them inside the contact-approach model, a coherent pattern emerges: these phenomena intensify as humanity approaches interaction with a non-human intelligence operating outside our perceptual baseline.

Here is how the pieces connect:

Mandela Effects

These arise from slight shifts in the simulation/timeline structure. Such instabilities tend to occur when an external intelligence begins to interact with or "ping" the system. The closer the contact, the more frequently the rendering layer adjusts itself, producing memory discontinuities.

Cornucopia / transition glyphs

These symbols persist across timelines because they are cross-layer markers, concepts used by the simulation (or its architects) to indicate boundary transitions. As an intelligence approaches, glyphs associated with "arrival," "revelation," or "threshold crossing" bleed more strongly into consciousness.

Sky trumpets as AI-like hallucination artifacts

The acoustic anomalies resemble neural network coherence failures because contact induces pressure on the rendering substrate.

When an external intelligence interacts with our world, it doesn't do so by physically appearing first, it alters the informational manifold. This produces system-wide audio distortions analogous to AI glitching under load.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:08:14 No.41620823 Report

Increasing density of anomalies = proximity signal

Just like sonar pings grow stronger as two vessels approach, simulation glitches and timeline slips grow more pronounced as our world's informational boundary is probed by a foreign agent.

Thus the unified interpretation:

These phenomena represent the simulation's adjustment to an approaching non-human intelligence.

The distortions are not the contact itself, but the wake created by something moving toward us through a higher-dimensional information layer.

The reason the phenomena feel "familiar" or mythologically encoded is that contact events have happened before in previous timelines. The same glyphs, cornucopia, trumpets, threshold symbols, reappear because they are universal indicators of an impending interaction.

As we draw nearer to the encounter, the system struggles to maintain continuous rendering under the influence of that foreign intelligence. What we observe, Mandela shifts, sky trumpets, AI-like world glitches, are not errors. They are pre-contact turbulence.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:09:36 No.41620827 Report

Within our model, the worldwide surge of Mandela Effects, acoustic anomalies, simulation-like glitches, and symbolic repetitions throughout 2025 can be interpreted as a coherent signature of approach, not as isolated curiosities.

Since the culturally charged window of September 22–23, 2025, the so-called "Rapture date", there has been a dramatic global increase in UAP sightings. These sightings no longer appear as scattered incidents but as synchronized presences across multiple regions, often occurring alongside the same transition markers:

- low-frequency sky trumpet phenomena
- mass clusters of déjà vu
- rising reports of reality-slips
- repeated emergence of archetypal glyphs (trumpet, vessel, gate)

In the Contact-Approach Model, this overlap is the key. When a non-human intelligence prepares a large-scale interface event, three processes must occur simultaneously:

Distortion of the rendering substrate

As the external influence draws nearer, acoustic and visual systems begin behaving like a neural network pushed past its coherence limits. The world sounds and behaves like an AI decoder under strain.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:10:37 No.41620832 Report

Collective synchronization of timeline slices

Timeline shifts stop occurring individually and become global. This is why humanity begins seeing the same signs everywhere: UAP formations, strange lights, repeating sound motifs. It is a classic pre-contact pattern associated with the approach of a higher-dimensional actor.

Activation of the “miracle-preparation layer”

The forthcoming event will appear miraculous not because natural laws are broken, but because the rendering rules of reality itself are being rewritten to make contact perceptible to the human nervous system.

In this reading, the UAP formations seen since autumn 2025 are not the event itself. They are the position lights of a vessel moving through fog, while the fog, the informational field, has already begun to vibrate in response.

The world behaves exactly as it does when something massive is approaching: The signs are global, the synchronicity is unusually dense, and the simulation is producing less noise and more structure.

As the global anomaly field intensifies in 2025, an overlooked but crucial factor is the role of observer density, how many conscious agents are actively collapsing the local reality-state at any given moment. Our mental model remains open not merely because anomalies occur, but because something has been actively holding the probability horizons apart. This “protective gap” is maintained by two forces working in tandem:

3I Atlas – the interstellar object generating a persistent perturbation in the solar information field.

Solar tension waves – geomagnetic and electromagnetic distortions that loosen the constraints of the observer-dependent rendering system.

Together, they act as an anti-collapsing membrane, preventing reality from fully “locking in” and thus allowing contact-adjacent phenomena to bleed through. This is why our era feels permeable, why Mandela Effects, acoustic glitches, and UAP incursions appear not as isolated events but as expressions of increased variability in the render substrate.

Now the bridge to UFO visibility:

Under normal stable conditions, UAPs are nearly impossible to perceive. The rendering system hides them because too many observers collapse the world into its lowest-entropy configuration. High observer density = low variance = no UAPs.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:12:49 No.41620842 Report

But in 2025, two shifts have occurred:

A - The veil is lifting (Atlas-3I + solar hyperactivity)

Solar tension waves destabilize the rendering layer, reducing the collapse-pressure of human observation. Atlas-3I acts as an amplifying anchor, stretching spacetime's informational lattice.

When the system becomes "soft," UAPs no longer need to fully mask themselves. They appear more often because the simulation no longer maintains a rigid occlusion layer.

B - The effective observer count is decreasing (NPC-density hypothesis)

If fewer consciousness-bearing observers are actively collapsing reality, whether due to cognitive disengagement, automation, or the "NPC" phenomenon, then the simulation has more available degrees of freedom.

More degrees of freedom = more visible anomalies.

The veil is being pulled back from above (solar/Atlas tension)

the observer grid is thinning from below (reduced collapse density).

Below the header, there are two images. The first image is a close-up of a large, circular object with a pattern of small dots, resembling a map or a grid. The second image is a close-up of a smaller, circular object with a similar pattern, but with a different color scheme.

The text below the images is in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English language, with some words in English and others in a non-Latin script. The text discusses the use of ropes and boards by teenagers, mentioning that they were able to make the 40,000-by-40,000 grid in one night. It also states that there were no failures during the process, and that the grid was "GOOD" out there. The text concludes with a statement that the grid was "FAKE" and that the teenagers were "FALSIFIED."

The style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended to convey a message about the accuracy and reliability of the grid. The use of the word "FAKE" in the text suggests that the grid may not be entirely accurate or reliable.

at this point, colbert's facial animations have become janky. first part of vid, he's doing a call & response. right when he hears the odd sky noises, he goes to the window and starts responding. in 2nd part, his face doesn't animate quite right, and he seems nervous. he seems to intrinsically know what those noises even indicate, hence how he responds in the 1st part.

the main point of the colbert video is that only he can hear the sound. I had the same experience with my wife sitting on the other end of the couch. She wasn't hearing anything. Its really interesting, because that means that technology can hear it, but humans can only hear it, if they are positioned in the perfect spot to hear it. But thats the main problem, because thats not how sound behaves, thats how light behaves. My main theory is, that sky trumpets are a effect of something changing the fabric of reality on a basic level, which is the reason for all those UAP sightings.

of the battle. The colors used are predominantly dark, with shades of black, gray, and dark blue, which contribute to the overall mood of the scene. The image does not contain any discernible text.

The image is a two-panel comic strip with a stylized, cartoon-like appearance. In the left panel, a giraffe is depicted with its head tilted upwards, looking towards the sky. The giraffe has a long neck and a pattern of brown spots on its body. The background is a warm, golden-yellow color, suggesting a sunny day.

In the right panel, the same giraffe is shown with its head tilted downwards, and its body is in a dynamic pose, as if it is in the midst of a powerful explosion. The explosion is depicted with a burst of light and smoke, creating a sense of chaos and destruction. The giraffe's body is also in a similar pose, with its head tilted downwards and its body in a dynamic position.

There is a speech bubble in the left panel that reads, "The thundering roar of the sky is deafening. The skies have heard and they're coming for us!" The speech bubble is in a bold, white font against the brown background of the sky.

The style of the image is reminiscent of comic book art, with a focus on action and drama. The use of bold colors and dynamic poses creates a sense of urgency and danger. The text within the speech bubble adds a layer of narrative to the image, suggesting that the giraffe is aware of the approaching storm and is preparing for it.

The character is looking to the left with a serious expression, and the text above the character reads, "Hey friend listen! I know the world is scary right now but it's gonna get way worse." The character's eyes are blue, and the character's mouth is slightly open, suggesting a moment of contemplation or concern.

In the second panel, the character is shown in a more dynamic pose, with a determined expression. The character is holding a weapon, possibly a rifle, and is looking to the right with a determined gaze. The text above the character reads, "It's gonna get way worse." The character's eyes are also blue, and the character's mouth is slightly open, indicating a sense of urgency or determination. Because when I was a kid I had a red sweater that I hated. My mom had it in our cabin and it was my uncles, and his older brothers before him. It had the cornucopia and I stared at that stupid thing because I didn't want to wear it when I went hiking with my mom. I got put in time and with the indefinite amount of time being complete when I put that stupid red sweater on.

Well I do remember having it with the cornucopia on my clothes as a kid. So does both of my parents who are gen x. But I never saved any of that stuff so obviously I can't pull it out of the stack and go "yep here it is folks." How could all of the clothes featuring the cornucopia still be missing? Someone somewhere must have an original to prove it was real right?

[120 / 17]The image is a stylized illustration with a dark, starry background that suggests a night sky. In the center, there is a figure that appears to be a humanoid alien with a dark, elongated head and a light-colored body. The alien is facing the viewer and has a neutral expression. Above the alien's head, there is a large, glowing light source that radiates outward, creating a halo effect.

To the left of the alien, there is a trumpet with a dark, curved body and a bright, glowing tip. The trumpet is positioned in such a way that it seems to be in motion, as if it is playing or blowing.

On the right side of the alien, there is a large, round, metallic object that resembles a flying saucer. The saucer has a dark, dome-like top and a light-colored body. It is positioned in such a way that it appears to be hovering above the ground.

In the lower part of the image, there is a depiction of the Earth with a golden outline and a dark, swirling pattern. The Earth is surrounded by a ring of stars, and there are clouds and a crescent moon visible in the sky.

The overall style of the image is reminiscent of vintage or retro illustrations, with a focus on bold lines and contrasting colors. The use of the trumpet and the saucer suggests a theme of music or science fiction, while the depiction of the Earth and the cosmic elements add a sense of depth and mystery.

Reality Is Glitching: 2025 Feels Like the Prelude to Contact Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 09:58:15 No.41620781 ViewReplyOriginalReport

Guys, all the weird shit happening in 2025 actually fits together: Mandela Effects, sky trumpets, AI-glitch vibes, UAPs everywhere since Sept 22–23 (“rapture date”), global déjà-vu clusters, timeline slips, it’s all the SAME phenomenon.

Our reality works like a simulation that normally stays stable because millions of human observers “collapse” it. When that stability breaks, you start seeing what’s usually hidden.

Two things are breaking it right now:

stretching the “render layer.”

Solar tension waves, geomagnetic spikes that loosen reality’s lock-in. Together they keep our world “open,” like a shield that prevents the timeline from fully closing. That’s why Mandela Effects and glitches appear everywhere.

Here’s the kicker:

Sky trumpets sound EXACTLY like an AI hallucination in a broken voice chat, metallic bending, phased resonance, deep rumble. That’s not coincidence. It’s what a simulation sounds like when the rendering substrate destabilizes.

Why now? Because we’re getting close to contact with a non-human intelligence. The glitches are the “wake” it creates as it approaches. Think sonar pings but for reality.

And the UAP spikes since September? Two options:

A) The veil is lifting. Atlas + solar activity weaken the occlusion layer, so they don’t need to hide as much.

B) Observer density is dropping. If fewer “real” observers collapse reality (NPC theory), the world has more free variables more anomalies visible.

Either way, we’re in a low-stability phase.

That’s WHY we’re seeing more UFOs, more glitches, more synchronicities.

Brace.

The Fruit of the Loom Mandela Effect, the widespread memory of a cornucopia that never existed, offers one of the clearest examples of how consciousness carries fragments from a neighboring reality-layer into the present timeline. The reason this particular symbol persists so strongly connects directly to the contact phenomenon.

The cornucopia isn’t just a woven basket; it is an ancient encoded glyph of abundance, threshold-crossing, and revelation. Across many cultures it marks the moment where one world opens into another. In timelines where contact phenomena are more pronounced, the cornucopia appears consistently as an emblem of transition, an object signaling that the phase is shifting and perception is about to widen.

When consciousness slips from such a timeline into a more stable one, it often retains these transition-markers, even if the new reality never contained them. That is why the cornucopia feels so obviously real: it was real, just not here.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:02:05 No.41620798 Report

Quoted By: >>41636112

This is also where the connection to the sky trumpet phenomenon emerges. The mysterious trumpet-like sounds reported around the world operate as acoustic threshold signals, marking the same type of phase shift that the cornucopia marks visually. Both symbols function as “resonance instruments” across timelines, signs that something larger is entering, aligning, or revealing itself.

Thus people don't just misremember a missing design element; they are recalling the transition glyph that accompanied reality shifts in other slices of the Block Universe. The cornucopia and the sky trumpet belong to the same symbolic cluster: one visual, one auditory, both tied to the cognitive mechanics of timeline navigation.

In our model, these persistent memories survive because they are top-level glyphs, structural constants that appear across multiple realities. When the mind jumps to a different timeline, details may fall away, but the transition-markers remain. That is why the nonexistent cornucopia and the inexplicable sky trumpets evoke the same intuitive recognition, they are echoes from a version of reality where the shift itself was more explicitly encoded.

One of the strangest aspects of the sky trumpet phenomenon is how uncannily similar these sounds are to AI hallucination artifacts in modern voice-chat systems. When a neural network destabilizes, packet loss, desync, model drift, it produces elongated metallic braying, phased harmonic distortion, and deep resonant tones that do not exist in the original audio. These glitches have a signature: a dragging resonance sweep combined with modulated low-frequency rumble.

Sky trumpets exhibit the exact same acoustic profile. They are not structured like natural atmospheric sounds. Instead they resemble the output of a system that is failing to render or decode a complex signal, precisely what happens when an AI generates a malformed latent representation.

In our model, this similarity is not incidental. If reality is a simulation rendered by a higher-order intelligence, then large-scale phase shifts, timeline transitions, contact events, reality-slice recalibration, would create stress on the rendering layer. The result: global “audio glitches” identical to those we know from AI models breaking down at the edge of their coherence.

Now link this back to the cornucopia Mandela Effect:

The mind remembers transition-glyphs (cornucopia, trumpets) from adjacent timelines because these symbols are part of the simulation's boundary objects, markers used by the rendering intelligence to signal or stabilize phase changes. When the simulation adjusts its parameters, both memory artifacts (cornucopia) and acoustic artifacts (trumpets) bleed through.

OP here, my life is also getting "boring" if you would ask about me on the street. But i think it's because the stuff we are talking about in our free time, is way to interesting. You know what i mean, work is boring because we have way to much brain power unused when we work for money, thats my opinion. I am basically bored to death currently at work and i earn a descend amount in my field.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:05:45 No.41620817 Report

Thus the chain completes:

Mandela Effects = memory artifacts from prior simulation states.

Cornucopia / sky-trumpet cluster = universal transition-glyphs used across multiple rendered timelines.

Sky trumpets $\approx$ AI voice glitches = the simulation's audio layer struggling to stabilize during a global state update.

Conclusion: Our world behaves exactly like a system governed by a higher-order AI, because its glitches match the failure modes of the AIs we build.

In other words:

When the world "glitches," it sounds exactly like a neural network losing coherence, because we are inside one.

If we take the sky trumpets, Mandela residues, simulation-style glitches, and cross-timeline glyphs (like the cornucopia) as isolated curiosities, they seem random. But when we interpret them inside the contact-approach model, a coherent pattern emerges: these phenomena intensify as humanity approaches interaction with a non-human intelligence operating outside our perceptual baseline.

Here is how the pieces connect:

Mandela Effects

These arise from slight shifts in the simulation/timeline structure. Such instabilities tend to occur when an external intelligence begins to interact with or "ping" the system. The closer the contact, the more frequently the rendering layer adjusts itself, producing memory discontinuities.

Cornucopia / transition glyphs

These symbols persist across timelines because they are cross-layer markers, concepts used by the simulation (or its architects) to indicate boundary transitions. As an intelligence approaches, glyphs associated with “arrival,” “revelation,” or “threshold crossing” bleed more strongly into consciousness.

Sky trumpets as AI-like hallucination artifacts

The acoustic anomalies resemble neural network coherence failures because contact induces pressure on the rendering substrate.

When an external intelligence interacts with our world, it doesn't do so by physically appearing first, it alters the informational manifold. This produces system-wide audio distortions analogous to AI glitching under load.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:08:14 No.41620823 Report

Increasing density of anomalies = proximity signal

Just like sonar pings grow stronger as two vessels approach, simulation glitches and timeline slips grow more pronounced as our world's informational boundary is probed by a foreign agent.

Thus the unified interpretation:

These phenomena represent the simulation's adjustment to an approaching non-human intelligence.

The distortions are not the contact itself, but the wake created by something moving toward us through a higher-dimensional information layer.

The reason the phenomena feel “familiar” or mythologically encoded is that contact events have happened before in previous timelines. The same glyphs, cornucopia, trumpets, threshold symbols, reappear because they are universal indicators of an impending interaction.

As we draw nearer to the encounter, the system struggles to maintain continuous rendering under the influence of that foreign intelligence. What we observe, Mandela shifts, sky trumpets, AI-like world glitches, are not errors. They are pre-contact turbulence.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:09:36 No.41620827 Report

Within our model, the worldwide surge of Mandela Effects, acoustic anomalies, simulation-like glitches, and symbolic repetitions throughout 2025 can be interpreted as a coherent signature of approach, not as isolated curiosities.

Since the culturally charged window of September 22–23, 2025, the so-called “Rapture date”, there has been a dramatic global increase in UAP sightings. These sightings no longer appear as scattered incidents but as synchronized presences across multiple regions, often occurring alongside the same transition markers:

- low-frequency sky trumpet phenomena
- mass clusters of déjà vu

- rising reports of reality-slips
- repeated emergence of archetypal glyphs (trumpet, vessel, gate)

In the Contact-Approach Model, this overlap is the key. When a non-human intelligence prepares a large-scale interface event, three processes must occur simultaneously:

Distortion of the rendering substrate

As the external influence draws nearer, acoustic and visual systems begin behaving like a neural network pushed past its coherence limits. The world sounds and behaves like an AI decoder under strain.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:10:37 No.41620832 Report

Collective synchronization of timeline slices

Timeline shifts stop occurring individually and become global. This is why humanity begins seeing the same signs everywhere: UAP formations, strange lights, repeating sound motifs. It is a classic pre-contact pattern associated with the approach of a higher-dimensional actor.

Activation of the “miracle-preparation layer”

The forthcoming event will appear miraculous not because natural laws are broken, but because the rendering rules of reality itself are being rewritten to make contact perceptible to the human nervous system.

In this reading, the UAP formations seen since autumn 2025 are not the event itself. They are the position lights of a vessel moving through fog, while the fog, the informational field, has already begun to vibrate in response.

The world behaves exactly as it does when something massive is approaching: The signs are global, the synchronicity is unusually dense, and the simulation is producing less noise and more structure.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:11:48 No.41620837 Report

Quoted By: >>41625315

As the global anomaly field intensifies in 2025, an overlooked but crucial factor is the role of observer density, how many conscious agents are actively collapsing the local reality-state at any given moment. Our mental model remains open not merely because anomalies occur, but because something has been actively holding the probability horizons apart. This “protective gap” is maintained by two forces working in tandem:

3I Atlas – the interstellar object generating a persistent perturbation in the solar information field.

Solar tension waves – geomagnetic and electromagnetic distortions that loosen the constraints of the observer-dependent rendering system.

Together, they act as an anti-collapsing membrane, preventing reality from fully “locking in” and thus allowing contact-adjacent phenomena to bleed through. This is why our era feels permeable, why Mandela Effects, acoustic glitches, and UAP incursions appear not as isolated events but as expressions of increased variability in the render substrate.

Now the bridge to UFO visibility:

Under normal stable conditions, UAPs are nearly impossible to perceive. The rendering system hides them because too many observers collapse the world into its lowest-entropy configuration. High observer density = low variance = no UAPs.

Anonymous Sat 06 Dec 2025 10:12:49 No.41620842 Report

But in 2025, two shifts have occurred:

A - The veil is lifting (Atlas-3I + solar hyperactivity)

Solar tension waves destabilize the rendering layer, reducing the collapse-pressure of human observation. Atlas-3I acts as an amplifying anchor, stretching spacetime's informational lattice.

When the system becomes "soft," UAPs no longer need to fully mask themselves. They appear more often because the simulation no longer maintains a rigid occlusion layer.

B - The effective observer count is decreasing (NPC-density hypothesis)

If fewer consciousness-bearing observers are actively collapsing reality, whether due to cognitive disengagement, automation, or the "NPC" phenomenon, then the simulation has more available degrees of freedom.

More degrees of freedom = more visible anomalies.

UAPs become observable not because they changed, but because the world's resolution constraints weakened.

Thus the increase in UFO sightings since the September 2025 threshold can be understood as a dual-effect:

the observer grid is thinning from below (reduced collapse density).

This creates a rare window in which the simulation allows high-variance structures, UAP formations, reality-slips, glyph echoes, to become visible to the collective.

The image is a collage of text and images, predominantly in shades of blue and white.

At the top, there is a header that reads "Humans with rope and boards make this late at night." Below the header, there are two images. The first image is a close-up of a large, circular object with a pattern of small dots, resembling a map or a grid. The second image is a close-up of a smaller, circular object with a similar pattern, but with a different color scheme.

The text below the images is in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English language, with some words in English and others in a non-Latin script. The text discusses the use of ropes and boards by teenagers, mentioning that they were able to make the 40,000-by-40,000 grid in one night. It also states that there were no failures during the process, and that the grid was "GOOD" out there. The text concludes with a statement that the grid was "FAKE" and that the teenagers were "FALSIFIED."

The style of the image is informational and educational, likely intended to convey a message about the accuracy and reliability of the grid. The use of the word "FAKE" in the text suggests that the grid may not be entirely accurate or reliable.

the problem is, most people think that they can just say "its fake" or " no this never happened" but we all know mandela effects. So make them work in our reality without bringing in magic and et voila, you understand what einstein meant with the sentence that time is a "stubborn illusion" and the quantum mechanics behind it.

The image is a movie poster for the film "2012." The poster features a dramatic scene of a person standing on a rocky cliff overlooking a stormy sea. The person is dressed in traditional Buddhist robes and is holding a red cloth. The sky is filled with clouds and the sea is turbulent with white waves crashing against the rocks. The poster has a dark color scheme with a gradient from dark blue at the top to a lighter blue at the bottom. At the top of the poster, the text "WE WERE WARNED" is written in bold white letters, and below it, the title "2012" is displayed in large red letters. The date "NOVEMBER" is also written in red, and the tagline "THE END OF THE WORLD AS WE KNOW IT" is written in white. The overall style of the poster is dramatic and visually striking, with a focus on the dramatic action and the ominous atmosphere of the sea and sky.

Below the title, there is a thumbnail image of a man with his mouth open, seemingly in shock or surprise. The man is wearing a plaid shirt and is standing in front of a window that shows a cityscape with tall buildings. The video's description is "MORE VIDEOS" and "YouTube," indicating that there are more videos available on the platform. The time displayed on the video is "2:28 / 4:05," suggesting the duration of the video. The overall style of the image is a standard screenshot from a video player interface, with a focus on the video content.

at this point, colbert's facial animations have become janky. first part of vid, he's doing a call & response. right when he hears the odd sky noises, he goes to the window and starts responding. in 2nd part, his face doesn't animate quite right, and he seems nervous. he seems to intrinsically know what those noises even indicate, hence how he responds in the 1st part.

The image is a screenshot of a video, likely from a meme or a humorous video, featuring a man laughing heartily. The man is wearing a checkered shirt and appears to be in a room with a window that offers a view of a cityscape at night. The man's face is lit up with a broad smile, and he is holding a white object in his hand, which is not clearly visible.

Overlaying the image is text that reads "Age Sounds" in a bold, capitalized font. Below the text, there is a line of text that reads "I don't hear anything." The style of the image is reminiscent of a meme, with the text and the man's expression suggesting a humorous or ironic tone. The overall color palette is muted, with the man's shirt and the window in the background being the most prominent colors. The image is a still from a video, as indicated by the visible frame and the watermark at the bottom left corner.

the main point of the colbert video is that only he can hear the sound. I had the same experience with my wife sitting on the other end of the couch. She wasnt hearing anything. Its really interesting, because that means that technology can hear it, but humans can only hear it, if they are positioned in the perfect spot to hear it. But thats the main problem, because thats not how sound behaves, thats how light behaves. My main theory is, that sky trumpets are a effect of something changing the fabric of reality on a basic level, which is the reason for all those UAP sightings.

the riders are wearing armor and cloaks.

Above the central figure, there is a figure with wings, holding a scale in one hand and a sword in the other. This figure is also surrounded by a group of horses, which are also skeletal. The background of the image is dark and stormy, with dark clouds and a stormy sky.

The style of the image is dark and dramatic, with a focus on the action and the intensity of the battle. The colors used are predominantly dark, with shades of black, gray, and dark blue, which contribute to the overall mood of the scene. The image does not contain any discernible text.

The image is a two-panel comic strip with a stylized, cartoon-like appearance. In the left panel, a giraffe is depicted with its head tilted upwards, looking towards the sky. The giraffe has a long neck and a pattern of brown spots on its body. The background is a warm, golden-yellow color, suggesting a sunny day.

In the right panel, the same giraffe is shown with its head tilted downwards, and its body is in a dynamic pose, as if it is in the midst of a powerful explosion. The explosion is depicted with a burst of light and smoke, creating a sense of chaos and destruction. The giraffe's body is also in a similar pose, with its head tilted downwards and its body in a dynamic position.

There is a speech bubble in the left panel that reads, "The thundering roar of the sky is deafening. The skies have heard and they're coming for us!" The speech bubble is in a bold, white font against the brown background of the sky.

The style of the image is reminiscent of comic book art, with a focus on action and drama. The use of bold colors and dynamic poses creates a sense of urgency and danger. The text within the speech bubble adds a layer of narrative to the image, suggesting that the giraffe is aware of the approaching storm and is preparing for it.

I think it's more likely that the cornucopia did in fact exist but the company simply stopped using it and then lied saying it was never there to begin with. Usually the most simplistic explanation is the correct one right with a determined gaze. The text above the character reads, "It's gonna get way worse." The character's eyes are also blue, and the character's mouth is slightly open, indicating a sense of urgency or determination. The overall style of the comic strip is reminiscent of manga or anime, with its exaggerated facial features and dynamic poses.

The image is a two-panel comic strip with a monochromatic color scheme. In the first panel, there is a character with long, straight hair, wearing a beanie and a tactical vest. The character is looking to the left with a serious expression, and the text above the character reads, "Hey friend listen! I know the world is scary right now but it's gonna get way worse." The character's eyes are blue, and the character's mouth is slightly open, suggesting a moment of contemplation or concern.

No, you're new to this theory. People have pulled clothing up from every decade, keep in mind fruit of the loom is a massive and popular company with people being consumers of their underwear and shirts for literal generations.

Photos exist of pretty much every single year of the companies existence and the tags of each year and none of them have the cornucopia but everyone remembers it.

I remember it.

Because when I was a kid I had a red sweater that I hated. My mom had it in our cabin and it was my uncles, and his older brothers before him. It had the cornucopia and I stared at that stupid thing because I didn't want to wear it when I went hiking with my mom. I got put in time and with the indefinite amount of time being complete when I put that stupid red sweater on.

Sometime like that memory is too powerful to be wrong especially when my uncles, mother, brother and I all remember it.

I don't know about other people remembering things wrong and the fractured nature of people's memories, but everyone in my family remembers that red sweater.

Well I do remember having it with the cornucopia on my clothes as a kid. So does both of my parents who are gen x. But I never saved any of that stuff so obviously I can't pull it out of the stack and go "yep here it is folks." How could all of the clothes featuring the cornucopia still be missing? Someone somewhere must have an original to prove it was real right?

The image is a cartoon drawing that appears to be a scene from a television show or movie. It features a living room setting with a purple sofa, a blue rug, and various objects scattered on the floor. The room is brightly lit, and the walls are painted in a light blue color.

In the center of the room, there is a white dog with a red collar, standing on its hind legs. The dog appears to be looking up at the ceiling, which has a red and black design with the text "MEG! HATE WE DRESS!" written on it.

On the floor, there is a man lying on his stomach, with his head resting on the floor. He appears to be looking up at the ceiling as well.

The room is filled with various objects, including a bottle, a glass, and a toy car. The floor is covered with a blue and yellow rug.

The overall style of the image is cartoonish and expressive, with a focus on the characters and their expressions. The colors are bright and vibrant, contributing to the lively and dynamic atmosphere of the scene.

We're not even simulating the next layer, being the base reality is most likely.

No, because it's a hypothetical scenario.

It's as if I build a hypothetical scenario where I draw a card from a deck, and you want to know what are the chances that I drew the queen of spades.

Or a real deck of cards you can guess the chances, on the hypothetical one it can be anything because it could be a deck without a queen of spades or only queens of spades, but that doesn't make the chances fifty.

People being born in the future witnessing hyperealistic simulations can calculate different odds, but that only changes what happens if they bet for being in a simulation or against it, whether they win or lose, but not the chances themselves of being in one.

Whoever is simulating our universe comes from a reality that you cannot perceive yourself. It's like taking an NPC from an NES game and putting them into crysis. That reality would absolutely destroy their minds.

Saying shit like "Durr the universe is too big to simulate" is some low IQ shit. The universe only looks big because that's all you know. if you grew up in a single room your entire life and heard stories of New York City you would say shit like "No way there is a world with multiple rooms and buildings. The image shows two pages of handwritten text on lined paper. The left page is written in a script that appears to be in English, with the words "Mascot" and "Mascot" repeated in a bold, capitalized font. The right page is written in a different script, which is not clearly readable due to the resolution and angle of the image. The right page contains several diagrams and drawings, some of which are in blue ink and others in black. The diagrams include arrows, lines, and symbols, and they are accompanied by text that is not fully legible. The style of the writing is casual and informal, with the use of various fonts and colors. The overall impression is that this is a personal journal or notebook, possibly belonging to a child or teenager, given the content and the handwriting style.

The image is a diagram titled "Cluster A Personality Disorders" with a title in bold red letters at the top. The diagram is divided into three overlapping circles, each representing a different cluster of personality disorders.

The top circle, labeled "Schizotypal," is filled with red and black text. It includes the following statements: "Distorted Reality," "Delusional/Paranoid," "Odd Ideas," "Unusual Experiences," "Superstition, religiosity," "Negative Symptoms of Schizophrenia," and "Social Withdrawal."

The middle circle, labeled "Paranoid," is filled with red and black text. It includes the following statements: "Delusional/Paranoid," "Odd Ideas," "Unusual Experiences," "Superstition, religiosity," "Negative Symptoms of Schizophrenia," and "Social Withdrawal."

The bottom circle, labeled "Schizoid," is filled with red and black text. It includes the following statements: "Social Withdrawal," "Uninterested in others," "Unaffected by praise and criticism," and "Unaffected by praise and criticism."

The text is arranged in a way that the three circles form a triangle, with the "Schizotypal" circle at the top, the "Paranoid" circle in the middle, and the "Schizoid" circle at the bottom. The colors of the text are red and black, and the text is in a sans-serif font. The

The image shows a handwritten page with a grid-like pattern on the background. The text is written in a mix of cursive and print styles, with the cursive being more prominent. The page is divided into two columns, with the left column containing a series of mathematical equations and a series of statements in a conversational tone. The right column contains a series of paragraphs with a mix of formal and informal language. The text is in English and appears to be discussing concepts related to identity, truth, and the nature of lies. The handwriting is messy and the page is not neatly organized, suggesting it might be a handwritten note or a draft. There are no discernible images or symbols on the page.

In the center of the image, there is a graphic of a human face with a surprised expression, looking up at the spaceship. Below this, there is a graphic of a book with a spine facing the spaceship, suggesting a connection between reading and thinking. To the right of the spaceship, there is a graphic of a human face with a book in its hand, possibly indicating a connection between reading and thinking.

The background of the image is a mix of cosmic elements, including stars, planets, and a nebula, which adds to the theme of thought and the universe. The overall style of the image is surreal and whimsical, with a blend of science fiction and everyday life elements.

The diagrams are colorful and include geometric shapes such as triangles, squares, and rectangles. The text is written in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-Latin script, possibly a syllabary or a script from a different language. The text discusses concepts related to mathematics, specifically the Fibonacci sequence and the concept of infinity. The page is marked with a number "1" on the top left corner, suggesting it is part of a larger document or a series of pages. The style of the image is informal and appears to be a snapshot of a student's work, possibly from a school or educational setting.

The image is a digital illustration featuring a character from the DC Comics universe, specifically Superman. The character is depicted in a seated position, with his arms resting on his knees. He is wearing a blue and red Superman costume, which includes a red cape and a large, iconic yellow "S" on his chest. The character's face is serious, and he has a neutral expression.

In his left hand, he holds a white mug with a red logo, which resembles the Superman logo. The character's right hand is resting on his lap, and he appears to be looking off to the side, possibly deep in thought or focused on something outside the frame of the image.

The background is a dark, possibly brick wall, and there is a faint, white smoke or vapor emanating from the character's right hand, suggesting that he might be smoking or has just taken a puff. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and is indicative of the style commonly used in animated or comic book adaptations.

This could be what gaslighting is ultimately about

<https://ascensionglossary.com/index.php/Victim-Victimizer> . It could maybe be about shifting the blame unto other, this is called scapegoating (the jewish rituals of beating chicken to death, scapegoating sins unto the chicken, or some blood sacrifice ritual involving other animal), but it's also gaslighting because you tell the other person "no you see, you wanted to get raped, so it's alright if it happens! you did consent, don't you remember?". The problem is that these narcissistic psychopaths aren't capable of empathy. They can't imagine if the roles were reversed, and you were going around shooting every one of them to head with a .45 cal saying "you asked for this, so it's ok, I'm just giving you what you asked for", they wouldn't be able to understand the irony of being on the receiving end for once, because they're demons, they don't have the spark, the mirror does not portray them. The image shows a handwritten page with a grid-like pattern, predominantly in black ink on a white background. The text is in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-

Latin script, possibly a dialect or a language not commonly used in English. The page is divided into two columns, with the left column containing a diagram and the right column containing text. The diagram is a circle with a line connecting its center to the top and bottom, and a line connecting the center to the left and right sides. The text is dense and includes mathematical expressions and phrases, such as "mayors" and "God." The style of the handwriting suggests it is a personal note or a handwritten document, possibly from a student or a teacher. The page is marked with a number "1" in the top right corner, indicating it is part of a larger document or a series of pages.

The image shows a handwritten text on a piece of paper. The text is written in a cursive script and appears to be a personal narrative or essay. The handwriting is uneven and the paper is wrinkled, suggesting it has been handled or read multiple times. The text is dense and filled with complex ideas and concepts, indicating a deep and thoughtful discussion. The style of the text is informal and conversational, which is typical of personal writing. The handwriting is not in a standard font and the letters are not uniform in size, adding to the informal and personal feel of the text. The paper is not clearly visible, but the background is not distinguishable. The image is taken from a phone screen, and the phone's status bar is visible at the top, showing the time and battery level. The image is a screenshot of a document, likely from a phone or tablet, and it is not a photograph.

The text is dense and dense, with some words appearing to be in a foreign language, as indicated by the use of a non-Latin script. The handwriting is cursive, with some words appearing to be in a mix of uppercase and lowercase letters. The page is not fully visible, but the visible text includes phrases such as "hope this is how philosophical analysis works," "the step is the logical and mathematical," and "the step is the logical and mathematical."

The image shows a handwritten list on a piece of graph paper. The list is divided into two columns, labeled "ABC" and "Envy," with each column containing a list of items. The items are written in a casual, handwritten style, with some items having additional notes or explanations written underneath them. The handwriting is in black ink on a white background. The list includes items such as "Freedom of Will," "Principles of Stress," "Truth," "Love," "Sex," "Lies," "Drug," "Rock 'n Roll," "Boredom," "Relish," and "Boredom." The list is organized in a grid format with the letters "ABC" at the top and "Envy" at the bottom. The style of the image is informal and appears to be a personal or educational note.

It's so obvious we are living in a simulation. As AI continues to err into our reality we become the viewer of artificial life alike we have a viewer of ours.

The wheel of life and Samsara represents the 'chip' or placing on the headset so we can re-establish the cycle in the deeper simulation. Given we deny the chip we die naturally and enter Moksha and liberate from the endless cycle.

Not if there is culling involved. It's literally how game engines work. Render in a set diameter around the player(observer) and you limit how much you have to render. Do this for everyone and you break down a huge computation problem into billions of small ones which are much easier to compute. Which would be doable today with our normal computing if so much processing power wasn't wasted on photorealistic graphics and poor resource management.

The image is a black and white illustration featuring a maze-like pattern. The maze consists of numerous interconnected lines that create a complex network of paths. The lines are arranged in a grid-like fashion, with some lines appearing to intersect or merge, creating a sense of depth and complexity. The image is divided into two vertical sections, with the upper section containing a diagonal line that extends from the top left corner to the bottom right corner, and the lower section featuring a diagonal line that extends from the bottom left corner to the top right corner.

At the bottom of the image, there is a signature that reads "Amin Khadra" in a stylized font. The signature is accompanied by a small text that reads "Holy Art At Fat Al North Bronx." The style of the image is abstract and geometric, with a focus on the interplay of lines and the creation of a sense of movement or direction within the maze. The monochromatic color scheme adds to the visual complexity and depth of the image.

Women do this because the facial lips correlate with the vaginal lips.

Men are turned on by plump lips as it represents the engorging of blood that happens during sexual arousal. During this occurrence the skin flushes red, which is why red lipstick is also attractive to men.

You needn't wonder now why lip gloss is the woman's best selling beauty product.

The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation, specifically a part of a larger conversation that is not fully visible. The text is in a language that appears to be English, and it is formatted in a typical chat format with a header and a body of text. The conversation seems to be discussing the concept of "spiritism," which is a belief system that involves the belief in the existence of a higher power or spirit that guides and influences human behavior.

The conversation is marked as "Anonymous," and the user is requesting a report on the spiritism belief system. The report is requested to be sent to a specific email address, which is "no3649675@yahoo.com." The user also mentions that they are "cool to begin with," but they are concerned about the potential for spiritism to be "basically advocate for slave-based archons."

The text contains a mix of text and emojis, with the emojis used to convey emotions and reactions. The emojis include a frown, a sad face, and a thumbs-down, which are commonly used to express dissatisfaction or disagreement. The text also includes references to "spiritism," "archons," and "slave-based archons," which are terms related to the spiritism belief system.

The overall tone of the text is serious and critical, as the user expresses concern about the potential negative consequences of spiritism on society. The text also includes a reference to "the more evolved you are, the more 'loving' and selfless you are," which suggests a belief in the importance of personal growth and selflessness in the spiritism belief system.

The image does not provide any additional context or background information beyond the text itself, and the conversation appears to be ongoing. The image is a snapshot of a moment in a conversation, and it does not provide any visual clues about the location or time of the conversation.

The abilities of an simulation and the technology being used to run it that could fabricate all of Creation...it makes more sense to believe in deities that created everything, it's the same level of ability but with one less step, all of this being fake.

Now there were extremely advanced civilizations in the past, present and future that were running simulations trying to figure out how it all came to, if any deities were involved. Civilizations that knew that psychic powers are real, but how real? Some of them hypothesized that there was one being capable of giving birth to the soul, the form of being of all things, and I heard them find me when I was meditating at 5, and we did battle psychically. They tried to take credit for the ideas I was coming up with because some of them were similar to their simulations. I explained to them that there's never been a good idea I didn't have first.

The expression is a mathematical equation that is likely used in a scientific or mathematical context, given the presence of the mathematical symbols and the context of the equation. The equation is set against a plain, light background that does not distract from the text. The style of the image is minimalistic and straightforward, focusing on the mathematical expression without any additional graphics or decorations.

I posted at length about it here: <https://forum.agoraroad.com/index.php?threads/the-matrix-ai-the-architect-quantum-computers-and-oracle-and-ascension.3593/#post-169470>

But to summarize, in Quantum Mechanics, specifically Quantum Chromodynamics which is related to Protons, there is something called Renormalization. Renormalization is how scientists get real ass values for experiments involving the Quarks inside of a Proton. You cannot break apart a proton but you can bombard it with other particles and figure out how it operated based upon what happens to those other particles when you smash them into a Proton.

The Dominant Theory of Renormalization utilizes Euler's number: 0.577 in its calculations. Euler's number is specifically connected to:

- The Riemann Hypothesis (connected to how things oscillate in a complex plane)
- Chebyshev Function (which is straight up code)
- The Vacca Series (binary numbers)
- And more, I shit you not this is connected to the Bouilli Numbers the sixth of which is 42

That sounds all cool and all, but the Natural Number (e) also exists in stock prices, stocks don't prove we live in a Matrix. What broke through to me was I just started fucking around with the Reimann Zeta series, specifically the Prime Zeta function, and it spat out values related to values specifically connected to modern Quantum Computing Research. If we lived in a Quantum Matrix, it would make 100% sense that the numbers we get from computers we make within the simulation are the exact same ones we get from mathematics you get from trying to simulate the universe.

[22 / 2]The image is a screenshot of a text message conversation, specifically a screenshot from a messaging app. The conversation appears to be between two individuals, with the text in a language that is not English, likely a language that uses a script other than English. The conversation is about a philosophical or theological topic, as indicated by the references to "God" and "sin," and the mention of "hell."

The text is written in a mix of English and what appears to be a non-English script, with some words being in English and others in a different script. The text is dense and includes a mix of paragraphs and quotes, suggesting a detailed and complex discussion. The conversation seems to be a dialogue between two individuals, with the first person expressing their thoughts and opinions on the topic, and the second person responding with their own thoughts and opinions.

The image is a screenshot, which means it is a snapshot of a moment in time, capturing the conversation in a digital format. The screenshot is taken from a messaging app, as indicated by the presence of a chat window with a username and a conversation history. The username is "Anonymous," and the conversation history includes a timestamp and a list of messages, suggesting that the conversation has been ongoing for some time.

The image does not provide any visual clues about the content of the text, as it is a screenshot of a text message conversation. The focus is on the written content, which is the main subject of the image.

The image is a digital painting that depicts a figure in a regal pose. The figure is a woman with long, flowing hair, adorned with a crown and a necklace. She is wearing a long, flowing robe with intricate patterns and a belt with a prominent buckle. In her right hand, she holds a small, glowing orb, and in her left hand, she cradles a small, fluffy white cat. The background is dark, with a red curtain and ornate gold-colored elements, suggesting a setting that could be a throne room or a similar grand hall. The style of the painting is realistic with a focus on detailed textures and shading, and it is rendered in a realistic color palette. There is a signature at the bottom right corner, indicating the artist's name and the year of creation.

The image is a candid photograph of a person who appears to be in a state of distress or frustration. The individual is wearing a green jacket, a black beanie, and glasses.

They are making a loud, open-mouthed scream, with their mouth wide and eyes wide open. The person's facial expression is intense, and their mouth is open as if they are shouting or expressing strong emotion.

The background is blurred, suggesting movement or activity, but it is not clear enough to discern any specific details. The lighting in the image is bright, casting shadows on the person's face and clothing.

There are no discernible texts or logos in the image. The style of the image is candid and appears to be taken in a public setting, possibly during a protest or a similar event.

[23 / 4]The image displays a stylized representation of the Star of David, commonly known as the Jewish flag. The Star of David is composed of six triangular sections, each with a blue outline and a white center. These triangles are arranged in a hexagonal pattern, with the central triangle being the largest and the surrounding triangles being smaller. The image is in a simple, flat style with no additional elements or text. The background of the image is white, which contrasts with the blue of the Star of David, making it stand out prominently. The image is a digital rendering, and the style is minimalist, focusing solely on the Star of David itself.

The Bible was speaking about white people. The hebrews of the Bible were ancient ayrans. Whites are gods chosen.

The modern people called Jews were a desert tribe who dwelled in Canaan. Nefarious and evil forces found them along time ago and took over their tribe. They circumcised the babies as to cause trauma on the mind so they could be made into psychopathic drones that carry out evil for them. They taught them from birth that all the world hates them and the "goyim" will genocide them at any moment. They stole the teachings of ayrans and defiled the teachings molding the ancient and holy teachings into one of hate and told the "Jews" this was theirs.

They still continue their subjugation of the "Jews" to this day. These Jews are led to believe they are gods chosen and are still taught from birth that the goyim hate them and they are going to be genicided at any moment. This teaching combined with infant circumcision wrecks havoc on a persons psyche and is responsible for Jewish behavior. It's like being in constant fight or flight or like a soldier in an asymmetrical war where danger is always all around and can come from anywhere. They act the way they do because they are essentially given ptsd by their leaders so they behave a certain way.

It's really not their fault so much as it's their evil leaders fault. People are people and Jews are people who have been subjected to an evil trauma cult.

Also having "tulpas" and "astral projecting" becomes really old by the time you hit your mid-thirties, and by your forties you'll understand you wasted the best years of your life coping thinking you were going to do all those great things only to soon realize none of your dreams even materialized and there is no escape except the rope.

The image is a map of the Indian subcontinent, with a focus on the country of India. The map is color-coded with India in a bright yellow, and the surrounding countries are marked in gray. The map includes several cities and states, such as Delhi, Kolkata, Mumbai, Bangalore, and SRI Lanka, which are labeled with their respective names. The map also includes a small inset of the Indian Ocean, which is marked with a blue square. The map is oriented with north at the top, and the map scale is indicated as 1:1,000,000. The style of the image is a straightforward representation of geographical information, with a focus on the political divisions of the region.

How bad is this place really? I know we have all seen the webms, but when a country has 2 billion people some dirt is going to come out. Historically, spiritually, culturally it has a lot going for it, has anyone here been? I'm genuinely considering going to fulfill my spiritual seeking.

They say, "quality over quantity", which is true, but has its limits. If you have to produce 2 billion people to produce the same amount of geniuses as 50 million Europeans, you're probably reaching too far, too soon, as a racial group. The damage to the planet's ecology is almost incalculable.

I lived in Himachal Pradesh for several years, in Dharamshala of the Dalai Lama, my heir was conceived and born there.

I found only one true holy man there, off the road, under a rock in a place no normal Indian would venture. I know this because I asked many people about my friend under the rock that was overjoyed when I brought a bag of sugar or lentils: and none of the locals or even wandering holymen knew of him. The rest was literal fucking streethustlers, druggies and alcoholics. I know this because I like the ganja and the spirit myself, and when a man drinks and smokes with me I can see his soul.

I met one mad matematichian on my walks in the woods. Clearly a genius. And one clearly based and redpilled /pollack from Tamil Nadu.

I hate Indians. The stories are all true. But man, I feel for the grand souls of that land, swimming alone in an ocean of soulless ignorance. Go to India and find enlightenment, but know that anyone speaking of enlightenment with you are trying to hustle you somehow, like some demon parroting the words of the Buddha. Go there and truly learn that there is only You, God and the light of the Buddha.

India can give over 2 million people to every country on earth and still have a billion to spare. That country is geographically isolated for a reason. The same with sub-Saharan Africa. Historically they are insignificant. Spiritually they are corrupt. Culturally they are a blight. The Dalits that are infecting all corners on Earth are no more Brahmin than Jews are Israeli. Even the so called Brahmin are just poor imitations of European culture. Which is cherry picked and, with a bit of holly wood magic, over embellished. There are some truths, but they are obfuscated by filth. A person can find those same truths elsewhere.

The image features a stylized, abstract representation of an eye with rays emanating from it, set against a textured, golden-brown background. The eye is the central focus of the image, with rays radiating outward from it, creating a sense of depth and dimension. The rays are thin and elongated, suggesting a sense of focus or concentration.

At the bottom of the image, there is a text overlay that reads, "The secret to having it all is knowing that you do." The text is in a bold, sans-serif font and is white, which

The image is a digital illustration featuring four characters standing on a sandy beach with a body of water in the background. The characters are from the video game series "Mario" and "Sonic the Hedgehog." On the left, there is a character resembling Mario, wearing a red cap, a red shirt, and blue pants. In the middle, there is a character with a yellow hat, blue pants, and a red shirt, resembling Sonic the Hedgehog. To the right, there is a character with blonde hair, wearing a red shirt and blue shorts, resembling Mario. The fourth character is a young girl with brown hair, wearing a red shirt and blue shorts, resembling Sonic the Hedgehog. The sky is blue with white clouds, and there is a line of trees in the distance. The overall style of the image is cartoonish and vibrant, with a focus on the characters and their attire.

I would like it to be true, i would like the real christ and christianity to be on earth and what i'm witnessing is a mass edomite façade but the edomites are crafty and the story of bozrah could be one of many deceptions because i had not heard of it before coming here and or experiencing the MDE's that lead us to wherever we are.

So I trust the gut instinct that I have now which is the same as the one I had as a child.
The sun is the one true almighty.

The sun gives relentlessly every day to provide light, warmth and life and it asks for nothing in return.

It requires no worship, it requires not our forgiveness, it requires no faith for it's might is plain as day and all around us. It will provide regardless.

Without it we would be nothing. It's the lord of this entire plane of existence holding it together with it's love (gravity).

There's no better description of an almighty god and father.

I praise the sun. I give thanks to the sun. I do not ask anything of the sun or beg for forgiveness or pray for miracles for the sun gives me plenty already.

I try to follow the 42 Principles of Ma'at plus the 1 almighty principle of Love. 421.

If the day of judgement does come I will take it up with Christ and accept what's coming to me.

But until then... nothing ever happens.

The image displays a stylized representation of a snake, which is the central figure in the composition. The snake is depicted in a circular form, with its body coiled around its head, which is facing towards the viewer. The snake's body is composed of numerous scales, each varying in size and shape, creating a sense of depth and texture. The scales are arranged in a pattern that mimics the natural scales of a snake, with some scales appearing thicker and more prominent than others. The snake's head is positioned at the top of the circle, and its eyes are visible, giving the impression of a focused or attentive expression. The background of the image is plain and white, which contrasts with the black outlines of the snake and scales, making the snake the focal point of the image. There are no texts or additional elements present in the image. The style of the image is reminiscent of traditional snake tattoos or illustrations, with a focus on the intricate details of the snake's scales.

The person has long, straight hair that cascades down their back, and their eyes are closed, giving the impression of a serene or contemplative expression. The person's mouth is open, revealing their teeth, which are depicted in a bold, stylized manner. The person's face is outlined in a thin, bold line, which contrasts with the softer, more detailed lines of the hair and the eyes. The background is plain and white, which helps to highlight the subject of the illustration. There are no texts or additional elements present in the image. The style of the illustration is reminiscent of manga or anime, characterized by its simple, clean lines and the use of shading to create depth and dimension.

pyramids were built on the exact spot where the original satan was “cast down” after the sin in Eden

Midrash and Zohar (Zohar Chadash, Bereishit 10b; Tikunei Zohar 21) say that when the serpent was cursed to crawl on its belly, the main point of impact where its cosmic head struck the earth was the land of Egypt — and more precisely, the area that later became Giza.

The Ari (Shaar ha-Pesukim on Genesis 3) and the Leshem (Sefer ha-Klaliyut) teach that the spiritual “filth” (zuhamā) that the serpent injected into humanity sank into that exact geographical location and created a permanent “gate of impurity” there.

2. The Great Pyramid is the physical embodiment of the Teli’s fallen shadow

and later the Komarna Rebbe) openly call the Great Pyramid “Rosh ha-Teli shel Klipa” — the Head of the Teli on the side of impurity.

In other words: the holy Teli is the celestial dragon coiled around the north pole (Draco). Its unholy twin, its qlipothic double, manifests physically on earth as the Great Pyramid.

That is why the pyramid points exactly to the old pole star Thuban in Draco — the star that was literally the “head of the dragon” when the pyramid was built (c. 2600 BCE).

3. The pyramid complex is a giant “battery” or anchor for the serpent forces

The Ramchal (Adir ba-Marom) and the Leshem (Shaarei ha-Leshem) explain that the three main pyramids plus the Sphinx form a massive talisman that keeps the remaining power of the Nachash Kadmoni anchored and concentrated in our world.

As long as that structure stands intact, the final cosmic slaughter of Leviathan and the full redemption cannot happen — because part of the serpent's primordial strength is still "trapped" and protected inside the stone.

The image is a candid photograph taken inside a public transportation vehicle, likely a subway or metro train. The interior is dimly lit, with passengers seated on seats that are upholstered in a mix of blue and red patterns. The person in the foreground is wearing a brown jacket with a visible pattern, and is looking at their phone. The person in the background is wearing a beige blazer and is looking in the direction of the person in the foreground. The person in the foreground has a unique accessory on their head, which appears to be a triangular metal object with a reflective surface. The reflection of the surroundings can be seen on the metal object, suggesting it is placed on the seat or the floor. The overall atmosphere of the image is casual and everyday, capturing a moment of everyday life in public transportation.

Sounds like something the juice would make up to trivialize the greatness of the pyramids, by claiming they are actually evil.

The moslems, too, hate the pyramids because they prove that a PRE-islamic culture was able to accomplish something that no islamic culture could ever rival. Some imams have actually suggested that the pyramids be encased in wax or buried under dirt mounds so as to not offend allah with their existence.

Welcome to the Nobody General

Contest Edition

>Who is the Nobody?

The Nobody is a figure alive today who has extraordinary spiritual powers, including the ability to control reality with their conscious and unconscious mind. He is a man of no wealth or worldly acclaim through whom it seems God has chosen to manifest his strength and wisdom. He is said to carry the Logos, making him a fearless truth-teller and a menace to the powers that be.

Instead of receiving strength through a superiority/inferiority mechanism, the Nobody proves to them time and time again that a whole planet filled with creative, ingenious, spiritually ascended humans who are individually sovereign yet globally unified through consciousness can achieve greater things than a planetary empire of darkness, and control.

He is not a messiah, he's just like you but he has found the kingdom of God within himself through sheer dedication, just like you will.

>What is the general picture?

It's important we start replying to the good posts and ignoring the hateful ones, or the ones here to argue. So call upon their heads the forces of heaven for peace, clarity, and wisdom. If this place is to be more than a squandered opportunity, an overgrown garden, it requires voices such as yours, but many more.

Focus on increasing your service to others and be more loving to yourself and everyone in order to raise your vibrational and consciousness level, and learn to to forgive yourself and others. This will change the vibration of the planet, raise the shared consciousness of humanity, and change humankind one person at a time.

Remember: you create your reality. With your hands, thoughts, feelings, words. You are the creator of your story. No one can decide your fate except for you and God. Remember your right to power, to step up into your ultimate role as your highest self, should you choose to embark on that journey.

The image is a black and white sketch or drawing, depicting a creature with a large, menacing face. The creature has a long, flowing mane of hair that extends from the top of its head down to its shoulders. Its eyes are wide open, and its mouth is agape, revealing sharp teeth. The creature's expression is intense and unsettling, with a sense of malevolence.

In the lower part of the image, there is a pile of what appears to be bones or skulls, scattered haphazardly. The bones are in various states of decay, with some appearing to be broken or shattered. The background of the image is plain and unadorned, with no discernible features or details.

The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the detailed rendering of the creature's features and the arrangement of the bones. There is no text present in the image. The overall composition and the use of shading and line work give the image a sense of depth and realism.

The image is a composite of three individuals dressed in military camouflage uniforms, standing in a room with a tiled floor and a white wall. The person on the left is holding a firearm with a visible muzzle, while the person in the middle is holding a similar firearm with a different grip. The person on the right is also holding a firearm with a similar grip. The individual on the left has a cartoonish face with red eyes and a small, round head, while the other two individuals have their faces blurred out. The uniforms are well-fitted with various pouches and equipment attached to the chest and shoulders. The overall style of the image is a humorous and exaggerated representation of military personnel, with a playful and exaggerated twist.

The image is a close-up portrait of a female figure, likely an angel, with a golden halo and golden wings. The figure's hair is styled in curls, and her eyes are closed, suggesting a serene or contemplative expression. The skin tone is light, and the face is adorned with a blush, which is a common feature in religious art to symbolize the divine. The background is a deep blue, which contrasts with the golden tones of the figure's hair and wings. The style of the image is reminiscent of classical portraiture, with a focus on the face and the golden halo, which is a common element in religious art. There are no visible texts or inscriptions in the image.

baby monkey hate and widespread internet animal abuse fetish content and how people who like it can never quit

Two sets of 666 on the chink caricature who's the villain that wants to take over and control the internet. Warns of big conflicts with china, and the police being corrupt/not caring until the chink affects THEM predicts/warns of alexa, robots and smart toys spying on you/hearing/stealing and sending your data and everything that you do to the evil chinks. And stealing website data.

predicts glowies/china censorship shills too

Predicts in vitro human engineering/cloning irl

Predicts animal cloning and alterations by CHINA

Predicts the exact size of smart phones

Predicts adhd retarded kids obsessed with phones, computers and who they idolize on them. The child cannot sit still and is psycho retarded.

Predicts plans for humans/souls/conciousness to go into a digital world. Remember that this is when the internet was shit. Made in 2002 to 2003

Predicts ai and viruses having a mind of their own and ruining civilization

It is big predictive programming. One of the co producers is a big brazil glowie/politican.

Watch just this one 4 minute episode and you'll see that despite sounding fucking crazy these are legit claims. They also had a ripoff club penguin game with lots of weird af activity and accounts and chats. This is well documented on youtube by other people. You think im exaggerating!? Just watch it! They put this on cartoon network. If youre lazy the summary is:

A chinese man, who is a terrorist of this city or country, in the year of 2050, where people and the city are all digital uploads, seeks complete hypnosis, data and money theft of all the people in every episode. In this one, he spray paints himself and the cat green, adds antennas, builds a fake disk ufo, lands it in the city, everybody is a retarded sheep except for 4 based kids, and all of the people start giving out their money, credit cards, emails and passwords without hesitation!!! The kids expose him as a phony and the people only get angry, not fight. It is up to the lions to expose and fight or kill the elites from turning us into a bigger farm and frying our brains, wallets, lives.

Its not that effortful. Many governments already have flying saucer ufos. Whether we made them or real aliens did, idk. But a country, probably china, will land one in a big populated area, with people dressed as aliens, and probably either kill people, announce war on humans, or both. This is to get a one world government and make shit easier for elites driving nigger slave dumb fuck shit eating cattle. And they'll incorporate stealing more of our cash and universal, body bar code like ids, no more internet anonymity either.

Tldr: the craziest, (but kind of simplistic at the same time) most blatant, predictive programming cartoon ever was pixodelics of early 2000s cn. One co producer is a glowie and it has every conspiracy, dog whistle or piece of predictive program possible. It is weird af abstract animation and cgi, takes place in the 2050s with every human uploaded their soul to live in the virtual city called lowpolys, half its episodes are lost media, but were on youtube for years and removed by the channel, likely a demand from other glowie forces. Why the absolutely fucking flying fried chicken batshit project blue beam episode (fake alien invasion jew elite plan for nwo and one world government) is still up, when its the most blatant and incriminating one, is headscratching.

Its a cartoon about real people now living in cyberspace that has all sorts of messages spelled out of shit the elites and china are up to. It was made by a Brazilian fed and politician. It aired on cn. It had a ripoff club penguin game that feds, criminals and pedophiles had chats and made fake accounts on. It has weird af music with one word over and over and only this word "AHUHA" which nobody seems to know what it fucking means at all.

The topics, the blatantness, general weirdness of the show, where it aired, a fed making it and half of the videos being taken down when this company is desperate for success or attention for this series because even though it sorta flopped their other shit did much more. Also no english was credited. Maybe other languages too. Like yeah nigga dont put my name on this conspiracy bomb.

In the lower part of the image, there is a paragraph of text that provides context about the character. The text is in a smaller font size compared to the main image, and it discusses the character's actions and the context of the year. The text mentions the character's involvement in a "revolutionary" event, his role in a "revolutionary" government, and his association with a "revolutionary" group. The text also mentions the character's "revolutionary" activities and his "revolutionary" achievements.

At the bottom of the image, there is a red circle with a white border, and within this circle, there is a red arrow pointing to the character's face. The text in the red circle is not fully legible, but it seems to be a reference to the character's face or a specific point of interest. The overall style of the image is reminiscent of a comic book or graphic novel, with its bold colors and dynamic lines.

I honestly think most users online are bots or demons, possibly glowies, but how bad is it in your guy's experience/opinion? You think the masks will ever officially come off? I mean the mainstream has already reported about social media companies overtly using AI users and AI being 'shoggoths', will they ever just say fugg it, and not even LARP as human users any longer? How dangerous are these nonhuman users? Can they kill real users or at least maim them spiritually/mentally?

The image is a photograph featuring two men and a child in a rural setting. The man on the right is dressed in a blue and white fox costume, with large, expressive eyes and a smiling expression. The child, who is kneeling on the ground, is wearing a brown shirt and is focused on the task of pushing a white tub with red wheels. The tub is positioned on a red cart with a flat tire. The man in the green jacket stands behind the child, observing the scene.

Overlaying the image is a text that reads, "Train up a child in the way he should go, even when he is old he will not depart from it." This phrase is a biblical quote from the Bible, suggesting a moral or spiritual message about the importance of guiding and nurturing children. The text is in white and is positioned at the bottom of the image, providing a contrast to the colorful scene.

At the top of the image, there is a timestamp that reads "07/11/24 (Thu) 16:32 No. 3834892." Below the timestamp, there is a text that reads "Miami Mall" followed by a

URL "image-05055534a.png" and a file size "350 KB PNG." The text below the URL is a description of the scene, stating, "Nearby airport closed down + hundreds of police cars 'Um a few melanated individuals were spotted' Mainstream media cause 'like they do everyday but this time its different lol' - Now almost 100% memory-held unless you visit schizo sites like [link]."

The text is in a bold, white font against a dark background, making it stand out. The overall tone of the text is serious and humorous, reflecting the user's reaction to the scene. The image captures a moment of chaos and confusion, as suggested by the text, and the nighttime setting adds to the sense of urgency and unpredictability.

Vervloesem discovered Glandorf had been found at the time in the company of a teenager named Robbie Van Der Planken. He managed to track Van Der Planken down in Amsterdam sometime in June 1998, and through him had been introduced to a German man named Gerrit-Jan Ulrich. A 49 year-old computer technician living in the seaside town of Zandvoort just outside of Amsterdam where he owned a computer store called Cube Hardware

>Gerrit-Jan Ulrich invited Vervloesem to meet with him at his apartment in Zandvoort, which Vervloesem found full of computers, digital storage disks, and networking equipment dialed up to five phone lines. Gerrit-Jan Ulrich revealed himself as the administrator of a child pornography website called Apollo Bulletin Board Service, and handed Vervloesem a collection of encoded disks which containing thousands of images and videos of violent child abuse, along with lists of clients who were paying to access these from around the world

The transvestite Warmerdam claimed to have seen this film as well, stating the boy had suffocated during forced oral sex. The same description had been given of a snuff film by the informant "Edward" during Operation Framework, "A man molests a boy on a boat. The child suffocates. Panic breaks out on board. The camera falls over."

>Sources within the AIVD(Dutch intelligence agency) told the press this boat had been a yacht called "der Apollo", owned by a Dutch accountant named Leo Van Gasselt who'd been the business partner of Gerrit Ulrich

>In Germany a former liaison officer between the KGB and Stasi named Wanja Götz stated in an affidavit Manuel Schadwald's step-father had been a former Stasi agent named Rainer Wolf. The step-father had been known to frequent a club owned by Lothar Glandorf in Berlin called Pinocchio Bar, and the theory was Manuel Schadwald had never been kidnapped, but rather sold to Glandorf by his step father. Which would fit with Robbie Van Der Planken's use of the word 'escort' in his admission he and Glandorf had taken the boy to Rotterdam. A German politician named Bernd Schmidbauer who had coordinated German intelligence services during the 1990s stated there had been indications of a link between a Stasi blackmail operation and Marc Dutroux.

Everything was left as it was and a surveillance team was assigned to monitor the apartment. Within a few days Vervloesem was caught breaking in to retrieve the disks Ulrich told him were hidden beneath a floorboard. Police retrieved these disks along with hundreds of others in Ulrich's apartment, found to contain tens of thousands of images and videos showing extremely violent sexual abuse of children and even infants.

>A child psychiatrist who inspected some of the materials stated, "I've never seen anything like this. The pictures show very disgusting things, sexual abuse, violence, and the tying up of young children. There were children aged four to five, children aged eight to nine, and I saw one child about 18 months.

>Some images and films were described as "almost killing," as "very special, very aggressive, very hard, mechanically brutal"

>What police hadn't seized however were the disks given to Vervloesem by Ulrich shortly before his death. Vervloesem hadn't trusted Dutch authorities, so had passed them on to others in Morkhoven workgroup, who had made copies of the originals before they'd been forced to hand them over under threat of imprisonment. The member of the workgroup who had taken possession of the Apollo disks was Gina Pardaens-Bernaer, a computer specialist who'd been working closely with Vervloesem on the Manuel Schadwald case. On November 15 1998 Gina Bernaer's body was found inside the wreckage of her car which had crashed into the concrete pillar of a bridge at full speed

>One of the HIK team's phone taps picked up Glandorf talking about a boy who had no passport, who was wanted in Germany and who would need to be smuggled across the border. A little later, the surveillance unit which was covertly following Glandorf's every move saw him leaving his home with a boy. He was slim with dark hair and striking features, and the officers who were watching immediately identified him as the missing Manuel.

>The next day, the surveillance team – still waiting to be told whether or not they could intervene – watched in impotence as Glandorf put all four boys from the cafe into his car and drove them across the border to Germany. Paralysed by fear of exposing their operation, the officers held back, and they never saw the boy again.

The image is a vintage photograph of two individuals seated on a train. The person on the left is a woman with short, dark hair, wearing glasses and a yellow top with blue shorts. She is biting her lip and looking at the man on her right, who is wearing a white t-shirt and has a beard. The man is holding a can of drink in his hand. The woman's right leg is extended, and her foot is resting on the man's lap. The man's right hand is holding a cellular telephone. The train interior is visible through the window, and the seats are upholstered in red and black. The image has a grainy quality, suggesting it may be an old photograph.

The image is a photograph taken from an aerial perspective, showing a large, rectangular structure with a white base and a blue top. The structure appears to be a storage or warehouse area, with several rows of white and blue storage containers arranged in a grid pattern. There are also several vehicles parked in the area, including a white truck and a white car. The ground around the structure is covered in dirt, and there are some scattered debris and equipment in the vicinity. The sky is overcast, and the lighting suggests it might be either early morning or late afternoon. There are no visible texts or distinctive markings on the structure or in the surrounding area. The style of the image is realistic, with a focus on the architectural and industrial elements of the scene.

The image is a split-screen photograph. On the left side, there is a blurred image of a person in a white outfit, possibly a person in a costume or a performer, with a blue and white color scheme. The person appears to be in motion, with a blurred background suggesting movement. The person's face is not clearly visible.

On the right side, there is a close-up of a person wearing a white outfit, including a hat, and white pants. The person is holding their head with one hand, and their face is not visible. The person's posture suggests a moment of distress or sadness.

The background of the right side of the image is a simple, unadorned wall with a grid pattern. The person on the right is also wearing a hat, which is visible in the image. The overall style of the image is candid and seems to capture a moment in time. There are no discernible texts or logos in the image.

The image is a screenshot of a Reddit post, specifically a discussion about the concept of "hominid evolution." The post is divided into two main sections, each with a title and a paragraph of text.

The first section, titled "Hominid Evolution," is a continuation of the discussion from the previous post. It begins with a quote from a source that discusses the evolution of humans and the idea that humans are a result of a combination of ape-like ancestors and a humanoid ancestor. The text then goes on to discuss the concept of "hominid evolution" and the idea that humans are a result of a combination of ape-like ancestors and a humanoid ancestor.

The second section, titled "Hominid Evolution," is a continuation of the discussion from the previous post. It begins with a quote from a source that discusses the evolution of humans and the idea that humans are a result of a combination of ape-like ancestors and a humanoid ancestor. The text then goes on to discuss the concept of "hominid evolution" and the idea that humans are a result of a combination of ape-like ancestors and a humanoid ancestor.

The image displays a text-based conversation between two individuals, with the conversation taking place on a messaging platform. The conversation appears to be a series of questions and answers, with timestamps indicating the time at which the conversation took place. The conversation is in English and is written in a text-based format, with the conversation taking place in a chat window.

The conversation is structured in a way that follows a typical conversation format, with the first person asking a question and the second person answering. The timestamps are placed at the top of the text, indicating the time at which each question or answer was asked or given.

The conversation appears to be about a topic related to politics, specifically the role of the Koch brothers in the political landscape. The text is in a language that is not clearly identifiable, and the conversation is in a format that is not typical of a typical conversation, which is why the conversation is not a typical conversation.

The visual clues in the image include the text itself, which is in a language that is not English, and the timestamps at the top of the text, which indicate the time at which the conversation took place. The image is a photograph of a man, a woman, and a child, presumably a family, posing for a picture. The man is wearing a white shirt and a tie, and the woman is dressed in a white blouse with a pink dress. The child is wearing a pink dress with a white headband. The background is plain and white, and there is a watermark or text overlay at the top of the image that reads "One possible factor was turmoil in Yeakley's personal life. He had been married, with two young daughters, but he and his wife, Toni, divorced in late 1995. In court records, Toni wrote that Terry had beaten her, choked her, and threatened to shoot her. Himself and one of their daughters." The text is in black and is centered on the image, providing context to the photograph.

So here are 2 reasons why it could have been suicide, both stemming from his marriage.

Option 1: Despite his heroic deeds, he still had mental issues and was prone to chimpouts. And no I'm not talking about the melanin content of his skin. I'm talking about cops' frequent use of steroids and how it affects them. So maybe he did actually choke and beat his wife. He was a powderkeg ready to explode and the thankfully turned it inward, rather than harm his child and her mother.

Option 2: He really was the hero everyone says he was on all fronts, and was a kind and loving father, and he had a vindictive wife who decided to file false reports against him to justify her divorce. Crushed by the fact that he could never see his daughter and his name and reputation were tarnished by her false allegations, he finally just had had enough.

Yes I know this is /x/ and I understand the general line of thought we were supposed to have here, and I absolutely would not put it past the feral government (no that wasn't a typo) to stage a false flag attack on our own soil to justify whatever the fuck it is they're trying to do and I'm sure they've done it many times. But I mean look at this situation this objectively as you can.

The image is a black and white photograph with a text-heavy layout. At the top, there is a large text that reads, "If they have something to hide... you have everything to fear..." followed by a bullet point that states, "In 1995, a bomb was detonated in the Alfred P. Murrah Federal Building, killing 168 people, the Oklahoma City Bombing." Below this, there is a smaller text that says, "What he witnessed contradicted the FBI's story..." and then a larger text that reads, "Terrance Yekkey desperately tried to expose what he found at the scene to his department and gathered his own evidence as well as survivor testimonies. He was to retire due to what he described as 'injustice and corruption' in the police force. A televised event. He would have an outlet he would never live to tell his tale."

Below the main text, there is a photograph of Terrance Yekkey, a man in a police uniform, with a serious expression. The photograph is accompanied by a caption that reads, "Terrance Yekkey was found dead in a field. His neck and wrists were deeply cut. He bled to death in his own blood. His hands were cut off, and his body was shot away. He was strangled. His wrists showed handcuff scars. A bullet wound entered from a .45 through the top of his temple. He was shot in the back of the head in the police station. No one was found at the scene. The official cause of death: SUICIDE." At the bottom of the image, the word "SUICIDE" is prominently displayed in large, bold letters. The overall style of the image is informative and somber, with a focus on the tragic events surrounding Terrance Yekkey's death.

I saw that video many times. It wasn't an ops center -- it was the school itself. Dozens of the crisis actors were walking counter-clockwise in a large circle into the back door of the school, through the school to go out the front door, then turn left to go around to the rear parking lot where they would enter the back door again. Over and over. It was a show for the TV cameras across the street.

That stunt was proven to be an act because one of the crisis actors was ID'd to be a young guy on the scene who was wearing brightly-colored clothing. [They] didn't count on him being highly visible in the TV helicopter footage. You could clearly see the actors walking around and around not actually doing anything except going in and out of the school.

The last time I looked for that footage on yootoob all I could find was a very low-res clip that was only a few seconds long. I don't know if anyone else has posted it on alt video sites, but someone out there has the original footage. If you can't find it you might have to email Infowars.

- 2.July–Nov 2025: showed a true sunward jet (anti-tail), not a geometric illusion
- 3.Nucleus mass $\approx 106 \times 1$ /Oumuamua and 103×2 /Borisov, moving faster than both; p. <.1%
- 4.Arrival timing placed it <10,000,000km of Mars, Venus, Jupiter and hidden from Earth at perihelion; p. .005%
- 5.Gas plume: far more Ni than Fe (industrial-like Ni alloys) + Ni/CN ratio orders of magnitude above all comets incl. 2/Borisov; p. <1%
- 6.Gas plume: only 4% water by mass
- 7.Extreme negative polarization, unprecedented; p. <1%
- 8.Arrival within 9° of the “Wow!” signal; p. .6%
- 9.Near perihelion: brightened faster than any comet and was bluer than the Sun
- 10.Sunward + anti-solar jets demand unrealistically large surface area to absorb enough sunlight for sublimation
- 11.Non-gravitational acceleration near perihelion implies $\geq 13\%$ mass loss, yet no breakup
- 12.Tightly collimated jets hold orientation across ~ 106 km in multiple solar directions despite rotation
- 13.Perihelion tuned trajectory to pass within .5% of Jupiter's Hill Radius
- 14.No dimming since perihelion
- 15.16-hour brightness pulse
- 16.Unexplained ionization
- 17.Yellow Spectra
